Hurley Offers Plan To End Shoe Crisis

Governor Proposes to Enlist Aid of N. E. Delegation in Congress

Governor Hurley today demanded swift action by Congress to save New England's imperilled shoe industry from destruction through ruinous competition by foreign manufacturers employing cheap labor.

The Massachusetts governor's challenge to the nation's lawmakers was embodied in a resolution drafted for submission to the thirteenth New England conference, in session here.

The recommendation, which Governor Hurley said he planned to introduce personally, calls for action by both branches of Congress and charges the entire New England delegation with the duty of forcing the fight in the national capital.

AURA OF GLOOM

Earlier, while more than a thousand business men, industrialists and farms leaders assembled for the two-day meeting in Hotel Statler, the Governor announced he had devised a plan to save the once thriving industry from doom.

While the conference looked forward to Governor Hurley's report on the plight of the shoe manufacturers, the aura of gloom surrounding the industry deepend perceptibly.

ANOTHER PLANT CLOSES

Word was received that another shoe plant had closed down in Haverhill, robbing 200 persons of work and lifting the city's total of unemployed shoe workers to 1100.

The latest concern to yield to the ruthless competition of low-cost foreign manufacturers was the Fox Shoe Company, which conducted a flourishing business for 13 years.

Joseph Fox, head of the concern, announced the plant would remain closed indefinitely. Declaring that local manufacturers cannot com-

Blue Law Bans Sunday Music

Hotels, Clubs, Big Restaurants Hit

Shades of Boston's Puritan founders rose today to lay a stilling hand on Sunday music in the city's clubs, hotels, restaurants and taverns.

The Boston licensing board warned all of the 350 places of this nature in the city that, under a "Blue Law" passed in 1692 there must be no music, "except sacred music," on Sundays.

Every big hotel in Boston is affected. Hardest hit are those having cocktail lounges or similar rooms in which there is music for entertainment. Hit, too, are the city's leading clubs—the Harvard Club, University Club, City Club and others having dining rooms.

Not even a radio may be turned on in these places. "Nickel-in-the-slot" phonographs even are barred.

The city's theaters, even though music be a part of their programs, are safe, however, the licensing board stated. The 245-year-old "Blue Law" applies specifically to taverns, restaurants, etc., only, it was explained.

Hotel guests may have radios in their rooms. Sunday afternoon concerts, for which admission fees are charged, are not banned. The music is stopped in eating or drinking places, according to the licensing board, which acted on an opinion handed down by Attorney-General Paul A. Dever.

Fisherman Lost In Gale

A tragedy of the fishing banks was revealed today when the steam trawler, Penguin, arrived back at Fish Pier, South Boston, her flag flying at half mast.

William Meister, 52, of Chelsea, a fireman aboard the trawler, was washed overboard and drowned Monday in a gale that swept the Western Bank, off Nova Scotia, Captain William Riley reported.

Other members of the crew saw Meister, who had come on deck for a breath of fresh air, carried overboard by a heavy sea. The trawler was pitching so heavily in the gale, Captain Riley said, that it was impossible to launch a boat.

U.S., Britain Map Trade Pact

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP)—The United States and Great Britain agreed today to negotiate for a reciprocal trade pact, a decision fraught with far-reaching economic and political implications.

It was the first formal step toward an objective long sought by the Roosevelt administration as an indispensable feature of its program for liberalization of world commerce.

The decision was announced by Secretary Hull in a statement asserting merely that the United States "contemplates" such negotiations.

Actual start of the negotiations, expected within a few weeks, will climax more than a year of exploratory work by representatives of both governments in London and Washington.

Hull's announcement, released simultaneously with a statament to the British House of Commons on the subject, gave no hint of the basis of approach agreed upon, nor were any details of the long preliminary conversations revealed.

There appeared good reason to

New Senate Demand for Tax Relief

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—Renewed demand for business relief swept both Houses of Congress today.

So strong did the demand become, that it sounded through the anti-lynching filibuster bring Senate appeals to relieve business men of oppressive taxation immediately.

Senator Borah (R.) of Idaho, taking his cue from demands for immediate legislation, announced that he would oppose any manufacturers' sales tax to offset revenue loss through tax revision.

Senator Bailey (D.), North Carolina, who had the floor, agreed with Borah that a sales tax was "abhorrent," but added that if it was necessary to repeal the undistributed profits tax, he would support it.

WOULD BROADEN BASE

Bailey said he preferred rather to lower income tax exemptions, adding:

"I favor repeal or drastic change (of the undistributed profits tax) under any circumstances. Even if I were sure that I had to accept one or the other (income exemption lowering, or the sales tax) I would accept it rather than continue the present system of penalizing corporations for paying their debts.

"Broadening of the tax base is the most logical method.

"A sales tax is the last resort of a bankrupt country."

HARRISON JOINS DEBATE

Senator Harrison (D., Mississippi) chairman of the Senate finance committee which handles taxation, joined in the debate to say he hoped emergency expenditures could be curtailed so as to prevent the necessity of either a manufacturers' sales tax or broadening the income base, but added the "money must come from somewhere."

Meanwhile, Senator Bennett Clark (D.) of Missouri made the assertion that a "clear majority" of the Senate favored repeal of the undistributed profits tax, and there was an overwhelming sentiment for action at the special session to at least modify it.

Others who joined in the demand for speedy action were Senators Copeland of New York and Burke of Nebraska, Democrats.

Life Ban for Freed Death Driver

Led by Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin's smashing edict, "he'll never drive again," stirring comment and proposed legislative action came in quick succession today following the acquittal of a Lowell man on charges of manslaughter.

On trial in connection with the death of a father and his two-year-old son, Joseph F. Curry, 41, of West Fifth street, Lowell, was freed of manslaughter counts by Judge John E. Swift in Middlesex Superior Court because "he was so drunk that he was not in fit position to form judgment or exercise his will."

Judge Swift, however, found him guilty of drunkenness, operating under the influence of liquor and driving so as to endanger.

The drunkenness conviction was filed and Curry was given six months' suspended sentence and fined $200 on each of the other two charges, a total penalty of $400.

REP. SAWYER ACTS

Judge Swift found Curry not guilty on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident on the same grounds that prompted the manslaughter acquittal.

In less than 24 hours came the following activity and comment:

Permanent suspension of Curry's license by Registrar Goodwin.

Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware filed petition with the clerk of the House of Representa-

U. S. Envoy Will Quit Nanking

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (INS)—The United States government today authorized American Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson to abandon the American embassy in Nanking and follow the Chinese government wherever its new capital may finally be established.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull said, however, the embassy would remain in Nanking until the entire Chinese government evacuates.

Movement of the American embassy will depend upon the action of the Chinese foreign office, Hull said.

'Key' in Curley Suit

A surprise witness in the city's $50,000 suit against former Mayor Curley and Dr. Joseph Santosuosso today was Frederick H. Graves, whose affidavit is basis of the suit. Graves (left, with an unidentified man) testified that when he asked Curley, in Washington in 1933, if he would settle the General Equipment Corporation suit against the city, Curley asked: "What is in it for me?"

Simpson Marries Mrs. Raffray

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 18 (AP)—Ernest Simpson, former husband of the Duchess of Windsor, and Mrs. Mary Kirk Raffray were married here today.

The wedding took place this afternoon in the ballroom of the Brooklawn Country Club.

Mrs. Raffray, who met Simpson through the Duchess of Windsor before her marriage to the Duke of Windsor, obtained a divorce in Reno last week.

Justice of the Peace Ned E. Ostmark married the couple.

Simpson's parents, the bride's sister and a few close friends were present. A luncheon followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Philo C. Calhoun.

Simpson and his bride went to the town hall at nearby Fairfield for their marriage license.

Roosevelt Has Tooth Pulled

But Stays Abed Third Day With Fever

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—President Roosevelt remained in bed today for the third consecutive day, running a slight temperature from an infected tooth.

The tooth was pulled this morning in an abscessed condition, which the dentist said would now rapidly clear up.

In addition to his tooth trouble, the President was also said to have had a slight gastro-intestinal disorder, from which he has recovered.

Captain Ross T. McIntire, the President's physician, revealing this new complication, which he said had "completely cleared up," added that at no time had there been anything to "give us any alarm."

Accuser Is Surprise Witness in Suit

James M. Curley, then mayor of Boston, asked "how much is in it for me?" when questioned as to the possibility of settling a suit brought by the General Equipment Corporation against the city, it was testified today in Superior Court.

The testimony was by Frederick H. Graves, suddenly produced today as a surprise witness in rebuttal—the second surprise witness called by the city on successive days in its $50,000 suit against Curley and Dr. Joseph Santosuosso.

Graves, heretofore but a shadowy figure as a man who made the affidavit on which the present suit is based, caused a wave of excitement when he unexpectedly appeared and contradicted testimony by Curley as to a disputed meeting between the two in a Washington hotel.

During Curley's testimony of Tuesday he denied knowing Graves and denied ever meeting or talking with him, at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, or anywhere else.

"OUT OF BLUE SKY"

Today, however, Graves declared on the stand that he had talked to Curley in the lobby of the Mayflower Hotel.

"I walked right up to him and asked him if he was going to settle the Equipment case," testified Graves. "In substance I used those words."

"You went up to him out of a clear blue sky, without any preliminaries?" Graves was asked by Wendell P. Murray, counsel for Curley, in cross-examination.

"Yes," replied Graves.

Q—And he said to you, "How much is in it for me?" A—That's right.

Q—And this was in a crowded hotel lobby? A—Yes.

Q—At the noon hour? A—Yes.

Q—Do you want to say that the only time you talked with Curley was in Washington? A—Yes.

ADMITS FALSE TESTIMONY

Under direct examination, Graves had admitted testifying falsely at the Finance Commission 1934 inquiry into the General Equipment Corporation suit settlement for $85,000.

At that investigation, according to records of the finance commission testified to yesterday in the present trial, Graves declared he never had met Curley and had not gone to Washington.

It was in vain that the defense in

New Tigers' Job For Cochrane

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18 (AP)—The San Francisco Examiner said today it had learned Del Baker would be named manager of the Detroit Tigers this season and Manager Mickey Cochrane would be given an executive position.

Baker, a former Pacific Coast League catcher, managed the club while Cochrane was recovering last season from a skull fracture after he was hit by a pitched ball.

Manager Cochrane of the Tigers was reported in the midwest today. He is a former Bridgewater boy and one-time Boston University sports hero.

Ill for much of the 1936 season, he returned to catching duty last season, hovered near death for many weeks after being "beaned." He was with the team toward the close of the season, but it was reported that he would drop all active field duties when the year's task was finished.

Farley Picks G. O. P. White House Choice

BALTIMORE, Nov. 18 (AP)—Postmaster-General James A. Farley, number one predictor of political things to come, today answered the question of whom the Republican party will nominate for the presidency in 1940.

"You will find," he told the Young Democratic Club here, "they will nominate Hoover, Landon or Senator Vandenberg—in that order."

Tobin Due Back From Capital Trip Tonight

Plan Big Reception To Mayor-Elect on Arrival Home

By JAMES F. DOOLING

Mayor-elect Maurice J. Tobin, having scored an impressive success in the nation's capital, will be home at about 8 o'clock tonight.

The young chief executive who will take over the administration of Boston's affairs in January will be tendered a tremendous reception.

Mayor-elect Tobin spent only three days in Washington at a national mayors' conference, but during that time he did "groundwork" that someone less alert might have used three weeks to accomplish.

He will go back to Washington in a fortnight or so. He has engagements with the President, with Harry Hopkins and with various chiefs of the administration.

VISIT WORTH WHILE

Mayor-elect Tobin's last words before he entrained for home were:

"It's been well worth the visit. This mayors' conference is a course in higher education for anyone who must consider municipal problems.

"I only regret that every citizen in Boston cannot sit down and listen to the mayors of various communities in the United States telling their troubles as Washington heard them.

"We in Boston would realize then how well off we can be. Our problems need only co-operation for their solution."

Despite the arduous schedule on which he had embarked last Friday and had completed today, he was still alert, full of "pep."

He shook hands with correspondents, had a private talk with John F. Regan, Boston Navy Yard employes' delegate to the President, then jumped on the New York-bound train just before it was leaving Union Station in Washington.

Mayor-elect Tobin will spend an hour or two in New York on private business before he takes the train in that city to continue homeward today.

SCORES TRIUMPHS

During his stay at Washington, this "young man of Boston," as he has been hailed, became overnight a national figure.

He scored one triumph after another at the U. S. conference of mayors in the capital. He was the only one of the nation's cities' chief executives to be accorded a White House reception by James Roosevelt. They, however, are personal friends.

He was singled out of all the mayors in conference in the capital to be asked to help the District of Columbia's lagging Community Chest campaign.

He told the citizens of this district over a broadcast retransmitted over N. B. C.'s station WMAL:

"As I ride over this beautiful capital city, with its myriad lights blinking cheerfully at me, I am impressed with the sight and the tremendous activity in this city.

"However, I know there are shadows—many shadows—and I hope that I can be of some assistance in bringing a little light to bear on these shadows by backing up the great tenth anniversary campaign of the Community Chest.

"I am sure that you good people of Washington and its suburbs will set a great example in this campaign that will be a beacon for the rest of the nation."

Mayors Warn of Relief Demands

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (INS)—Pressure from their constituents for additional relief appropriations and a warning that the care of the nation's hapless "one-third" must not be used as a "political bludgeon" today added to the woes of embattled congressmen.

Mayors of 150 of the nation's largest cities, where dwell one-third of the country's population, served notice on Congress at the conclusion of their annual three-day conference that they would demand a deficiency relief appropriation if the current business recession continues.

Pointing to the swelling of relief rolls, they went further by warning that local communities, for the most part, would be unable to raise additional funds if called upon to do so.

During the conference, it was learned, many mayors conferred with WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins and explained their plight.

Hopkins' answer was that the administration was attempting to arrive at "some formula" for distributing the proportionate share of the relief burden, but gave no assurance additional funds would be forthcoming.

The United States Conference of Mayors delegated its executive committee to survey relief conditions during December and make "specific recommendations" to Congress.

GEN. JOHNSON SAYS:

Wallace Report Hides Fascist Aim

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—Just as Congress comes back clearly reflecting the scare thrown into the whole country by the mass and simultaneous flocking to the home roost of all the misbegotten chickens of the Third New Deal, the secretary of agriculture hatches a strange new fowl—an "ever-normal granary" for industry as well as agriculture.

HUGH S. JOHNSON

"Ever-normal granary" hath a comforting and homely sound. Somebody in the never-dying AAA is a master of euphemism—or the art of using a deodorized or highly perfumed word to designate a thing that stinks—like calling a skunk a wood-pussy.

In the latest report of the Department of Agriculture (which is not a report at all, but a long, rambling pseudo-economic essay) dictating the croppage of every farm in the United States is called "crop adjustment."

A sales tax levied directly on the food and clothing of the poor is called a "processing" tax. A proposed vast collectivism operating under Washington dictation is called "group solidarity." But the lalapalooza is to call the complete drill regulations for this absolute regimentation of American agriculture—"the ever-normal granary idea."

You can't read this "report" without escaping the conclusion that what Mr. Wallace meditates—or what some familiar spirit perched on his shoulder, whispering in his ear in the night season, muses for him—is a complete dictation of the operation, fortunes and welfare of every one of six million separate American farms. Its authoritarian essence is not disguised by calling it "agricultural democracy" because farmers vote on it. Under the proposed subsidy system, they can't afford not so to vote.

Some of it is to be done by telling farmers exactly what they can and cannot plant—some by telling them what they can and cannot send to market and all of it by saying how and when they will use their land.

What may come out of Congress to make effective this violation of every American tradition, inhibition and constitutional principle, is not yet certain. But what Mr. Wallace and his familiars would like it to be is crystal clear in this "report." This great authority on Thomas Jefferson, the Constitution, economics, international trade, literature, agriculture, the Anglican Church, and a proprietary corn-kernel as fecund as a Mexican jumping bean is active, wants to be the first American dictator of a new subsidized, organized and corporate agriculture.

• • •

But that ain't all. According to Mr. Wallace, if agriculture does it, then "balance" requires it of industry also. "It may be difficult to discover the exact industrial counterpart to the ever-normal granary program, but socially minded businessmen with the assistance of industrial engineers and economists will not be slow in developing an experimental approach," he says.

Mr. Wallace is wrong. It would not be at all difficult to find an exact industrial counterpart. You can find it in Italy in the Fascist corporate state. Mr. Mussolini can tell us all about it.

Two days after release of his report, the secretary, in an outburst at Monticello, said that if it could return to life today the first thought of Thomas Jefferson's ghost would be to deprive corporations of the right of property under the Bill of Rights. Jefferson himself favored that amendment. If that reincarnate whose had found this super-Federalist thus orating over Monticello, it would have chased him all the way to Charlottesville with a pair of fire tongs.

• • •

It is pretty plain what Mr. Wallace's politico-economic faith is. He is a confirmed Fascist. Simply stated, he wants government to run all production in the United States and not merely government in general but federal government. In all his musings the states have no place.

These untempered blasts just now are curiously inconsistent with the President's and Mr. Morgenthau's peace signals and come-hither glances cast toward private capital to get it to come out of its cyclone cellar and go to work. Yet, Mr. Wallace is the most influential administration adviser—in the cabinet.

Lyons Gains 88 Votes on Lynch

With a gain of 88 votes, John W. Lyons was leading his opponent, John D. Lynch, present incumbent, in the recount today to decide the mayoralty election in Cambridge.

Checkers have finished the recount in Wards 1 and 2 and were tabulating the votes in Precincts 1 and 2 of Ward 3 at noon today. They hope to complete four wards by tonight. In Precinct 2 of Ward 3 Lynch lost a vote and Lyons gained one.

In the recount of the balance of votes in Ward 1, Lyons made a net gain of 94. He lost seven votes in Ward 2.

For the remainder of the week the checkers will work up until 9 o'clock each evening, with an hour for lunch and an hour for supper, with the exception of Saturday, hours for which will be decided later.

Stork Brings Tobin 8-Pound Nephew

Mayor-elect Maurice J. Tobin acquired another strong supporter early today.

He was an eight-pound baby boy, born at Cardinal O'Connell House to Mrs. Irene Tobin, wife of Timothy Tobin, brother of Boston's youthful mayor-elect. Dr. Roger Doyle reported that both the baby and mother were doing well.

Hoover and 'Democrat Future President' Dine

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover dined last night with a Democrat who expects to be president of the United States.

His table companion was Robert "Bobby" Gallagher, 12, representing the lower East Side boys of the Madison Square Boy's Club, at a testimonial dinner at the Waldorf Astoria in honor of Albert B. Hines, veteran director of the club.

Hoover autographed Bobby's menu with a pencil, apologizing for not having a pen. Bobby told him that was all right.

"Would you like to be President like Mr. Hoover?" another guest asked.

"Sure," said Bobby.

"You're not a Democrat, are you?"

"Sure," said Bobby more emphatically than before.

Hoover, present as honorary chairman of the Boys' Clubs of America, said that governments "cannot build character" and that one generation of "properly born, adequately educated, healthy children" would bring Utopia, "even if we don't succeed with planned economy."

Ruling Delayed In Will Contest

SALEM, Nov. 18—Judge Edward B. O'Brien in Probate Court here today reserved decision on a suit brought by a Haverhill shoe company executive to upset the terms of his mother's will, which left the residue of a $10,000 estate to his twin sister.

The action was brought by Frank M. Dawkins, 46, of Howard street, Haverhill, who asserted through counsel that his mother was mentally incompetent when she drew up the will bequeathing him $1 and the remainder of her estate to his sister, Mrs. Adeline F. Roche of Main street, Haverhill.

98 Towns Test Pupils' Hearing

Five and a half per cent of 31,530 pupils given tests last year in 98 towns in this state had defective hearing, Dr. Henry D. Chadwick, state health commissioner, revealed today.

Forty children were tested at one time through the use of head phones by Mrs. Helen T. Barrows, audiometer technician of the department. Social security funds were used for the tests conducted in towns of less than 10,000 population.

State Red Probe Draws Protest

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—The American Civil Liberties Union today protested the "method and manner" of the Massachusetts legislative inquiry into subversive activities.

A letter to Senator Sybil Holmes, committee chairman, signed by Harry F. Ward, chairman; Arthur Garfield Hays, counsel, and Roger N. Baldwin, director of the A. C. L. U., charged the committee with spending three-fourths of its time on the Communist movement "in spite of the fact that the Communist party is legally recognized."

They urged the committee call upon "representatives of reactionary organizations," pointing out "that no representatives of the Italian or German Fascist organizations have been summoned nor of the Ku Klux Klan.

Wee City Hospital Inmates Find It's Fun Recuperating

Children's Ward Gay Spot With Games, Jolly Nurses

Dozens of ailing little patients woke up today at City Hospital convinced that a hospital isn't the worst place after all.

At least, the children's ward of Boston City Hospital isn't, for there is a lot more to it than just getting well.

There is fun, with jolly nurses for playmates. They can do all the things they like to at home, right in a hospital cot.

Along with fun and amusement, there also is study for the youngsters whose school work has been interrupted.

MUST STUDY

There are many patients of school age in the children's ward who are not desperately ill. Many are under treatment of dog bites, infections, broken bones and the many other ailments which patient care and time usually heal.

But in the meantime, studies would be totally neglected were it not for the nurses.

Every morning, a wheel table of books is pushed through the wards and books are distributed to the young patients. The nurses know their charges' school grades and daily they learn some new lesson in an effort to keep abreast of their mates who are in school.

For those too young for study, the nurses have many useful forms of recreation. There is drawing, painting and dressing of dolls.

MAKE GOOD STUDENTS

Children in hospitals make good students, strange as it may seem. Nurses report that but a very small percentage of their charges object to a little daily study.

In fact, most of them look forward to the chance to learn something new each day and usually when they return to school, they are not far behind their classes.

Gee! This Is Real Fun!

All is not gloom and suffering in the children's ward at City Hospital by any manner of means. Wee tots who are laid up with accident injuries and minor ailments find cheerful nurses and a variety of games take their minds off their woes. Here Nurse Lucille LaPlante shows little Ruth Campbell, 12, how to draw.

Thalberg Taxes Put at 2 Million

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 18 (INS)—More than half of the $4,469,013 estate left by Irving G. Thalberg, young genius of the motion picture industry, will go to pay taxes and probate costs, it was revealed today.

An inventory of the Thalberg estate was filed in Los Angeles County Probate Court by Norma Shearer, the film executive's widow; Edwin J. Loeb, attorney, and the Bank of America.

Of the deductions, which will cut the net value to $2,244,000, approximately $1,100,000 will go for state and federal estate and inheritance taxes, about $650,000 for income levies and approximately $475,000 for probate and other miscellaneous costs.

Under Thalberg's will the bulk of the net goes into three equal trusts, set up for Miss Shearer and the two Thalberg children.

Florida Fugitive Hearing Held

Former Senator Frank McKeown, assistant secretary to Governor Hurley, today presided at a hearing on extradition proceedings of Forrest Hill, alias Mayor Collins, alleged fugitive from a Florida chain gang.

McKeown was assigned by the governor to conduct the hearing. The governor is attending the New England Council conferences.

Irwin T. Dorch, president of the local branch of National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and Antonio Cardoza were present to defend Hill. Transfer Agent F. W. Wiggins of Florida road department, and Richard Daniels, chief counsel for the road department, were present to press Florida's claim.

Hammer Blows Open Box of Dynamite

SANBORNTON, N. H., Nov. 18 (AP)—Unopened boxes won't be allowed to stand around Selectman Nathan Morse's office in a hurry again.

For 40 years, he reported, a box, supposedly containing records, had been tossed about the office. Then a friend induced the selectman to allow him to open it.

Several healthy blows from a hammer were required to force the lock.

Inside were five sticks of dynamite, complete with caps set—enough to shatter the side of a ledge.

Tax Boost Gives Italy 66-Cent Gas

ROME, Nov. 18 (AP)—The Italian government, furthering its program to raise money for self-sufficiency development of the empire, clapped a 40 per cent increase on the gasoline tax today.

The levy raised the price of gasoline in Rome by 25 per cent, the new figure being 3.32 lire a liter or 66 cents a gallon.

Rogers, Duke's Friend, Tells Of His Love

'Windsors Couldn't Be Happier,' Declares On U. S. Visit

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Herman Livingston Rogers, intimate acquaintances of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, arrived from Europe today professing complete ignorance of the Windsors' plans.

"It may not seem right," said Rogers, "but it is true. We honestly don't know what their plans are."

The Rogers drew the international spotlight when Wallis Simpson fled to their villa at Cannes on the French Riviera just prior to the abdication of King Edward VIII. They previously had been yachting companions of Edward and "Wally."

Rogers, trim, athletic and affable, said he had not seen or heard from the Duke since the former monarch's proposed trip to this country was postponed indefinitely.

"It's too bad," was all he would say about the developments which led to the postponement.

"COULDN'T BE HAPPIER"

He said he had known Charles E. Bedaux, the efficiency engineer who aroused a storm of labor criticism when he came here to arrange for the Duke's tour, for several years, but had had no part in the arrangements.

"We never heard anything about the plans until everything was all arranged," he said.

He crisply denied that he came here as an advance agent for the royal couple.

"Do you think," he was asked, "that they will come over within the next few months?"

"I honestly don't know," he replied.

"Would you consent to act as their guide, or escort, if they should come?"

"That's a question I cannot answer even to myself," he said.

"Are they happy together?"

"They couldn't be happier."

"DUKE NOT IRRITABLE"

"Is the duke genuinely interested in housing problems?"

"He is. He is seriously interested in housing. He thought he could come over here and look around as a private individual."

"Is it true that he has become irritable since his abdication?"

"It is not true. The last time I saw him he was in very good shape, mentally and physically."

"Have you ever noticed any Fascist leanings in him?"

"Not the slightest."

"In the Duchess?"

"Not a bit."

"As a matter of fact, the Duke is a pretty nice fellow?"

Rogers looked at his questioners intently, and said:

"I think so."

Rogers, wealthy Yale graduate who has divided his time between the French Riviera and New York for the last ten years, has been one of the Duke's favorite partners at squash and golf.

"He drives quite a long ball," he said of the Duke's golf. "His game is around the late 70's."

Windsors Get Line In N. Y. Social Register

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—The 1938 edition of the New York Social Register appeared today with "Windsor-Warfield" occupying only one line in the back of the book, under "Marriages of 1937."

Ernest A. Simpson, former husband of the Duchess, was dropped from the book.

In the summer edition, "H. R. H. Duke of Windsor" had been listed under the "W's," and on the next line was "Mrs. Wallis Warfield (Spencer-Simpson)" with the notation, "Married at Monts, France, June 3."

A year ago Simpson's name was listed with the address, "Guards Club, London," and, a few lines below it, "Mrs. Warfield Simpson, Cumberland Terrace, London."

Girl Admits Kidnaping Tale a Hoax

IRENE SCHRAGE

She was late for school—so she went to a movie in Boston. Then she was afraid to go home, and, instead, told police she had been "kidnaped and chloroformed by two men."

That was 15-year-old Irene Schrage's confession today, according to Lieutenant-Inspector Augustine J. Fitzpatrick and Special Officer John L. Powers of Somerville police.

The girl told police yesterday she was chloroformed and kidnaped by two men, held prisoner for hours, finally thrown out of a car into a field in Dedham, her legs bound.

Today, in the presence of her parents, she admitted it all was "just a story." She is a pupil in Somerville high school, found she was late, came to Boston to a movie instead of going to school, she said.

Then she rode out to Forest Hills, took a car to Dedham because "it happened to be the first one that came along," felt ill because she had had no lunch.

She asked a farmer's wife for medical assistance, then made up her story because she "got scared," she confessed.

She lives with her parents in Hudson street, Somerville.

7 Bay Staters Still in Fight Over $877,000

Battle on Estate of "Little Old Lady" Resumes Dec. 20

The five-year struggle for shares in the $877,500 estate of Mrs. Ida E. Wood, New York's "little old lady of Herald Square," today saw the list of 1019 original claimants narrowed to 21, seven of them from Massachusetts.

Surrogate James A. Foley of New York announced that the trial of these claims would resume December 20.

The Bay State relatives still in the fight are Mrs. Catherine J. Sheehan and her brother, Thomas F. O'Donnell of Salem, another brother, Eugene F. O'Donnell, now of Jersey City, N. J., two cousins, Stephen L. Gallagher and Mrs. Winifred McEneaney of Lawrence, Thomas F. Reynolds of Addington road, West Roxbury, and Mark Crawford of Gillette avenue, Springfield.

SEEKING SHARES

Others are William F. Murphy, Providence, and Catherine Kennedy, Bridgeport, Ct. The other 12 prospective heirs are English and Irish.

Mrs. Sheehan and her brothers base their claims on the contention that Mrs. Wood was born in Ireland as Ida Ellen Walsh, whose parents settled in Malden when she was a child.

Although the famous recluse was known as Ida Mayfield before she married Benjamin Wood, publisher of the New York Daily News, Surrogate Foley has ruled out 406 Louisana Mayfields is upholding Mrs. Sheehan's contention.

The Sheehan claim has been upheld in the long fight by decision after decision in the New York courts.

LEGENDARY FIGURE

In the long trial for the Wood fortune, the stories told by witnesses have made the aged woman an almost legendary figure. She died March 12, 1932, in the old Herald Square Hotel, surrounded by trunks of cash, jewelry and old lace and clothes.

Witnesses have told how she used to lean back in a chair, light up a cigar and talk interestingly of Edward VII and Abraham Lincoln. They also told how she once papered her floor with $50 bills and how once she had taken $700,000 in an old paper bag with her on a trip.

In her old age, she refused to bow to modernity and was content with her hotel room and 40 trunks of belongings.

Reporters Spare Life Of Slayer

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 18 (AP)—Brady Laurence, 22-year-old Negro convicted of the murder of a white man, owed his life today to a group of five newspaper reporters, who, acting upon the request of Governor Clyde R. Hoey as an unofficial court of last appeal, decided that his death sentence ought not to be carried out.

The five newspaper men spent two hours studying the records in the case, and voted unanimously in favor of sparing the Negro's life. Paroles Commissioner Edwin M. Gill announced late yesterday that the governor had commuted the sentence.

"Frankly," the governor told the reporters, "I have been studying the case for several months and still haven't been able to reach a definite conclusion. Here are the facts. Your decision will be final. What would you do if you were in my place?"

Laurence was convicted of knifing Clyde Erwin at a Negro gathering near Statesville, May 30, 1936, and was sentenced to die in the gas chamber. He testified he "cut at" Erwin when the latter attacked him with a whiskey bottle.

Governor Hoey's records showed that the presiding judge recommended commutation, while the county sheriff and all members of the jury opposed clemency.

The governor summed it up in the informal court thus:

"Was the murder premeditated or not? That is the question, gentlemen."

The reporters said the file included letters from numerous citizens of the county who were convinced there was no premeditation in the slaying.

70 P. C. of Census Cards Filled Out Wrong

Foreign Population in Lawrence Blamed For Confusion

LAWRENCE, Nov. 18—Extra workers were pressed into service here today after postoffice officials estimated that nearly 70 per cent of 10,200 unemployment census report cards already received here were incorrectly filled out.

A highly cosmopolitan population of the Greater Lawrence area, including men and women of 45 nationalities, was held responsible for the confusion.

With the deadline for filling out cards set for Saturday night, substitute workers immediately were rushed into action. More than 42,000 cards have been distributed in this area, and heaviest registration is expected tomorrow and Saturday.

Supervisor Maurice F. McKenna of the Lawrence postoffice, in charge of the census here, said today:

HELPED REGISTRANTS

"The condition of the reports is attributed to the tremendously cosmopolitan population of this district. Many of the answers have been incomplete, others misunderstood.

"We took the precaution of establishing registration centers throughout the city, with assistants at each to supply and aid in filling out the blanks. In the cards filled out at these centers few errors have been found."

The 20 substitutes put to work today were assigned to lighten the burden of the regular carriers. Because once the blank is filled out it becomes government property, each must be handled by personal contact, requiring a visit to the person who made out the card.

Supervisor McKenna said that in the Social Security questionnaire which the postoffice also handled, the same percentage of wrongly filled out returns were received, but that personal contact was not required and hence forms could be mailed back to the sender for correction.

A deluge of returns due over the next two days adds to the problem. Many textile mills have closed last year. Thousands, made idle then, have only part-time work now, and will be free part of tomorrow and practically all of Saturday. Thus, some 30,000 returns may be made over a 48-hour period.

LETTERS TO ROOSEVELT

Those totally unemployed already have filled out many blanks, aided by the registration centers. The Textile Workers' Organizing Committee, CIO affiliate, whose office is in Essex street near the postoffice, also has had its staff assisting in the work of filling out blanks.

Several personal letters to President Roosevelt, many failures to state age, and personal comments written on the cards, have been most notable among the discrepancies noted.

Lawrence, Methuen and North Andover are included in the Greater Lawrence area.

P. O. Officials Vague On Census Progress

Postal officials here said today that they had no information regarding the progress of the unemployment census in the Boston postal district.

John M. Gleavy, assistant postmaster under Postmaster Peter F. Tague, said that the checkup would not be completed until November 24.

John W. Grady, in charge of another division of the census assignment, stated:

"We do not know what is happening on the census. We have received no reports nor any complaints.

"If any complaints are made, they will not be known here until November 24."

Gleavy gave details regarding the census. He stated:

"There are 47 first class city postoffices in Massachusetts, other than Boston, which take care of their own checkup in the nationwide unemployment census. Second, third and fourth class postoffices under jurisdiction of the Boston Postal District are apart from the 47 other first class postoffices.

"The Boston District itself has 548,000 blanks to check, and from these second, third and fourth-class postoffices there have been 506,000 blanks distributed.

"Since superintendents of the postoffices under the Boston Postal District have been instructed to have their checkups, compiled, here on November 24, we will not have information regarding the returns until then."

Grady said that each person receiving a card has until midnight, November 20, to fill in and return the card, and that information will not be received regarding the census until next week.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18 (INS)—Because G-men found an illicit still, John Jursich lost a 150-acre farm, valued at $18,000, today.

Jursich did not own the still, but his tenant did. So the federal court jury returned a verdict in favor of the government in its condemnation proceedings.

The Brighter Side

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

A spirit that we fear may be severely criticized along Broadway as petty and provincial has developed in Los Angeles. It appears that our big town lammies who have been flocking westward are resented in the metropolis of Southern California.

Damon Runyon

We were afraid something of this kind might occur. Soon after our recent announcement in this very column that many of our lammies were headed westward we got a telegram from Los Angeles from a gentleman who has been a lammie from Bangor, Me., out there so long that he is practically a son, saying:

"Please tell those lammies to move in some other direction. There is scarcely enough business here for the home town boys."

A lammie, as you were informed in that same column, is a lammaster, or fugitive from the law. You were also instructed here that it was the election of Mr. Tom Dewey, as district attorney of New York County that set in motion a veritable parade of lammies out of New York.

Indeed, we have since learned that the roads through Chicago became so thickly congested with lammies headed West a few nights ago, that the Chicago traffic cops had to work overtime to keep the wheels turning.

NO PLACE TO REST

Some of the lammies wanted to stop in Chicago and rest, but the cops handed them folders depicting the glories of the Southern California climate, and no lammie could resist that.

Now the resentment against their presence in Southern California, just as they were getting settled down in their hotel suites for the winter, has suddenly crystallized into the form of a request from the Los Angeles prosecutor's office to Police Commissioner Valentine, asking him to send some of his New York cops out there to assist in dispossessing the big town lammies.

Presumably the Los Angeles prosecutor's office is not acquainted with our lammies, and has a natural hesitancy about asking them to take it on the Jesse Owens out of there without first being properly introduced to them. We can see at once that the Los Angeles prosecutor is a gentleman.

BLIZZARDS FEARED

Mr. Valentine, in helpful spirit, inquired around among his fuzzes, or detectives, if any of them wished to volunteer for service in California, and might have received some acceptances but for a slight misapprehension as to the locality of the place named.

"I'd love to go, chief, one of the elbows, or detectives, said, "if it wasn't so near Alaska. I couldn't stand those blizzards."

"They don't have blizzards in California," said Mr. Valentine, severely. "It's the land of roses, and sunshine, and things."

"Well, I looked it up on the map," the detective said, doubtfully, "and it seems close to me. It's only a foot away from Alaska."

NO VOLUNTEERS

So no one volunteered, though we think Mr. Valentine failed to present the opportunity in its proper light.

We think at least a couple of Mr. Valentine's men would have lunged forward immediately, and that is all the Los Angeles county prosecutor's office could have required for no graver emergency than this.

We understand the office hoped for quite a number of Mr. Valentine's men, but more than two would have been overstaffing. Los Angeles is not large enough as yet to hold two of Mr. Valentine's men that we could name and any considerable number of lammies at the same time.

All Mr. Valentine's men would require would be complete and final authority to deport themselves toward the lammies as circumstances seemed to justify, and a small but compact section of the Los Angeles street cleaning department to follow them around.

FAST WORKERS

However, some of our big town lammies are said to have gone out West pretty fat in funds, and by this time they may have made social connections that would frown on Mr. Valentine's men as uncouth and unworthy characters, so perhaps it is just as well the men remain at home. It is really most surprising how fast lammies can quickly make good social connections wherever they go.

Down in Dade County, Florida, we used to have as a regular winter guest, a Mr. Michael McNamara, known as Mickey Mack, of Mr. Valentine's forces. It was Mr. McNamara's vacation period from the New York force, and he would be engaged by the city of Miami Beach to greet the visiting lammies.

We long had an impression that Mr. McNamara must have studied under the late Houdini, because whenever he spoke to a lammie, the lammie would disappear and be seen no more. We once asked Mr. McNamara, now a lieutenant behind a timber barricade in an uptown police station, if he pronounced some magic incantation over the lammies to make them vanish so suddenly.

"Why, no," said Mr. McNamara. "Not at all. I just breathe one word down the back of their necks. I just say, 'Scrow.'"

Private Builders, U. S. in Clash On Housing

Chamber Delegates Swap Blame on Slump Cause

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (INS)—A conference of federal housing experts and private builders today brought clashing views on the treatment required to nurse the home-construction industry back to health.

The United States Chamber of Commerce called the conference a month ago, about the time President Roosevelt first indicated the administration was counting on a home-building revival to help reverse the general business slump.

Federal experts laid the building paralysis to unsound business practices, while spokesmen for the industry blamed present and projected federal policies.

Stewart McDonald, federal housing administrator, said students of the problem were "forced to admit the new homes market had not been properly exploited, but ruled, rather, by the erratic building characteristic of abnormally prosperous times."

QUESTIONS "MARKET"

McDonald questioned the soundness of estimates that 500,000 to 1,000,000 new houses will be required yearly for 10 years to meet ownership demand. He declared it "quite possible the market is much thinner than we think."

A round-table discussion by local chamber of commerce officials on chamber co-operation to stimulate dwelling construction developed the sharpest anti-administration blast.

Summarizing the discussion, Gerrish Gassaway, secretary, Wilmington, Del., Chamber of Commerce, said government competition, confiscatory taxes and strikes had frightened private capital out of the building field.

PRPOSES ULTIMATUM

Gassaway proposed the conference present Roosevelt an ultimatum, as follows:

"Mr. President, you ask private enterprise to [illegible] —very well. Remove the shackles of confiscatory taxes . . . assure capital entering this program the law's provisions will permit them a credit on losses . . . and stop once for all the destructive shameful shibboleth, 'if you profit, we take it from you—if you lose, it's your loss.'

"Ask labor, Mr. President, to accept the responsibility of assuring the buying public that projects once started will not be delayed by strikes."

WARNS OF WAGE BILL

Fulfillment of these suggestions and abolition of "unsound Greenbelts, Tugwelltowns and PWA apartments," he said, would enable private capital to resume its function "of adequately housing America."

An earlier speaker, E. M. Oettiger, Greensboro, N. C., building contractor, warned that enactment of the administration's wage-hour bill would increase building costs, which the President considers are already too high.

Maintenance of taxes, freight rates and wages at present levels, he asserted, precludes any reduction in building costs.

N. E. Governors All Rally at Hurley's Call

Stand Solidly Behind Bay State's Fight to Aid Shoe Industry

By FREDERICK A. SMITH

Governor Hurley led the fight to save New England's shoe industry today.

He had the five other New England governors solidly behind him in his battle against the invasion of cheap-labor Czechoslovakian shoes under the State Department trade treaty.

"We're with Hurley and Massachusetts 100 per cent," was the pledge of the other governors.

Governor Hurley told the American:

"The peril to our great shoe manufacturing industry due to the reciprocal trade treaty by which Czechoslovakia is seizing the shoe market in the United States is one that concerns all the New England States generally and several of them particularly. For Massachusetts it is a critical situation.

HANDICAPS INDUSTRY

"At a time when eevry effort is needed to stimulate industry and create or maintain employment a handicap is placed on the shoe manufacturers. Two factories in Massachusetts have closed recently and others face the same fate.

"It has been said that, while the preferential treatment of Czechoslovakia in the matter of shoe imports may harm one industry in New England it will benefit all sections, including Massachusetts, in the long run.

"That is a matter for the future to determine. Meanwhile it is the present situation that we must confront.

"That is why all of New nEgland is rallying with us in taking this burden from those local industries which carry thousands on their payrolls and contribute heavily to the revenues of the federal Government."

Assurances of complete accord with Governor Hurley's stand were given by the other five governors present at the conference. Their statements follow:

UNITED FRONT

Governor Lewis O. Barrows of Maine—"There is no justification for placing any handicap on any New England industry at this time. This trade treaty which Secretary Hull has made with Czechoslovakia gives a foreign country a vital advantage over New England shoe manufacturers.

"Our Maine delegation in Congress is united in opposition to the government's action. We, in Maine, are all for co-operation with your Governor Hurley.

"I believe the New England States will put up a united front on this situation and fight it out together."

Governor Francis P. Murphy of New Hampshire—"We are 100 per cent with Governor Hurley and Massachusetts on this question of admitting Czechoslovakian shoes into this country on a basis that permits the mto undersell our own manufacturers.

"The blow is directed at ew Hampshire, as well as at Massachusetts and other New England areas. I shall do whatever I can in co-operation with Governor Hurley."

GOES FURTHER

Governor George D. Aiken of Vermont—"Most certainly I stand for protection of our shoe industry. The threat against our manufacturers goes further than the shoe industry, however.

"Other imports coming in under special favors extended by the government are making new problems. That includes agriculture. I go along with Governor Hurley."

Governor Robert E. Quinn of Rhode Island—"I stand squarely with Governor Hurley on his position against letting a foreign country threaten a great New England industry.

"We have come here to iscuss flood control among other matters. This is another flood that needs controlling. The damage done by spring floods can scarcely be any more disastrous to the New England States than a flood of merchandise into this country which would destroy our shoe market and create widespread loss and unemployment."

GOVERNOR WILBUR L. CROSS OF CONNECTICUT—"We must protect our shoe industry. In doing so we are protecting many thousands of workers and vastly more thousands of women and children dependent on those workers. I am with Governor Hurley."

Public Invited By Red Cross

An announcement from Frederick C. Munroe, executive director of the Boston Metropolitan Chapter of the American Red Cross, was issued today in which the public of greater Boston is cordially invited to visit Chapter headquarters, at 347 Commonwealth avenue tomorrow afternoon, and inspect informally the various activities that are part of the daily work of the local organization.

Director Munroe pointed out that the public is always welcome but on Friday visitors will receive special attention and every one who can come in is urged to do so.

Road Builders Ruin His Cache

Quincy Man Saves Will in Buried Jar

August Holmi, 60, of Isabella street, Quincy, today interrupted workmen building a new road for the Weymouth Asphalt & Concrete Co. to their plant on Vernon street, Quincy.

"If you are going to move that rock, wait a minute," he said.

Then Holmi dug around with a cane, extracted a jar, opened it and showing what appeared to be money inside, closed the lid, put the jar under him arm and walked away. The workmen supposed he had taken a cache of from $1000 to $5000.

"Nothing of the sort," explained Holmi later to a Boston American reporter. "There was no money in the jar. It merely contained valuable papers, including a will, which I wanted no one to see but myself. I buried the jar ten years ago.

Senator Walsh On Dominican Trip

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP)—Senator David I. Walsh (D.) of Massachusetts, who left last week on a trip to the Dominican Republic, will return next week, it was said today at his office.

Officials at the White House and State Department said his trip was not concerned with official matters. Walsh was reported to have sailed at dawn aboard the Dominican transport Presidente Trujillo from Santiago de Cuba, en route to Ciudad Trujillo, capital of the Dominican Republic.

Race Nantucket Crew Man Ashore

The coast guard patrol boat Thetis today was speeding from Nantucket lightship with a member of the lightship's crew, dangerously ill with appendicitis.

pete with their foreign rivals without a 15 per cent wage slash, Fox said:

"The reason we are closing is the union can offer no relief to the manufacturers. If we don't get a 15 per cent cut in wages, I am not going to open by factory again."

JOIN TREATY FIGHT

The conference was expected to pledge allegiance to Massachusetts congressional representatives in the vigorous fight to block the proposed reciprocal trade treaty with Czechoslovakia, approval of which is accepted as the final death blow to the entire industry in New England.

The Massachusetts delegation in Washington has already announced it will demand an immediate hearing before the ways and means committee with the avowed purpose of shelving the treaty, at least until the tariff commission completes its study of production cost differentials in the two countries.

An epoch-making program was to be offered for adoption at today's renewal of the historic New England conference, sponsored by the New England Council.

Delegates were dedicated to a complete re-appraisal of the New England of today and a re-framing of purposes and objectives in terms of 1937 conditions.

AGAINST PROFITS TAX

Before the sound of the gavel called the first assembly to order, the six governors met in executive session and arrayed themselves solidly behind Governor Hurley's demand for revision of the Securities Exchange laws.

This was disclosed by Governor Wilbur L. Cross, of Connecticut, who also announced the chief executives had taken a "decided stand" against the undistributed profits and capital gains taxes.

Opposition to these taxes was advocated by Governor Hurley at the recent meeting of the governors here.

Further support of the Hurley program to relieve business of federal interference came from James W. Hook, president of the New England council, and James Jackson, state chairman for Massachusetts.

WIRE CONGRESSMEN

Jackson said the council is "unanimous in its support of Governor Hurley." His words were seconded by Hook.

The governors, it was learned, had voted to wire their position to New England's representatives in Congress.

Governor Hurley, in his formal address to the session urged the establishment of new industries in New England to reduce unemployment and lessen the burden of relief.

As a means to this end, he commended advertising of New England's industrial advantages in the same way the section's recreational facilities are advertised.

The Massachusetts governor emphasied that within a radius of 350 miles from New England's industrial center there are "included of the nation's total:"

Sixty-four per cent of the savings deposited; 60 per cent of the bank deposits, 41 per cent of the personal income tax returns; 38 per cent of the life insurance sales; 37 per cent of the wholesale trdade; 36 per cent of the industrial prodiction; 34 per cent of the radios owned; 31 per cent of theretail trade; 25 per cent of the population, and only 4 per cent of the area.

Governor Hurley concluded:

"The increased revenue from new industries to state treasuries will strengthen our financial position. The increase of employment will lighten our burden of relief.

"The wages earned by the workers will mean new sales to merchants. There will be additional freight revenue for railroad and steamship lines and trucking services.

"There will be more scales of gasoline and oil. There will be extra work for serving firms of all types.

"And we shall be on the road to achieve the superior economic and social position here in New England which is and should be our by reason of location, climate and citizenship."

APPROVES FLOOD PACT

Approval of New England flood control compacts came from Frederick A. Delano, vice chairman of the national resources committee.

Delano, former chairman of the Federal Reserve Board and head of the New York Regional Plan, said he believed federal approval of the compacts would be required.

He said he offered this opinion "without seeming to be unfriendly."

An address by Governor Wilbur L. Cross, of Connecticut, was eagerly awaited. It was believed he would demand an early agreement between the federal government and the New England states in the matter of flood control compacts.

An assay of present freight rates, condemned by New England business men as adverse to the best interests of the area, was to be presented by Governor Robert E. Quinn, of Rhode Island.

OTHER GOVERNORS

Other chief executives were to speak on the following topics: Governor George D. Aiken, of Vermont, "Rural Development in New England," Governor Lewis E. Barrows, of Maine, "Recreational Development in New England"; Governor Francis P. Murphy, of New Hampshire, "Possibilities of Farm Chemurgy in New England."

Wives'll Lick Depression

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Nobody has repealed the law of supply and demand. So business will continue as usual during alphabetical alterations.

All we hope is nobody tries to Triple-A the department stores by plowing under their customers.

We are entering the six greatest retail buying weeks of the year. The lady shoppers are roving the plains in gigantic herds. They will buy us right out of that depression or whatever it is.

Congress can do its share. But only by being married. It's the wives who will harness the purchasing power to the old gray mare.

We don't need any more laws, we don't need any more conferences and we don't need any more brain trusts. Just give the wife the bankroll and put the carte in front of the blanche.

Czech Shoe Pact Delay Asked

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP)—Three New England representatives asked Chairman Henry F. Grady of the committee for reciprocity information today to delay negotiations of a reciprocal trade agreement with Czecho-Slovakia until completion of wage studies.

Representatives Edith Nourse Rogers, Lowell, Mass.; Clyde M. Smith, Skowhegan, Me., and Arthur B. Jenks, Manchester, N. H., all Republicans, told Grady inclusion of New England's manufactured articles in the agreement would injure "hundreds of industries."

Mrs. Rogers said:

"The issue is the wide wage differential between the United States and Czecho-Slovakia. We can't compete with them."

A treaty including shoes, textiles and leather goods, she added, would benefit only one Czecho-Slovakian firm, the Bata Shoe Company, and would harm "hundreds of American industries."

Line Adds 2 New Ships to Fleet

Agents of the Essco Brodin Line which will inaugurate a direct service from Boston to the River Platte in January, announced today that the line had added two new passenger freighters to its fleet.

The new vessels, both capable of 13 knots are the motorships Astri and Anita. The Astri sailed Tuesday from Holland bound for New York.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Nov. 18 (AP)—The court of appeals today freed Ferenc Szalasu, leader of the Nazi Party of National Will, who was charged with conspiring to establish a Nazi regime in Hungary.

Proposes Bigger Marine Personnel

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP)—Major-General Thomas Holcomb, the commandant, recommended today that the marine corps be increased in strength from 17,000 to more than 20,000 men to keep pace with a growing navy. In his annual report he also proposed a commensurate increase in the number of officers.

U. S., Britain to Sign Reciprocal Trade Pact believe, however, that the British government probably consented to consider granting to some American products treatment equal to that which it now accords to goods from the British dominions under "empire preference."

If an agreement, even in principle, were reached on this point it would be the first time that a foreign nation had broken through the Ottawa agreement of 1932, under which the British Commonwealth of Nations adopted a schedule of preferential tariffs favoring empire products to the disadvantage of outside goods.

SEES PACT ESSENTIAL

Secretary Hull has striven, since his reciprocal trade program started in 1934, to obtain an agreement with Great Britain in the conviction that closer Anglo-American economic co-operation is essential to any general lowering of world trade barriers.

He was represented as believing that more intimate commercial ties betwen the two nations not only would react to their own advantage through freer exchange of goods but would set an example for other nations to join in a general movement to remove or adjust trade restrictive measures.

Apart from the strictly economic aspects, some observers attach potential political significance to the action.

PACT AID TO PEACE

They express the view that it would emphasize the close co-operation already evidenced between the two governments at the Brussels Far Eastern conference and that it would constitute, in effect, an answer from the leading exponents of democratic government to the new alliance between Italy, Germany and Japan.

Hull invited interested persons in the United States to submit suggestions to the State Department as to products that should be considered in the trade negotiations. A formal notice of intention to negotiate, to be issued later, will contain a list of goods on which the United States will consider granting concessions to the United Kingdom. Public hearings will precede the opening of actual negotiations.

4 Months' Deficit 700 Millions

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP)—The federal deficit climbed above the $700,000,000 mark in the first four and a half months of the fiscal year which began July 1, the Treasury statement showed today.

On November 15, expenditures had exceeded income by $702,238,089. To keep within President Roosevelt's Oct. 19 budget estimate for the entire fiscal year, the Treasury must hold the deficit for the next seven and one-half months down to $193,000,000.

Although Senator Byrd (D.) of Virginia has predicted the red ink figure will be much larger than expected, Treasury officials express hope that enough money to verify their figures will pour in during the important tax-paying period next March.

Mayor McCoy, 2 Others Fined

NEW LONDON, Ct., Nov. 18 (INS)—Mayor Thomas P. McCoy, of Pawtucket, R. I., and two of his city officials were found guilty of breach of the peace charges in court today and fined $75 and costs.

Mayor McCoy, James M. Donovan, city clerk, and Joseph Sylvester, superintendent of the Pawtucket city garage, were removed by police from a New Haven to Boston train here on November 6 after railroad authorities reported they were creating a "fuss."

Mayor McCoy (D.), has been the political ally of Walter E. O'Hara, racing baron, in his battle with Rhode Island Governor Robert E. Quinn (D.), over the Massachusetts race track in Pawtucket.

Walter McGuire, attorney for the trio filed a demurrer before Judge Nathan Belcher and announced he would appeal the case to the court of common pleas. Bonds of $200 each were furnished for the men.

Winter Invades All Northern U. S.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18 (AP)—Wintry weather spread snow over most of the northern half of the nation today. Slippery highways impeded motorists in western Pennsylvania. Five inches of snow covered roads in Cambria County, Pa. Montana reported as much as seven feet of snow at highest elevations.

Favor Neutrality Act in China War

Many Groups Ask Congress Press For Action in Secret Pact Expose

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINTON, Nov. 18 (INS)—Demand for invocation of the Neutrality Act against both China and Japan swept the Capitol today as proposals for a national referendum on American participation in future foreign wars gained support.

The neutrality demand came from legislators, World War veterans and peace organizations. It included a brief but violent outburst of debate in the House when Representative Sauthoff (P.) of Wisconsin made a futile effort to secure immediate adoption of a resolution calling for instant invocation of the Neutrality Act.

Two more proposed constitutional amendments, which would give the American people the sole power to vote the United States into a foreign war, were introduced in the Senate by Senator Arthur Capper (R.) of Kansas and Senator Bennett Clark (D.) of Missouri. World War veterans endorsed the proposals, which were similar to several sponsored yesterday in the House and Senate.

URGE NEUTRALITY

These developments came as an aftermath to exclusive revelation of the Balfour document by International News Service. The document, a statement by British Foreign Secretary, Arthur James Balfour, to the British imperial war council in the spring of 1917, revealed how the American people were kept in the dark about secret allied pledges to divide territorial spoils in the World War.

Revelation of the document was cited by legislators, veterans and peace leaders as furnishing a new reason for invoking both the neutrality act in the present Sino-Japanese crisis and in amending the Constitution to give the people themselves the sole right to declare a foreign war.

The neutrality flurry in the House startled administration leaders. Sauthoff offered the resolution and asked unanimous consent for its immediate adoption. Chairman McReynolds (D) of Tenn., of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, blocked action with a shouted objection.

This brought Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr. (R), of New York, to the floor with a vigorous denunciation of the administration for failing to invoke the act. He charged the President with "failure to recognize a war when he sees one."

DEFENDS PRESIDENT

McReynolds rushed to the President's defense. The Tennessean declared the purpose of the act was to keep the United States out of war "and as far as possible that is what the President is doing."

"Does the wholesale murder of Chinese by Japanese constitute a war or a game of ping-pong?" Representative White (R.) of Ohio, interposed.

"That's not the question," McReynolds parried.

"Don't you think the law should be repealed so the President could be spared the charges of non-feasance?" Representative Knutson (R.) of Minnesota, querried.

"No," McReynolds snapped.

The Sauthoff resolution, automatically referred to the foreign affairs committee, read:

"Be it resolved that it is the express wish of the House of Representatives that the President of the United States shall forthwith proclaim that a state of war exists between China and Japan, and that he shall forthwith invoke the provisions of the so-called Neutrality Act."

Later, Fish declared:

"Revelation of the Balfour document shows clearly the need of immediately carrying out the Neutrality Act, as the United States is again in danger of being precipitated into another world conflict to make the world safe for democracy and the British Empire.

"As in the past, this propaganda is insidious, democracy, world order, the interest of civilization and dictatorial governments made an excuse for preparing the U. S. to be the goat."

ASKS VOTE ON WAR

Senator Capper, after introducing his proposal for a national referendum on future foreign wars, told International News Service:

"Disclosure of the Balfour document was a great patriotic service. It proves the Allied governments were fighting, not to save democracy, but to carry out their secret treaties for territorial spoils.

"It supplies a compelling reason for submitting the question of American entry into any foreign war to the American people themselves for a decision.

"I feel sure the American people will never vote to send their sons to Europe or to Asia to engage in a foreign war, after learning what they have from the Balfour document about the last war."

Lord Cecil Seeks U. S. Views on New League

Special to Boston Evening American

NEW YORK, Nov. 18—Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, who was a member of the British imperial war council which heard the Balfour report on secret "land-gram" treaties among the allies in 1917, was reported in dispatches from London today to be interested in discovering whether America is prepared to join a modified League of Nations.

Lord Cecil is a guest in New York at the home of Thomas W. Lamont, member of J. P. Morgan and Company, and last week end called on President Roosevelt at the White House. Asked what matters he discussed with the President, he replied:

"I do not care to discuss what we talked about."

HERE TO TALK PEACE

Lord Cecil, although declining to discuss the subject of his talk with the President, insisted today that his primary purpose here was to talk before American societies about world peace and that he was "not on a mission."

Although not on a formal mission dispatches from London indicated that before leaving England Lord Cecil advised friends and associates that while here he purposed to find out what practical steps the government was ready to take to fulfill the President's Chicago speech on "quarantine" of aggressor nations.

Besides wanting to know that and what the American attitude is on joining a "re-formed league," Lord Cecil was said to desire information whether the administration would be willing to join economic boycotts against aggressor nations or whether there was a plan to modify the neutrality act so the United States would never supply materials to aggressor countries.

SILENT ON PACTS

He was also said to seek information as to whether America is prepared to join a European "pact of appeasement" to which reduction of tariffs would be allied.

Finally he was reported to want to know whether the administration is willing to inspire a recall of the disarmament conference as a move toward taking world leadership for peace.

Cong. Fish Sees Nation Being Made 'Goat' Again

By REP. HAMILTON FISH, JR.
Ranking Republican on House Foreign Affairs Committee

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (INS)—Publication of the Balfour secret document by International News Service was a great service to the American people at this time.

It shows that the United States will always be used by foreign nations for their benefit and to pull their chestnuts out of the fire.

BANK ON U. S. AID

I am a great admirer of Great Britain and British diplomacy. They have seized most of the available territory in the world in the last 100 years and never relinquished a foot of it.

However, through their superb propaganda, they have developed a slogan which is well for every American to remember before becoming involved in any European or Asiatic blood feud or boundary dispute.

It is that the British empire expects every American to do her duty.

MUST NOT BE "GOAT"

The publication of the Balfour document shows clearly the need of immediately carrying out the Neutrality Act, as the United States is again in danger of being precipitated into another world conflict to make the world safe for democracy and the British empire.

As in the past, this propaganda is insidious. Democracy, world order, the interest of civilization and dictatorial governments make an excuse for preparing the United States to be the goat.

France Pays Her Debt —But NOT TO US!

HERE IS REAL news.

France has started to pay her debt, but NOT to the United States.

A cable to the New York Times of November 12 says that, "France will repay the British loan of 40,000,000 pounds ($200,000,000) due in December, Finance Minister Georges Bonnet announced tonight. He stated that it would be paid in full between December 2 and 26."

France owes America something like $4,000,000,000, but when pay-day comes every six months we get a scented note full of politesse and empty of checks.

Mons. Bonnet throws a powerful light on the French financial situation when he says:

"The improvement in France's financial situation permits us to do this, and I am happy to take this occasion to thank the British Government and banks for the assistance they gave the French Government and railways during 1937."

The United States, its banks and its people rendered to France in 1917 a far greater service than England ever did. We saved France from ANNIHILATION.

France is, according to her finance minister, now on her feet.

She ignores, however, the country—America—that did so much to save her during the war and rehabilitate her after the war, but pays her debt to a country—England—that has INVADED HER IN ORDER TO CRUSH HER DOZENS OF TIMES IN THE LAST THOUSAND YEARS and only went to her rescue in 1914 to save her own bacon.

Think THAT over, Americans, before you ever again send our armies and our wealth "Over There" to pull France out of a hole or allow ourselves to be made a cat's-paw in Asia to protect France's loot in China—COCHIN-CHINA and the large hunk of land that she has carved out of Shanghai which she calls the FRENCH SETTLEMENT.

Seize 50 More Machine Guns

By KENNETH T. DOWNS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Paris, Nov. 18—A new raid netted 50 sub-machine guns today as Paris police, cloaking their movements in secrecy, continued their round-up of suspected political agitators.

The new cache was found in the cellar of an antique shop in the Odeon district, and followed seizure of two tons of arms and ammunition in a series of raids last night.

Leftist newspapers emphatically denied any plot against the government was suspected, insisting the various prisoners were accused only of "illegal possession o farms."

It was learned, however, that the Surete Generale is checking a list of 150 names found in seized documents in an effort to trace the source of money used in construction of illegal arsenals and purchase of arms and munitions.

POLICE GUARD BLUM

Two uniformed policemen were stationed today outside the home of former Premier Leon Blum, Leftist leader, but the guard over public buildings was not increased.

The new sensation arose after the French secret police announced they had arrested some half dozen "hooded men" and seized two tons of arms and ammunition in a "secret room" in a drive to end a conspiracy against the safety of the state.

The result left the nation wondering whether there really was a plot, whether the arms were part of a scheme for running guns into Spain, or whether it was another political maneuver in which Leftist officials had found a Rightist group in possession of arms.

DENY CROP OF RUMORS

French authorities were kept busy denying rumors which cropped up with astonishing speed to the effect that guards at government ministries had been increased and that the government feared an attempted "coup" by Rightist orgnizations.

According to reports here, a section of the British press seized upon the affair as an occasion for a reportorial field day, even raising the spectre of possible international ramifications.

ARMS AND HOODS

The London Daily Telegraph's Paris correspondent reported French police, in a series of lightning raids, seized arms and explosives of Italian and German manufacture.

The London Daily Herald said a France-wide hunt was launched for members of the terrorist French order, "Les Cagoulards" (Hooded Ones), an organization sometimes compared to the American Ku Klux Klan.

This same paper, Britain's Laborite organ, also stated the arrests and discoveries indicated plans had been ripening for a sudden widespread uprising, that might have converted France into a second Spain.

Paris in Quibble On Jap 'Threat'

PARIS, Nov. 18 (AP)—The French foreign office and the Japanese embassy formally denied today that France had received an "ultimatum" from Japan to cease transporting war materials to China over the French-owned railroad from Indo-China to Yunnan.

Nevertheless, Senator Henry Berenger, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, who declared in a speech that Japan had "warned" France, still insisted his statement held good, as he had not used the word "ultimatum."

The Japanese embassy said the report that Japan issued an "ultimatum" to France was "denied in the most formal manner by the minister of foreign affairs in Tokyo."

Loyalists Shell Rebel Fronts

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Nov. 18 (AP)—Spanish government forces harassed their insurgent foe with artillery and infantry attacks in upper and lower Aragon today.

A Barcelona communique said insurgent positions at Casa Batanero and San Pedro in the Sabinanigo sector of the northern battle line was heavily shelled while government patrols attacked insurgents along a highway between Teruel and Alcaniz.

Government gunners bombarded insurgent communications between Teruel, the southern tip of the Aragon front, and Zaragoza, the insurgents' principal base.

Apparently the government operations were aimed at disorganizing the prospective insurgent "big eastward. Insurgent headquarters gave no indication of the progress in preparation for the major drive.

Pay Pastors More Cry of Daughters

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (INS)—Daughters of preachers, 60 strong, today went to bat for higher wages for their fathers. The drive was launched here with a resolution adopted by the newly organized Society of the Daughters of Preachers.

Japs Hammer at Kashing To Cut 'Hindenburg Line'

SHANGHAI, Nov. 18 (AP)—Japanese army spokesmen announced that Japanese troops driving to break through China's "Hindenburg" line between Shanghai and Nanking had captured one gate of the walled city of Kashing, southern keystone of the line.

Both Chinese and Japanese reported heavy fighting in the area around Kashing, 60 miles southwest of Shanghai and 30 miles south of Soochow, main point of Chinese defenses.

For 24 hours, Chinese held their own along the length of the defenses to which they retreated after Shanghai fell into Japanese hands, November 9.

Although the Japanese received reinforcements for the new onslaught today, their only advance apparently was on the southern front. They were unable to push forward toward Soochow, along the Shanghai-Nanking Railroad. Fighting desperately, Chinese stood their ground between the Cheni and waiting stations.

Chinese reported their troops, aided by 20 warplanes, had counter-attacked and pushed Japanese back toward Cheni. They also asserted Chinese had repulsed three Japanese atempts to effect a landing at Sushan, 1208 miles downstream from Nanking on the Yangtze.

Nanking technically was still the seat of government, but Chinese senior officials who remained were ready to leave on short notice. The fleeing civilian population almost engulfed columns of soldiers moving in the opposite direction—to the front.

The Chinese government cautioned all civilians whose presence was not necessary for defense or public service to leave Nanking. No definite arrangements had been made for evacuation of United States citizens, but gunboats were on hand to move them upstream to safety if necessary.

Nazis to Close 5 Consulates

MOSCOW, Nov. 18 (AP)—Germany was reported officially today to have agreed to close five consulates in the Soviet Union by January 15 under reciprocal provisions for duplicate representation in the two countries.

Since Russia had consulates only at Hamburg and Koenigsburg, Germany consented to withdraw all but her Kiev and Novosibirsk representatives, it was said. This meant the closing of consulates at Leningrad, Tiflis, Kharkov, Vladivostok and Odessa.

Similar negotiations resulted recently in the closing of the Polish consulates at Kharkov and Tiflis, leaving posts only at Leningrad, Minsk and Kiev. Recognition of the Japanese consulate at Odessa was withdrawn by Russia when Japan recently refused to close it.

Head of Company Kills Wife and Self

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 18 (AP)—Harry Haudenschild, 50, founder of the Airway Electric Appliance Corporation and president of the Air Scale Company, today shot to death his wife, Luella, 48, and then killed himself.

A note tied to the door of the home of a neighbor, signed "Lou and Harry," declared they were "worn out fighting to save our home. We have decided to end it all."

Testifies Curley Asked for 'Fee'

Graves, Surprise Witness, Says They "Discussed $40,000"

the present suit attempted to bar Graves from the stand, on the ground that both sides already had rested and Graves was not an acceptable rebuttal witness.

Judge Frederick W. Fosdick allowed Graves to testify, but commented:

"The court can't help feeling a very obvious tack has been taken by the city to get evidence in through the back door.

"The case is obviously being tried to the people in the newspapers and not to the court.

"This witness was not supposed to be any nearer than San Francisco.

TALKS ABOUT $40,000

"The court is not yet informed why this witness was not put on the witness stand in the chief testimony."

Graves testified that in his claimed conversation with Curley in the Washington hostelry, Graves had "suggested" $40,000 to the former mayor in connection with the General Equipment suit.

When Graves told Santosuosso of this "suggestion," it was testified by the witness, "Santosuosso said I should not have mentioned so much and that I was taking too much on my shoulders."

The city charges in the suit that Curley and Santosuosso illegally profited out of the General Equipment settlement.

Throngs began to gather again in the courthouse corridors when Frederick H. Graves was suddenly called by Edward P. McClennen, special counsel for the city.

SIGNED AFFIDAVIT

An excited stir went through the courtroom, but many were skeptical because there had been a false alarm yesterday when the name Graves was called and the new witness proved to be a cousin, Ralph Graves, Treasury Department executive from Washington.

Frederick Graves, at the start of his testimony today, said he is the man who signed the affidavit on which the suit is based. McClennan questioned:

Q—Testimony has been introduced here, through a stenographer of the Boston Finance Commission, to the effect that about the end of August, or early part of September, 1934, you testified that you took $30,000 cash proceeds of a $30,000 check, to New York. Was that testimony true?

Wendell P. Murray, counsel for Curley, interrupted to ask, "What testimony," and McClennon retorted that it was apparent Graves' testimony was referred to. Graves then replied:

"No, sir."

Q—It also appears in the same way that you testified before the Finance Commission that you did not see Mayor Curley. Is that true? A—That is not true.

Q—There was testimony before the Finance Commission from you, shown in the same way, that you had not been to Washington. Was that testimony of yours before the Finance Commission true? A—No.

Q—Before giving that testimony before the Finance Commission did you talk with the defendant Santosuosso with respect to your testimony to be given? A—Yes.

Graves, short and stocky, middle-aged, with ruddy cheeks and white hair, held close attention of the courtroom as he testified.

Under cross-examination, Frederick Graves admitted that most of his testimony before the Finance Commission was false.

MADE 3 AFFIDAVITS

He agreed with Defense Counsel Murray that as a traveling salesman he (Graves) had no permanent place of residence. He was born in Lynn and lived there for 20 years, he said, and at one time worked in Fitchburg.

Graves also said he had made three affidavits in all in connection with the General Equipment Corporation case, and that one was made for Stuart T. Rand of the law firm of Choate, Hall and Stuart.

Q.—(By Attorney Murray—Did you know that they were counsel for the Boston Herald? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you know that Curley had a suit against the Herald? A.—No, sir.

Graves denied that he told a Harold W. Hall of California that he (Graves) had received 50,000 for the affidavit, but said he knew Hall had a claim against him in a matter of money.

One affidavit of the three, Graves testified, was made in St. Louis for Attorney Rand and for Harold Osborn, general manager of the United Shoe Machinery Co.

TELLS OF PAYMENTS

Asked what this affidavit had cost the two men, Graves declared the sum to be $100, "the expense of waiting in St. Louis for them."

He received $600 in California "for my time" and $300 in expenses for making the affidavit now an exhibit in the present trial. He also received $100 to come East from St. Louis to testify today, according to his own statement on the stand.

Earlier in today's session, his cousin Ralph had completed his testimony and said he had talked with Frederick and with Attorney McClennen over the same telephone yesterday morning. They were in Boston, while Ralph Graves was in Washington, he said.

"When did you first know it was desired that you testify?" Ralph was asked by Attorney Murray in cross-examination, and he replied:

"Yesterday, a little after 9."

Q—In what way did you learn? A—By telephone call from Boston.

IT WAS NEWS TO HIM

Q—With whom did you talk? A—I talked with Fred Graves.

Q—Did you know where he then was? A—No.

Q—Have you known of the bringing of this proceeding before yesterday morning? A—No.

Q—You didn't hear of the case? A—No.

Q—So you had no occasion to consider or recall what took place as long ago as 1933, between that date and yesterday? A—No.

Q—Who arranged for your transportation? A—Mr. McClennen said he would pay my expenses.

Q—Did McClennen and Graves appear to be in each other's presence? A—They spoke on the same telephone call.

Q—Was it a local or a long-distance call? A—Long-distance.

SAW HIM IN SPRING

Q—Was anything said about compensation to you for leaving your duties in Washington? A—No, sir.

Q—When you came here, did you meet Frederick Graves? A—No, sir.

Q—When did you last see him before yesterday? A—One evening in a restaurant in Washington early in the spring.

Q—Did you know he was in Washington two months ago? A—No.

When Ralph Graves had completed his testimony, Attorney Murray moved that it all be stricken out. The motion was denied, however, by Judge Frederick W. Fosdick, who is hearing the case in jury-waived session.

Following Ralph Graves on the stand today, and preceding the surprise calling of Frederick Graves, the city placed Charles F. Newell, teller at the Old Colony Trust Company, on the stand.

HAD $85,000 CHECK

Newell testified that in November, 1933, Santosuosso presented an $85,000 check at the bank, made out by the city of Boston to Santosuosso.

"Santosuosso asked me," the bank teller said, "if he could draw against it. I told him to wait until the check cleared and to come back. I next saw him about 1:30, about three hours after he first came."

Q—Was anything said on the first occasion about getting the cash? A—I don't think so.

Q—On the next occasion that day, did the defendant again come to your window? A—He came with a $30,000 check. Someone else was with him.

Q—What was the conversation? A—I asked him how he would like the money. He said in large bills.

Bank Teller Newell was taken in cross-examination by Professor Frank L. Simpson, counsel for Santosuosso.

"DIDN'T GIVE GRAVES MONEY"

"Didn't you tell Santosuosso, in the presence of Cohen, that you paid the money to Graves?" Simpson asked the witness.

"I don't think I did," Newell replied.

(Cohen is Attorney George I. Cohen, who has an office in the same suite with Santosuosso.)

Q—Will you say you didn't? A.—I didn't.

Q—Didn't you say to me that you paid the money to Graves and you didn't see what he did with it? A—I don't think I did.

Q—Didn't you say to me that you paid the money to Graves? A—I did not.

Q—Have you talked this matter over with anyone? A—I talked it over with officers of the bank.

Tap Dance Queen Still Fancy Free

(Copyright, 1937.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 18 (INS)—All Hollywood thought it was serious this time, but Eleanor Powell said that her reported romance with Wayne Morris is just like the others—mainly talk.

The tap-dancing star, who has been rumored engaged to Abe Lyman, the orchestra leader, James Stewart, fellow player on the M-G-M lot, and to a South American millionaire, informed reporters that she is still fancy free.

"Sure I've been seeing something of Wayne Morris," she declared. "He's a nice boy . . . but that's what he is, practically a boy. He is too young to be getting serious and, as for me, I'm too busy."

Since January first, Eleanor added, she's had only 17 days off.

Floridan Denies Jail Brutality

Counsel for the state of Florida today at a State House extradition hearing sharply contradicted testimony given by an escaped convict regarding treatment of prisoners there.

Richard B. Daniels, chief counsel for Florida's road department, said that Florida was not as anxious to arrange the return of Forrest Hill, alias Mayo Collins, as it was to correct any impression that the state gave its prisoners inhuman treatment.

Former Senator Frank McKeown, assistant secretary to Gov. Hurley, presided at the hearing in the absence of the governor, who was at a New England Council meeting.

"If the people of Massachusetts feel they would rather have this bol as a citizen than return him to us, well and good," said Daniels. "But the people of Florida want to correct the impression given by this escaped convict that prisoners are forced to wear ball and chain."

Florida is seeking to extradite Hill to serve the remainder of a 10-year jail term for assault and battery and armed robbery.

Tobin Campaign Gifts $3250

Listing contributions totaling $5250, and expenditures totaling totaling $2782, Mayor-elect Maurice J. Tobin filed his campaign expense account with the city clerk today.

Four $500 contributions are listed—one each from James Tobin and Timothy Tobin, brothers of the mayor-elect ;one from William A. Gaston; one from Andrew Dazzi.

Other contributions reported include: "Twenty Girls," $100; Joseph E. McManus, Frank Long, Anna M. Rogan, Michael Tobin, John J. Shields, Joseph McDonald, "The Shea Family," $100 each; Frank Marshall and William F. Graham, $75 each; John Kewer, Charles McCarron, Eugene Hudson and Fred Finnegan, $50 each.

King Leopold Saves Aged Man in Fall

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP)—Visiting King Leopold of the Belgians moved a quick hand today to save 71-year-old A. Gippett from a bad fall. Gippett, one of 15 elderly workers in a leather factory given medals by Leopold, stumbled while ascending the steps to the King's dais. The monarch reached down swiftly, helped him up and asked if he were all right.

Pay Cuts Loom For 165 in Tax Office

Long Is Powerless to Avert Slash; All Is Used Up

With 26 assessors and deputies already off the State Income Tax Division payroll since October 8, for lack of funds, the Boston Evening American learned today that 165 other division workers will take a forced salary cut for the balance of November.

The salary cuts, it is understood, will be from 7 to 8 per cent and will continue in effect until the start of the new state fiscal year, December 1.

These cuts, the Evening American learned, will reduce the expected deficit in the income tax division budget for the present year to between $3500 and $4000.

CUT 26 OFF ROLL

Facing an overdraw of approximately $15,000—even if the added money for payroll could be obtained, which, as was ultimately ruled, it could not—State Commissioner of Taxation and Corporations Henry F. Long was forced to lop 26 of the workers off the payroll last October 8.

All 26, it was almost instantly pointed out, were persons appointed to the income tax division by Governor Curley in the dying days of his administration, among the appointees being Alfred Smith, one of Curley's secretaries.

No provision had been made for these extra workers in the income tax division budget and when the budget money began to get low it was a matter of either reducing salaries of all workers or lopping the newcomers off the payroll until the new budget was available December 1.

WORKING FOR "HOPE"

Since October 8, therefore, the 26 have been working without pay and hoping they would not be dropped entirely, under a ruling that a person who remains off the payroll for an entire calendar month is automatically out.

The employes whose salaries were halted are hoping their names would be placed on the November payroll for even one day, which would keep them eligible to return to the payroll after the first of next month.

Employes of the division, after learning of the intended cut, protested to Commissioner Long, but were informed it was impossible for the department to obtain further funds.

DEVER GIVES RULING

Complaints made by the civil service employes, to the effect that they were exempt from pay cuts under the civil service law, excepting by an act of the governor, were told by Attorney General Paul A. Dever that they had no recourse in Long's action.

George Murphy, state comptroller, said the only thing his department does is to see that enough money is in Long's budget to meet his payroll.

From an authoritative source it was learned Commissioner Long had been warned several months ago that his appropriation would not hold out and certain employes should be dropped from the payroll.

Long, however, has given each of the 26 Curley appointees who were dropped for the month of November, one day's pay, so that their names would be eligible for reinstatement.

5 of Ct. Hospital Fugitives Caught

NORWICH, Conn., Nov. 18 (AP)—Only one of six inmates who escaped from the State Hospital here remained at large today as police centered their search for him in the vicinity of Moosup and eastward to the Rhode Island line.

Two of the escaped inmates fell into police hands during the night. They were Joseph Kuzyk, 25, of Rockville, taken into custody in Plainfield, and John B. Perry, 28, of New Haven, overpowered by guards near the institution.

17,500 Idle as Sitters Hold Detroit Auto Plant

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 18 (AP)—The third General Motors Corporation sit-down strike in three days threw 17,500 workers into idleness here today and the local plant of the Fisher Body Company again was held by strikers.

Although the two previous interruptions were short-lived there were some indications that the present tie-up might continue longer.

Estimates of the number of men holding the Fisher Body plant ranged from 75 to 800. Control of the plant was assumed yesterday when the night shift went on duty.

BLAMES SUPERIORS

George Method, chairman of the Fisher Body bargaining committee chosen to negotiate with the management on Monday's sit-down, issued the following statement today:

"Tactics used by plant supervisors were responsible for the revolt and the stoppage of production Wednesday. Employes reluctantly agreed to resume work pending negotiations of existing grievances.

"When the parley with the management started Wednesday morning they learned of the dismissal of four men. The incoming night shift refused to work because of loyalty to their leaders and because they believed these men had been unfairly treated."

ONE OF FOUR SUSPENDED

Method was one of four men suspended by the management as a result of the sit-down which ended Tuesday.

Because of the second Fisher sit-down here, the Pontiac Motor Car Company, which employes 10,000, announced it would be closed until Monday. The Fisher plant normally employes 7500.

'Air Widower' Seeks Divorce

Offers Flying Wife Plane for Decree

CHICAGO, Nov. 18 (AP)—Willard H. Anderson, a private pilot, complained in a divorce bill on file in superior court today that after he taught his wife, Opal, 29, to fly she was up in a plane so much he became an air widower.

Instead of staying home to cook, according to the bill, the wife spent her time at the Ashburn airport, or flying about the country in "Betsy," the family plane.

Anderson said he was willing to give her the plane in return for a divorce.

Freighter Sinks After Blast

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP)—Lloyd's, the underwriting agency, reported that an explosion in the hold of the Italian freighter Boccaccio sank the 3027-ton vessel in the English Channel today.

The crew took to lifeboats and all apparently were saved, Lloyd's said.

The British freighter Burnham had relayed to the Land's End radio station a message from the Boccaccio, giving the Italian ship's position and adding "please send assistance."

The Dutch motor vessel Tajandoem later wirelessed that it had reached the Boccaccio and that "the men are in boats."

Donnelly's Auto Thieves' No. 28

Representing the 26th car which has been taken from the Back Bay section since November 1, the auto of Colonel Edward C. Donnelly, son-in-law of former Governor James M. Curley, was stolen last night from in front of its owner's apartment house at 63 Commonwealth avenue.

If it shares the fate of most of the other stolen cars, it will be found stripped and abandoned in Chelsea, South Boston, Natick or Revere. It bore license number 176.

Recent vigorous complaints by insurance companies that thefts were increasing in the Back Bay district led to organization of a special police squad.

A number of cars have been stolen by "joy riders."

Moriarty to Rule On Job Denied Man

Commissioner of Labor James T. Moriarty today promised a decision within a week in the first case brought in Massachusetts under a law prohibiting discrimination in employment of persons over 45 years of age.

The complainant, unidentified, charged he had answered an advertisement of the Boston branch of a national concern, but had been refused the job because he was "too old." The company contended the job did not exist.

HUMAN PROBLEM NO. 41 APPEARS IN TOMORROW'S BOSTON AMERICAN

Senate Filibuster End Seen at Hand

Committee Agrees to Farm Control Legislation, Deal Program First Step

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—Apparent agreement in the Senate agriculture committee on farm control legislation brought promise today of a break in the aimless debate which has dominated the first four days of the special congressional session.

Senator Bailey (D.) of North Carolina carried on the Southern filibuster against anti-lynching legislation in the Senate.

But Chairman Smith (D. of South Carolina told reporters an "ever-normal granary" farm bill—patterened after administration recommendations—would be ready Monday to displace the lynching measure.

Fulfillment of this prediction would bring before the special session, one week after convening, the first of a four-point program recommended by President Roosevelt — farm, wage-hour, regional planning and executive reorganization legislation.

SEEK WEEK-END RECESS

Smith announced he would confer with Majority Leader Barkley in an attempt to recess the Senate until Monday, to permit senators conducting the anti-lynching filibuster to sit in on the closing phases of the bill's drafting.

Smith said the general provisions of the bill will call for the "ever-normal granary," voluntary production control, and mandatory marketing agreements on most agricultural commodities.

A House tax subcommittee talked of—but did not agree finally—granting all corporations some exemptions from the undistributed profits tax which has been assailed by business.

The House itself settled into another day of political oratory.

RAYBURN, SNELL CLASH

In a brush between Republican and Democratic chieftains at the start of the session, Majority Leader Rayburn (D.) of Texas expressed his hope that the House, too, would have a farm bill ready Monday.

"We've been working on hope deferred too long," Minority Leader Snell (D.) of New York) retorted.

The tax discussion in the House subcommittee turned on a proposed general exemption from part of the undistributed profits tax to encourage factory expansion, with indications that the method will be adopted.

The plan, Treasury experts told the subcommittee, would be easier to supervise than a specific plant expansion provision.

Having already agreed to exempt corporations earning $5000 or less from the profits tax, the sub-committee worked on plans to relieve corporations with greater earnings.

FAVOR PARTIAL EXEMPTION

Partial exemption for corporations earning up to $50,000 and $100,000 a year appeared to be favored by some members, although Chairman Vinson (D.) of Kentucky of the sub-committee said that an exemption "reaching to the top" was studied.

Sharp loss of revenue which would result from the exemption troubled the sub-committee. Complete Treasury estimates were lacking, it was said.

The house tax sub-committee yesterday agreed upon an extensive revision of the capital gains and loss provisions.

Under this plan, capital gains are segregated for taxation with a rate of 40 per cent. Because of the fact that only part of the capital gains is taxable after the first year, however, the effective rate is far less than 40 per cent. In the case of sale of capital assets held for over five years, the maximum tax rate is but 16 per cent. This compared with a 12½ per cent rate under the Mellon Treasury regime.

The House agricultural subcommittee on wheat, by a four-two vote, today approved the marketing quotas and penalty provisions for wheat for incorporation into the House farm bill.

At the same time, the group voted to recommend imposition of a processing tax on flour to raise $100,000,000 additional revenue annually.

The committee's action was subject to approval by the full committee.

Lewis, Green Urged To Take Wage Bill Stand

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (INS)—John L. Lewis, CIO head, and President William Green of the American Federation of Labor have been requested by Chairman Mary T. Norton of the House Labor Committee to take a stand on the controversial wage-hour bill.

Mrs. Norton announced she made the request in letters to both labor leaders, and to Secretary of Labor Perkins.

"This was done because of the great conflict of opinion which seems to exist with regard to their stands on this matter," the labor committee chairman said.

Green and Lewis gave qualified endorsement to the measure early in the last session of Congress, but have criticized it since. Miss Perkins, a week ago, said that she had amendments for the bill she wished to propose.

Meanwhile, House protagonists and opponents of the measure battled over a petition to discharge the bill from the rules committee. Today 105 signatures had been secured to the petition, introduced by Mrs. Norton, but 218 signatures are needed. Among the signers were 12 New England representatives.

Mother Finds Her Baby Dead

Child Strangles in His Crib in Haverhill

HAVERHILL, Nov. 18—Roger Lewis Hass, nine-months-old son of Mrs. Helen P. Woodsum, 21, 32 Harrison street, was found dead today in his crib by his mother. He was a victim of accidental strangulation, according to the medical examiner, Dr. John L. O'Toole.

A thin cord in the baby's nightie had become twisted around his neck as he rolled in his sleep, the medical examiner declared.

The mother, who slept in the same room with another child, Evelyn, 3, said she awoke about 2 a. m. and the baby was all right then.

"I heard a funny noise about 4:30 a. m.," she said, "and awoke again. The light bulb had burned out and in the darkness I reached into the crib and pulled some covers from around the baby's neck.

"I think he was all right then.

Mrs. Woodsum's mother, Mrs. Luetta B. Parshley, who lives with the family, called police. Bed covers for the baby consisted of three blankets and two women's cloaks, police said.

Frightened Deer Thrills Taunton

TAUNTON, Nov. 18—A frightened deer gave onlookers and employes of a Broadway refrigerator company a thrill today as it wrecked three large windows before it saw the road to the great open spaces.

The terrified deer went through a plateglass window into the store, kept moving in high, and then crashed out a side window. Pivoting like a Clint Frank in a broken field, the deer jumped back through the side window then smashed its third window, hotfooted to open country and freedom.

Burned by Comb, Wants $30,000

A flareup of flames and smoke from celluloid wave set combs she was using to wave her hair near a lighted lamp caused her painful injuries and almost death by suffocation, Mrs. Adeline F. Newton, retired bridge teacher of Euston street, Brookline, told Judge Hugh D. McLellan and a jury in United States Court today.

She is suing the F. W. Woolworth Company for $30,000 damages, claiming she bought the wave set combs at one of its 5 and 10 cent stores. Her daughter, Helen C. Newton, testified she found her mother gasping for breath in the smoke-filled room.

"Mother's eyebrows and eyelashes were burned away," she said, "and when I got into the room she collapsed."

Edison's Early Tools for Sale

First Light 'Plant' Auctioned Dec. 22

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18 (AP)—Two generators and an unwieldly engine, the equipment Thomas A. Edison used 54 years ago to introduce commercial electricity to a skeptical world, will go on the auction block December 22.

Franklin Institute, where the relic has been exhibited since 1933, announced today it would be one of the bidders.

The pioneer electric plant was placed on sale to settle the estate of Philip Brackley Shaw, who provided financial backing to try out Edison's weird new light without flame.

The switch that started a revolution in lighting was closed on July 4, 1883. Success was instant.

Firemen Treated As Smoke Victims

District Fire Chief James A. Gagen and Captain William B. Coughlin of Engine 46 today were held for treatment at Boston City Hospital after being overcome while fighting a fire at the Yuman Tobacco Company, 1132 Blue Hill avenue, Mattapan.

Heavy fumes of burning tobacco felled the two fire officials and resulted in their being held at the hospital for complete recovery. The blaze caused $4000 damage.

His Killer Freed

This is Henry Rousseau, 2, of Lowell, killed by the automobile of a drunken driver, Joseph F. Curry, of Lowell, who was cleared by the court of a manslaughter charge because he was too intoxicated to know what he was doing. The baby's father was also killed. Curry was given a suspended sentence and a fine by Judge John E. Swift, and his license was permanently suspended by Registrar Goodwin.

tives for legislation to define manslaughter.

The widow and mother of the two automobile victims told the Boston Evening American that "it is too bad for him (Curry) but it is much worse for me that my whole life is ruined."

Deputy Police Superintendent William L. Keegan of Lowell, who prosecuted the case against Curry in district court, where the latter was held for the grand jury, characterized Judge Swift's decision as "very discouraging to police."

BARRED FOR LIFE

Reached by telephone at Providence, R. I., where he is attending the Eastern Conference of Motor Vehicle Administrators, Registrar Goodwin declined to comment on Judge Swift's decision because he was "not fully acquainted with the evidence as presented in court" but he added:

"I took his license away and he'll never drive agin!

"There was some talk to the effect that this man did not have the will to kill, but he did have the will to drink and the will to drive an automobile and somebody was killed.

"Consequently he will never again be given the right to drive as long as I am registrir."

ATTACKS DECISION

In filing his petition, Representative Sawyer said:

"I think that Judge Swift is astray in his construction, both of the evidence and the law.

"The evidence appears to have shown that Curry knew enough to know where women friends lived and to drive almost direct to the house for them after the accident. Thus, it would appear that his mind was sufficiently clear to know what he was doing.

"As for Judge Swift's construction of the law, I have always understood that to plead drunkenness was no excuse, and if we follow the judge's reasoning it would appear difficult to hold a man for any crime when he was too drunk to know what he was doing.

"But, assuming that Judge Swift is right and to prevent another such miscarriage of justice, legislation should define manslaughter, and I am filing a bill asking for such action."

Said Deputy Superintendent Keegan:

"I cannot see how a man who got himself in a condition that he was so drunk he didn't know what he was doing could be anything but wanton and wilful," Keegan said.

"It seems rather tough to find that a man is fined only $400 after his negligence, wantoness and wilfulness caused the death of two people.

"The least the judge could have done would have been to make one of those six-month suspended sentences a direct sentence."

WIDOW ANGRY

According to the police, Curry was arrested shortly after his car struck and killed Henry Rousseau, 25, of Melvin street, Lowell, and his son, Henry, Jr., August 7, in Lowell.

Also injured in the accident was Mrs. Henry Rousseau, who is still under the care of a physician.

Informed of the court's decision in the case, the bereaved young woman told the Boston Evening American at her Cheever street, Lowell, home today:

"It's terrible that a man can kill two people and only have to pay $400 in fines.

"I never saw that man, but if I do I'll fix him. No, no, I don't mean that!

"I feel that it is too bad for him, but it is much worse for me that my whole life is ruined.

"We would have been married four years next month and our baby was two years old. I guess we were too happy and I lost a wonderful hubby and baby.

"It was God's will and I can only pray for them and try to live myself."

Curry did not take the stand during the hearing and offered no defense. In announcing his decision Judge Swift said:

"There is no question that Curry was drunk. Because he drove while drunk, very little evidence is required to prove driving so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public.

"But to be guilty of leaving the scene of an accident, the driver must have left knowingly. He must know what he is doing at the time.

MUST BE WILFUL

"Manslaughter must result from wilful, wanton and reckless conduct. If Curry was so drunk that he could not formulate his will, can it be said that he is guilty of being wilful, wanton and reckless?

"His mind was not clear enough to appreciate wha: he was doing, and therefore he is not guilty of the charges of manslaughter."

Testimony during the trial showed that Curry went to the home of a woman near the accident after he had run down the Rousseaus and asked her and another woman to go for a ride.

Turn Kidnapers Over to U. S.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 18 (AP)—While dozens of police scoured Syracuse on a hunt for Percy (Angel Face) Geary today, preparations were made for the transfer to the Albany County Jail of John Oley and Harold Crowley, two other convicted kidnapers of John J. O'Connell, Jr., of Albany, recaptured after a prison break.

District Attorney William C. Martin said Federal Judge Frederick H. Bryant had granted an order for transfer of the pair and that they would be "turned over to Federal agents for transportation whenever the agents were ready to make the move."

Charge Durant Assets Now Only $59.76

4 Million Bond Issue Commission Put At 20 Per Cent

Although The Durant, Inc., planned to float a $4,000,000 bond issue to finance construction of a 15-story building in the Back Bay, the organization has only $59.76 in cash in its treasury, it was charged today at a hearing before the securities division of the Department of Public Utilities.

The charge was made by Edward Moloney, acting chief inspector of the securities division, during the opening of the hearing at the Public Works Building on Nashua street.

Details of the proposed bond issue are under investigation by state authorities.

OFFICIALS SUMMONED

Officials of the Durant, Inc., incorporated in 1921 as a charitable, benevolent and literary institution for women, and Durant Campaigns, Inc., the latter a fund-raising affoliate of the former, were summoned to appear at today's hearing.

Grounds for the investigation were based on the allegation that salesmen and executives of the fund-raising corporsiton would be paid 20 per cent or $800,000 in commissions of the $4,000,000 bond issue.

Sitting as presiding officer, John H. Backus, director of the securities division, at the outset denied the request of counsel for The Durant, Inc., for a continuance of one week.

DIDN'T KNOW OFFICERS

The name of Charles K. Bush, self-styled organizer of the campaign to raise funds for the proposed new building for women, to be erected in Huntington avenue, was mentioned during the testimony of Miss Florence B. Child, president of The Durant, Inc.

She testified that at the time Durant Campaigns, Inc., was form ed,she didn't know any of the officers.

No names were mentioned," she said.

At the time the investigation was announced, two days ago, it was also disclosed that the officers of the organization had since resigned.

Miss Child said she met Bush at her summer home in New Hampshire through a man, Roscoe Estes, who was working with her in formulating plans for the construction of the building.

Answering Moloney's assertion that Bush was under indictment in New York on a larceny charge involving a stock transaction, Miss Child testified she didn't know of "Bush's trouble" in New York until the investigation opened here.

IMPRESSED BY PROMOTION

She said that she had heard that Bush organized the sale of $12,000,000 in bonds to finance construction of the Roxy Theater in New York and that she was "impressed by his ability as a sales promoter."

"We were not planning to pay the 20 per cent commision," Miss Child testified. "We were really to pay les, but did not know exactly how much it would cost to float the bonds.

"Ten per cent was to be paid salesmen and 10 per cent to sales executives, but we expected to cut the second 10 per cent."

$5000 SALARY

Miss Child also testified that she didn't know whether Bush received a salary from Durant Campaigns, Inc.

She said her salary as president of The Durant, Inc., was $5000 annually and that she received it for several years but couldn't remember whe nshe last was paid.

Mis Child testified that the organization oved her money.

"Was that your sole support?" naked Backus."

"Yes," was the reply.

Insurance War Risk Rates Down

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP)—British marine insurance underwriters made sharp reductions today in war risk rates on shipping both to the Orient and to the Western Mediterranean.

The reduction was believed due to transfer of Chinese-Japanese hostilities away from the Shanghai area and the virtual end of "piracy" in the Mediterranean accompanied by an easier political situation in Europe.

Held in Bomb Plot

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 18 (INS)—Richard S. Kaplan, 40, accused of threatening to bomb the Pan-Pacific auditorium, today was held under $10,000 bond on a charge of attempted extortion.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Come, Big Hearts Spread Yule Joy!

Merry Christmas!

This is not a greeting, because it is much too early. It is a prayer.

It is a prayer in behalf of hungry kids and jobless men and discouraged mothers.

Merry Christmas—please—for them!

With little more than five weeks to go, appeals for Christmas dinners, for clothing—the bare necessities of life—are deluging the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser Christmas Basket Fund.

LITTLE GIRL'S PLEA

Send in your contributions NOW—TODAY. Don't wait for that Night Before Christmas benign spirit to warm your hearts, because then it will be too late.

Here is one letter of appeal, ground from the heart of a little girl in Charlestown.

"I am a girl of 14 yrs. old. I am in the 8 grade, I am sending this letter to let you know I will appreciate your kindness very much if you would please send us a Christmas basket.

There is 11 in the family.

"As my father is doing odd jobs, he earns 50 cents and sometime a $1 and we could not buy a Christmas dinner on that.

"I am in need of a winter coat very bad, as I have to wear my summer coat and it is very cold."

WHY NOT HELP OUT?

There are so many people who, never having known the scourge of grinding poverty, the chill of a bare home that wracks to the bone, cannot realize that such conditions exist.

It would be a revelation if these people could be along when Christmas baskets are being delivered in these pitiful homes.

In the next two weeks, some $320,000,000 will be paid out by banks and organizations to Christmas Club members.

Of this total, about $28,000,000 will go to Christmas Club members in Massachusetts. Naturally Greater Bostonians will receive a large slice of these savings.

Why not pare off a bit toward feeding the hungry on Christmas Day? Why not send that bit to the Christmas Basket Fund—NOW? Address them to the Christmas Basket Fund Editor, Boston Evening American, 13 Otis street, Boston.

This address is practically in Winthrop square, adjoining the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser building. The fund offices are one flight up.

In connection with applications for baskets—which should be addressed the same way—applicants are instructed to obtain the endorsement of their priest, minister, rabbi, children's school teacher or family doctor.

It is almost inconceivable that any but the needy and deserving would try to obtain baskets, thus depriving the hungry of food, but such things happen, and thus the editor asks that applicants get the endorsements.

Applicants should also write their names and addresses plainly and they should be sure to include the number of persons in the family. This is most important.

Find Mother of 2 Overcome by Gas

Her husband, Andrew, found her lying on the floor in a semi-conscious condition.

Dickstein Lists 'Hitler Men'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP)— Representative Dickstein (D.), New York, listed in the Congressional Record today the names of 116 Southern Californians he said were leaders in a "Hitler movement" on the West Coast.

He described them as "100-per cent Nazis," and said they "work up and down the West Coast" as "public speakers and agitators" in "co-operation with the West Coast 'Bund' leader, Herman Schwinn."

Schwinn, Dickstein said, "is directly under orders" from German Consul General von Killinger in San Francisco.

Anne Capper, Nancy Newell Feted At Country Club Dance

By BETTY ALDEN

THE TOWN will certainly be painted crimson and Yale blue over the week-end, with all the festivities surrounding the long-awaited Harvard-Eli football clash on Saturday afternoon . . .

The first party using the colors of the two colleges as a basis for decorations is being held at The Country Club this evening . . . when Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. Capper and Mr. and Mrs. David Newell of Brookline are giving a dance to present their daughters, Anne Capper and Nancy Newell, to society . . .

—Bachrach Photo

ANNE CAPPER

The debutantes, however, are not subscribing to the prevailing color scheme . . . for Miss Capper will wear a gown of white tulle with silver sequins dotting the bodice, and a corsage of gardenias . . . Miss Newell has chosen a beautiful gown of white velvet . . . Their mothers, both of whom are very youthful and as active as their debutante daughters, are wearing modish gowns, Mrs. Capper's of black velvet with gardenias, and Mrs. Newell's of bright green velvet . . .

Several notable parties are being held before this evening's dance . . . Mrs. Albert M. Kales is giving a rather Italian dinner at her Marlborough street home in honor of her debutante niece, Peggy Dewey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Dewey of Cambridge . . . Tables will be set in Mrs. Kales' living room, which is decorated in the Italian manner and looks out on a minute Riviera-like terrace . . . She has also planned the menu to carry out the Italian motif . . .

Anne Motley, who is making her debut this afternoon at a tea and reception given by her grandmother, Mrs. Henry H. Fay of Beacon street, is also to be guest of honor at a dinner party before the dance this evening . . . At Miss Motley's tea the pourers are to be headed by Dorothy MacAusland and Phyllis Motley, who made their debuts two years ago . . .

The debutante pourers are Jane Pickman, Elizabeth Mixter, Josefa Richmond, Rosamond Hamlin, Nancy Peabody, Cynthia Haskell, Florence Forbes, Florence Dalton and several others . . . Miss Motley, who is a Winsor graduate, has been elected to both the Junior League and the Vincent Club . . .

The largest dinner party before The Country Club dance will be the ushers' dinner which is also being held at the club . . . Among the girls who will attend this dinner are Angela Lang, who was recently elected vice-chairman of the debutante members of the Vincent Club; Helen Claflin, Jane Harte, Nancy Tucker, Catherine Little, Jean Carpenter, Deborah Sprague, Frances Foster, Polly Morrill, Hilary Lunt and a long list of others . . .

Lecture at Somerset Attracts Many

MRS. WALLACE SCUDDER (Betty Cram) is going in for unusual headdresses . . . Last Saturday evening she danced in the Balinese Room at the Hotel Somerset with a cluster of four or five large red chrysanthemums pinned on the crown of her golden tresses . . . and yesterday morning she was back at the Somerset to attend Mrs. William Dana Orcutt's Morning of Diversion wearing an embroidered Tyrolean bonnet tied under her chin . . .

The German type bonnet was most appropriate for the occasion, however, for Mrs. Orcutt's guest artist was Mark Haight, who gave an illustrated lecture on the country which Wagner used as a background for many of his famous operatic works . . . Mrs. Orcutt in a gown of crepe and lame extended a cordial hand in greeting to the arriving subscribers . . . Mrs. Marshal Fabyan, Jr., Mrs. Henry McBurney Parker, and Mrs. William S. Youngman, Jr., were in the group of junior hostesses assisting Mrs. Orcutt in extending hospitality . . .

Institutions to Hold Open House

THE "GO AND SEE" program sponsored by the Community Crusade is now in full swing, and those who are interested in making inspection tours to see at first hand how charitable agencies operate and the benefits which they contribute to the community welfare, will have a number of opportunities to do so during the next few days . . . Tomorrow seven different agencies associated with the Community Federation are having open house . . .

Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield is opening her Marlborough street home for the Children's Island Sanitarium in Marblehead . . . Guests will be welcomed from 10 o'clock until noon and Mrs. Crowninshield will speak on the work done for the children who are sent from hospitals and social agencies to the Sanitarium every summer . . . At the same time, from 10 to 12, the Christopher Shop will hold open house at 93 Massachusetts avenue . . .

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the Boston Urban League, 22 Whittier street, will open its doors to visitors . . . Resthaven, at 120 Fisher avenue, will have open house between 3:30 and 5:30 o'clock . . . An exhibition of students' work will be on display for those who drop in at the Children's Art Centess at 36 Rutland street at 4 o'clock . . . After viewing the paintings, drawings and photographs, and hearing of the activities of this unique organization, the only fine arts museum in the world built especially for children, guests may walk across the garden at 32 Rutland street, where the South End Music School will also hold open house . . . The New England Deaconess Hospital on Pilgrim road, Brookline, completes the list of institutions having open house tomorrow . . . An interesting program of lectures has been arranged and visitors may make inspection tours of the several divisions which make up the hospital and see the most modern radium and X-ray treatment machines . . .

Taste-Masters' Wives Are Guests

Luncheon at the Hotel Touraine, a matinee performance of "The Three Waltzes" and dinner at the Cocoanut Grove contributed toward making yesterday a red-letter occasion for wives of members of the Taste-Masters' Institute.

Twelve New England men, commonly regarded as old and experienced wine merchants, comprise the institute.

Mrs. Ferdinand Gianfranchi served as the day's hostess; her thistle crepe gown was effectively combined with navy blue accessories. Among the prominent guests were Mrs. John A. Foster, whose black crepe sported a gay sash, and Mrs. Frank A. Coleman, embroidered design and gilt threads adding a colorful touch to her dark ensemble.

Mrs. James F. Mooney motored from Fall River for the luncheon, her blue crepe costume suit luxuriously collared in matching fox, and Mrs. Byron G. Tosi, who has recently returned from a three-month tour of Europe, chose gold crepe, its jeweled buttons fashioned like tiny clusters of grapes added an individual touch.

Mrs. J. Albert Reardon topped her black velvet skirt with a close-fitting lame blouse. Mrs. James G. Brown's black woolen costume was edged with Persian and Mrs. Frank Crowley chose black crepe and pearls.

Aristos Club Plans Luncheon

Past presidents, officers and old members of the Aristos Club will receive a hearty welcome to the luncheon Saturday afternoon in Filene's restaurant.

With luncheon being served at three o'clock, a parade of season's fashions highlighting the occasion and an afternoon of bridge scheduled, the party is being eagerly anticipated by everyone. Three of the club's most enterprising members are serving as co-chairmen, Alice Clem, of Norwood, Mary Granahan of Brighton, and Phyllis Pfroetzschner of Roxbury.

Mildred Collins of Arlington, president of the group, will head the reception committee.

Glamorous fashions of the day will be modelled by Kathleen Kendrick, Mary Shea and Rosemary Gallagher. Ushering at the benefit which aids the fund for the Emmanuel and Regis College scholarships will be Dolores Newman, Eileen Kiley, Sally O'Connell, Evelyn McManus, Billie Millar, Marie Halloran and Clare Roach.

Should Young Girls Have More Freedom?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Even now, when young people in their teens have so much more freedom than youngsters formerly did, a great many girls waste time dreaming about what they would do if they were really free.

Do you doubt it? Talk to one of them, and you will see.

In the first place, they will tell you there is this burden of going to school. Being on time in the morning. Doing housework when you want to have a good time. Studying subjects that will never be of the slightest use, usually that means algebra.

Being disapproved of by your teachers. Being disapproved of by your father and mother. Not being allowed to go out every single evening. Not being able to have as many or as expensive clothes as you would like.

In short, not being able to conduct your own life exactly as your whims would prompt, from the age of 12 on.

The comfort of being loved and looked after and protected is a deeper comfort than young creatures ever realize until protection is withdrawn.

Think for a moment what it would mean to be free at 13 to commit all the follies that might occur to one!

SHE RAN AWAY

And let me help you in your meditation by telling you about a girl called Lillian Monder. Lillian is now 26. In New York the other day she told something of her story.

When Lillian was 13, a gypsy caravan came to Springfield, where the child lived. She was black-eyed and black-haired, like the gypsies, a noticeably pretty girl. One of the gypsy youths proposed that she marry him and join the caravan. Lillian, unsupervised and "free," didn't hesitate a moment.

SHE JOINED THE CARAVAN AND THUS SHE COMMITTED HER FIRST FOLLY.

Repenting, she left the gypsies and returned home. But nobody looked after her. She went back to school, but this seems not to have interferred with her freedom.

After awhile she married another youth. They had four children. Too young for so much motherhood, so much drudgery, she abandoned her family and ran off with still another man. He had told her she was young and must enjoy life. She listened.

In all, the girl has had eight husbands.

She can't explain why.

She can't explain why, at 26, she is terribly unhappy.

Or why, lacking money, she has obtained it in ways that landed her, the other day, in the Women's House of Detention.

She wishes now that she could see her children.

In fact, she has expressed a great horror of wrong-doing. She is no "gun-girl." She wishes she had been like other girls.

In short, she wishes, of course, that somebody strong and wise and loving had stood between her and the opportunity to do foolish things.

PAYS THE PRICE

If Lillian were naturally a bad girl, that would be another story. She's just a girl who started wrong because, when she was first lured from home, she was an adventurous, wrong-headed child who hated her lessons, who saw that gypsies were fascinating, and who simply wasn't properly looked after.

The little girl next door, if there was one and if she had a conscientious mother, no doubt went through high school, married a nice boy, had a few babies, and is at this moment leading a normal, useful happy life.

Just such a life poor Lillian Monder would have been glad to live, if she had known how. If she had had more common sense.

But she didn't know how.

So here she is, at 26, still young, still lovely to look at, but profoundly miserable and hopeless, a tragic example of the folly of too much freedom.

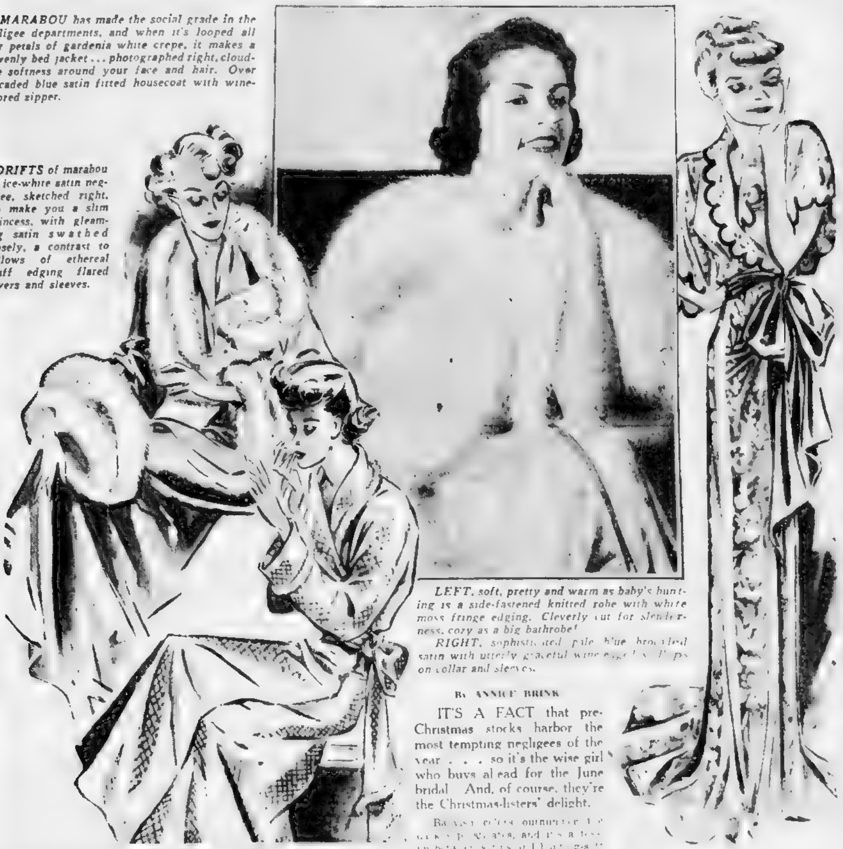
Accent on Froth for the Intimate Hou

MARABOU has made the social grade in the negligee departments, and when it's looped all over petals of gardenia white crepe, it makes a heavenly bed jacket ... photographed right, cloud-like softness around your face and hair. Over brocaded blue satin fitted housecoat with wine-colored zipper.

DRIFTS of marabou on ice-white satin negligee, sketched right. To make you a slim princess, with gleaming satin swathed closely, a contrast to billows of ethereal stuff edging flared revers and sleeves.



LEFT, soft, pretty and warm as baby's bunting is a side-fastened knitted robe with white moss fringe edging. Cleverly cut for slenderness, cozy as a big bathrobe!

RIGHT, sophisticated pale blue brocaded satin with utterly graceful wine [illegible] on collar and sleeves.

By ANNICE BRINK

IT'S A FACT that pre-Christmas stocks harbor the most tempting negligees of the year . . . so it's the wise girl who buys ahead for the June bridal. And, of course, they're the Christmas-listers' delight.

[illegible] colors outnumber the [illegible] pastels, and it's a toss-up between satins and [illegible] woolens, with one as [illegible] as the other. Dark accents on pale colors are particularly chic.

'ALCATRAZ ISLAND' -:- By George Lait

CHAPTER 18

Once more "Gat" Brower, erstwhile "Public Enemy No. 1," sat in a courtroom facing a judge and a jury of 12 good men and true.

By his side sat his old "mouthpiece," McLane, who had pulled him through so many "tough beefs" in the wild and woolly days before "Gat" Brower had run afoul of "the old guy with the whiskers," as the underworld calls Uncle Sam.

But there was one important change in the set-up. With McLane sat young George Drake the Manhattan D. A., who, on "Gat's" previous court appearance had often sat on the other side of the table—and was then representing the forces of law and order.

In the spectators' section sat the accused man's lovely daughter, Ann. And at her side, "Gat's" sweetheart pretty blonde Flo Allen, fought to hold back her tears as the United States Attorney summed up to the jury the government's case against "Gat" Brower, convict No 777 at the Federal penitentiary, Alcatraz.

"We have proved to you, gentlemen of the jury," the prosecutor orated, "that this defendant was transferred from the Federal prison at Leavenworth because of his enmity toward the murdered man, an enmity bred of a long-standing feud which began when both men were criminally active in New York.

"The knife which ended Carroll's life was the knife issued to this defendant by the prison, issued to him so that he might do his work in the shoe-shop to which he had been assigned. But we have proved that he used this knife to slay his fellow prisoner."

An objection interposed by McLane caused a slight delay, but the government prosecutor, unruffled, resumed

"We have told you how the dying Carroll named, in contemplation of death, in his last breath, the defendant, 'Gat' Brower, as the man who wielded that knife.

"Gentleman of the jury, this was murder—cold-blooded and deliberate. 'Gat' Brower deserves no thought of mercy—his criminal record belies any such thought. He must be made to pay the penalty—the FULL penalty, of the law

"I demand—the United States government demands—a verdict of murder in the first degree!"

• • •

The jury retired to consider its verdict at dusk.

Ann, Flo, Drake and McLane declined to leave the courtroom but sent an attendant out to bring them some sandwiches and coffee. When the sandwiches did arrive, none [illegible].

Hours passed and still the jury did not return.

• • •

In the [illegible] the San Francisco [illegible] and "The Flying Dutchman" were [illegible] in the darkness.

"The jury must be out by now, Dutch," whispered Santell hoarsely.

"You think he's got a chance, Harp. He gets mebee manslaughter, no?"

THEY'LL HANG HIM

Santell shook his head.

"It's first degree——cut an' dried. 'Gat's' mouthpiece put up a swell fight, but you know that circumstantial evidence —— they'll hang him sure."

"The Flying Dutchman" rose from his bunk and began pacing the floor of the narrow cell. Santell watched him for a moment.

"Y'know, Dutch, I once was on the scavenger squad when I was doin' a bit at San Quentin . . . we had t' cut down a guy who went out that way. I'll never forget th' look on his face before we covered him up."

The Dutchman ceased his pacing. Almost eagerly he queried

"It's quick that way, ain't it, Harp? A feller don't know what happens, does he?"

Santell would give him no satisfaction

"Don't know what happens? I don't know about that, Dutch. Maybe he does . . . nobody's ever come back to tell about it. If a guy could step right outta the courtroom an' take it, it wouldn't be so bad.

"But he's gotta wait for th' verdict . . . he's gotta wait to be sentenced . . . they take him to the little house where nobody comes back, an' he's gotta wait some more for his date.

"He walks up an' down, sorta like you're walkin' up an' down now, waitin' to hear about his appeal, prayin' for a stay, hopin' for a reprieve . . . knowin' all th' time he won't get it.

"STOP IT!"

"That's tough on a guy takin' a phoney rap, Dutch—waitin' for somethin' to happen—knowin' that old man Death is creepin' up on him with a rope in his hands ——"

The Flying Dutchman had backed into a corner of the narrow cell as "Harp" Santell spoke. His eyes were wide with horror, his work-stained hands rubbed across his wrinkled throat.

"Stop it!" he screamed in the darkness. "Stop it, damn you Harp. Why you keep talkin' about it all the time? Stop — I cannot stand it no longer . . ."

• • •

Jail guards attracted by the Dutchman's screams, burst into the cell and separated the two convicts. The Dutchman was shoved back into his bunk and Santell was dragged out into the corridor.

Once out of earshot of the Dutchman, Santell turned to one of the guards

"Take me straight to the warden," he demanded. "I gotta see him right away."

"What d'ya wanta see him about, con?" the guard asked gruffly.

"A matter of life an' death," declared Santell. "Just a matter of 'Gat' Brower's life or death."

Good Manners

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—I have just received a diamond engagement ring, but do not plan to be married until next summer.

When is the proper time for my parents to have an announcement party?

2—Have you any booklets on wedding suggestions, helps for the bride, and so forth?

BRIDE-TO-BE.

1—Usually the engagement announcement party is given before the engaged girl begins to wear her engagement ring in public. For after all, when she does wear her engagement ring in public, this fact announces her engagement

The announcement party gives the news to relatives and friends and then the ring can be worn

2—I have several pamphlets concerning various details of wedding plans which I shall be very glad to send you if you will send me an addressed, stamped envelope.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.)

MORE than once during the morning of our journey to the Cosgrove home in the Catskills I had reason to bless my own forethought in providing a breakfast of my own cooking at the tourist camp before starting out on the day's motoring.

Mrs. Barnes when I finally reached her over the telephone was as genial and as heartily co-operative as always. She promised to deliver my message to Marion, unobserved by anyone, within fifteen minutes, and to see that my letter from me would be given to Marion privately.

I knew the sort of welcome I would receive from Mrs. Cosgrove, the sister of Robert Savarin, and I was not disappointed when after a pleasant and fortunately unadventurous journey, Dicky tooled the car into the driveway and stopped in front of the veranda

Both Mrs. Cosgrove and her giant husband were outdoors—the legacy of Robert Savarin had made hard work forever unnecessary for them—and they came hurrying across the lawn when they saw us, their faces lighted with genuine pleasurable welcome.

"How wonderful to see you at last!" Mrs. Cosgrove exclaimed when she had kissed me. "I began to think you never were coming. I hope you're here to stay a while. Come right in and let me take you up to your room. There's always one waiting for you."

"I'm afraid I can't get you a rainbow trout in time for lunch," her genial husband boomed, "but I can kill some broilers and I'll have some trout for breakfast or bust my rod."

Your Figure, Madame!

CURVES BACK IN VOGUE

By IDA JEAN KAIN

VOGUES come and go and that for the curvesome Mae West figure has gone. There is no doubt about it, too ample curves are aging and the modern woman will have no avoirdupois, thank you!

A lot of credit is due Miss West. She helped to restore figures to normal. After the fashion of reformers, Mae West swung to the other extreme, but she was a delightful change from the scrawny vogue. She awakened us and made us realize how frightfully angular we were.

• • •

Today's ideal figure is supple and slim, giving the appearance of agelessness. Curves? Yes! But the curves of beautifully toned muscles, not of excess fat. The waistline is trim, hips are molded and the bust high and firm.

When you add an excess inch to your waistline you add two years to your figure. The youthful figure has a seven to nine-inch difference between the bust measurement and the waistline. Then, to [illegible] the hipline should [illegible] more than three inches larger than the bust measurement. If your weight is within 10 per cent of [illegible] and you have these proportions, you have a lovely figure.

• • •

Streamlines mean curves, not [illegible] and normal weight, not underweight. The underweight needs more [illegible] and rest, and the overweight needs fewer desserts and [illegible], and both need exercise to keep their curves lovely.

The following is a slimming exercise that will help you to keep [illegible].

POSITION: Down on the floor on the hands and knees.

MOVEMENT: Raise the right [illegible] and stretch [illegible] from the body. [illegible] as far as you can reach, then stretch a little farther. This exercise [illegible] the waistline and flattens the tummy and it [illegible] of the buttocks.

Write for the leaflet, "Measure Your Curves," which will tell you about your figure. Enclose a stamped, return envelope for the leaflet.

North with a seven-card diamond suit which he had not rebid, should have bid six diamonds (seven would have been a [illegible]), rather than [illegible], which was not nearly so [illegible].

W[illegible] figuring that heart tricks [illegible] were remote, [illegible] King. East [illegible] with the Jack. Declarer studied the hand and saw that he was by no means safe. To lead the King and another spade would be dangerous. If he finessed against the Queen, West might win and gobble up club tricks

If he went up with the Ace and failed to drop the Queen, the opponents would interrupt the running of diamonds and, as before, cash clubs. The heart Ace, of course, was good for only one discard

After due consideration, declarer hit on the correct line of play. On winning with the club Ace, he led dummy's [illegible] of spades and played the ten from his own hand. The logic of this play must be apparent. As it happened, West won with the Queen, but he could make no return that would embarrass declarer

A club continuation could be ruffed in dummy, the closed hand entered with a heart ruff, and the outstanding spades drawn, then the diamond suit run off for more than enough discards.

ALMOST INCREDIBLE have been called the results of a cream containing life-giving elements which rebuild the skin to smooth, unwrinkled fairness . . . a fairness quite like the orchidaceous Gloria Dickson's.

Penetrative Cream's Elements Of Life Really Erase Lines

By ARLINE GOULD

IT'S ALL very well for some much-touted cosmetic to be tested on a few youngish skins with pleasing results that might almost have come from a good night's sleep . . . but when tests on middle-aged women prove that a certain new cream actually dispels long-entrenched lines, it is time to admit science has taken the longest step yet in the preservation and restoration of young beauty!

In the months since the cream's arrival, we've seen a subject's complexion attain an amazing smooth young sheen with a faint freshly-pulsing color that she had thought lost at least 20 years ago! Amazing just isn't strong enough a word for it.

It has for the first time since the dawn of time an active principle of life which has a special tendency to pass through the skin and [illegible] absorbed through the skin.

• • •

W[illegible] are being made and what's more are being backed up. For this vital principle of life that actually effects structural changes from the inside as well as outside is veritably a wizard. Nothing has ever before promised to remove wrinkles already formed.

"Estral" is the name of the precious element captured in the rich carrying [illegible] of this cream. And its use is exclusive. So that the only means of obtaining the [illegible] the lure of youth in blooming [illegible] [illegible] decades ahead.

• • •

Once every twenty-four hours is the schedule suggested and it is a night cream. An older skin will need a larger quantity at first, decreasing considerably in a week. Definite results are a matter of weeks or months, again depending on the age and condition of the complexion.

Younger skins need it as a wise preventive, but since they [illegible]

If you're going to use it and expect it to dispel the bugaboo of lines around the eyes, on the forehead, around the mouth and on the neck, you must cooperate with it in faithfulness of use and stick to the length of application-time. Six hours is its due, every night, whether you're debutante or dowager.

San Francisco Exposition Will Help N. Y. World Fair

Both Exhibits in '39; West City Opens Eastern Office

The friendly rivalry between San Francisco and New York, both cities holding world's fairs in 1939, quickened its pace this week with the establishment of an eastern office in New York for the west coast's Golden Gate International Exposition, with Stanley Beaubaire of San Francisco in charge.

Both international expositions will far outstrip all past fairs in area, cost of construction and in the offering of glamorous spectacle [illegible].

Already more than half of the nation's states have signified plans for participation in both expositions with official exhibits ranging from special and elaborate buildings to [illegible] displays in attractive exhibit palaces.

COST $170,000,000

The combined cost of both shows is estimated at more than $170,000,000 and well over a hundred national [illegible] have definite plans for exhibiting [illegible].

Plant Demands His Wife Show Her Proof

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 18 (INS) — Questions, answers, charges, counter charges and specific statements flew thick and fast in Superior Court today in the divorce tangle between Philip Morgan Plant, millionaire Waterford farmer and Broadway playboy, and Mrs. Edna C. Dunham Plant.

A second request asking further information on the [illegible] charges made by his wife was filed by counsel for Plant.

In her first specific statement in connection with her suit for divorce on grounds of [illegible] conduct and [illegible], Mrs. Plant called her mate an international drunk and charged infidelity with a number of women, including Marjorie King, Hollywood actress.

Plant, she charged, also tried to throw her overboard from a liner at Cannes, France.

Today counsel for both Plant and his wife demanded [illegible].

Plant's counsel sought answers to the following [illegible] the first specific statement [illegible] last week by Mrs. Plant:

To whom had he (Plant) introduced women as Mrs. Plant?

On what date were charges made in Mrs. Plant's name at two New York stores?

On what dates were food and hotel accommodation charges made in Mrs. Plant's name in New London?

Vassar Backs Princeton Man

He's 'Adonis-Tarzan'; Only Yale Lonely

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Nov. 18 (AP)—Princeton men, says an editorial in a Vassar College publication, are a combination of Adonis, Tarzan and Socrates.

The article, titled "Expose," in the Miscellany News, semi-weekly organ of the school, declared the Princeton Lonely Hearts Club was a vicious attempt of a thwarted Yale man to discredit the name of Princeton before the world.

Several Vassar girls responded to an advertisement last week which read:

"Hundreds of men are lonely at Princeton. Are you lonely, too? Find your post box lover by writing to Lonely Hearts Club."

"We now raise our voices to disclaim publicly our sympathies with the Lonely Hearts Club," the editorial said. "We know from past experience every Princeton man is a combination Adonis, Tarzan and Socrates.

"Yale men suffer from loneliness, but a Princeton man is surely above such weak and paltry emotions."

BOSTON AMERICAN
NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

I suppose it won't do a mite of good to protest against a practice which is rapidly becoming a part of the new pedagogy but I can't help making a protest all the same.

The story hails from Chicago, from that Middle West which is already suffering. [illegible]

Robert E. Rogers

[illegible]

"With little or no publicity another venerable educating device has been removed from the Chicago public school curriculum: pupils are no longer required to learn the multiplication table. The new style is to explain to the children casually during the teaching of addition that since six and six make twelve five sixes must make 30 and nine sixes must make 54."

Arithmetic Lost Art

[illegible]

I remember once being [illegible] that sort of thing. But the firm had to let her go because it was discovered that she couldn't use a dictionary. She didn't know the order of the letters in the alphabet. She had gone to one of these bright and casual modern schools where she had never been taught the alphabet.

I bet she was never taught the multiplication table either. [illegible]

Short Cuts Valuable

This is an extreme case, but it illustrates well the harm the modern pedagogues have of learning something [illegible] useful which demands speed and economy of time, the most practical of short cuts, something [illegible] table.

Our earliest forefathers recognized that memorized short cuts are almost indispensable. And the ancients had better memories than we whose minds have been spoiled by too much reading. The same with the alphabet, the same with musical notation, the same with a list of the presidents of the United States, the kings of England and what have you.

Anything which makes the process of learning rapid, easy and automatic is so useful that to experimentalize it out of the way on the ground that it is not educational is a crime against the child. The duller the child the greater the crime.

Discard Old Methods

Every time I try to look up something in the Bible I founder among the titles because I was never taught the order of the canonical books. One could adduce many such examples.

I once read in a life of Charles Proteus Steinmetz, the great electrical expert, the fact that once he went out in a canoe to do some complex electrical calculations. He had forgotten his volume of logarithmic tables. Instead of paddling ashore for them, he simply remembered them, no mean feat as any Tech man will [illegible]. You see he had been educated in Germany and [illegible] Tech [illegible]

Our Tech man confronted with the problem of arranging a number of figures [illegible] for a slide rule. I don't know what they think of the accountant who, in preference to a mechanical adding machine, adds up long columns in his head as fast as his pencil can follow his figures. He is probably a product of old-style mental arithmetic in the grade schools. What the youngsters do I can't guess.

There is a distinct tendency in elementary education to discard the old methods partly because they are old and [illegible] because they have been successful. 'I Wanna Eat Spinach Thanksgiving'

Popeye would have no trouble at all persuading Bobby Perkins of Barnstable to go on a spinach diet now. Bobby's pet turkey shares the lad's grief and [illegible] its head sadly to gobble, "If only death would take the holiday, too." Thanksgiving is only a week away, and the holiday headsman is a daily nightmare to the young man and his feathered friend. Perhaps the truth of the matter is that Bobby is more than a little afraid of the turkey and wouldn't mind a bit if the axeman came a bit early.

Weymouth 'No Ride, No School' Strike Continues

No ride, no school, some [illegible] odd North Weymouth children said in effect this morning as they refused for the second day to walk from their peninsula homes to the end of River street where the school bus stops.

[illegible]

Superintendent of Schools Parker T. Pearson repeated today his assertion that unless the children [illegible] to school the town will be compelled to take court action.

'Hedge Schools' for Pupils on Walk Revolt

Shades of the famed hedge-schools of history walked in Weymouth today as Esther Adukonis, 17, Weymouth high senior, acted as teacher when this roadside school was organized after the school bus failed to come all the way to the children. Later they found the fresh air class a bit chilly, and took books home for study.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Ann Marsters

Greetings from the top of the page.

For quite a long time we Girls About Town have been marching properly along a straight and narrow path right down the side of this page. But now, it seems, we're branching out sideways—and growing a bit bolder. We hope it's not going to upset our friendly relations with our readers, or with Professor Rogers, who has always carried on so nobly in the path directly opposite us.

Anyway, we may LOOK different, but deep down underneath—in spite of our elevated position—we really haven't changed a bit.

Just to prove it, we're going to start off by talking about the Franklin Park Zoo. Now that "summer has gone and the days grow cold," the animals have moved into their heated winter quarters.

Waddy and Tony, the elephants, are sharing their house with the hippopotamus with whom they get along very well. Waddy is of a tremendous age—for an elephant.

The average age is only 50, but Waddy is 75 years old and still in good health although her eyesight isn't as good as it used to be and her joints are getting stiff. Mr. Daniel Harkins, curator of the zoo, says that even though Waddy is away past an ordinary elephant's span of life, she should live for several more years. (According to the records, there was once an elephant who lived to be 150.)

Tony, incidentally, is just a young lady of 25.

As for the bears, we learned that they do not hibernate in captivity during the winter. They do, however, grow sluggish and their appetites fall off 50 per cent. That doesn't include polar bears, who live up to their reputation of liking it cold. They stay pretty spry all winter and go plunging in and out of their frigid swimming pool.

White Evening Gowns the Thing, Girls; See Them at Chandler's

SHOPPING HINTS:—It's going to be a white Christmas—according to fashion, anyway. White evening gowns are the thing, girls, and you can get some especially smart ones in Chandler's Junior Miss Shop. We liked the one with the full net skirt and the little basque covered with silver bugle beads. ($16.95) . . . Jordan's has a marvelous line of babies' and children's imported dresses and things—from Austria and Hungary and England. Little knitted dresses with hand wool embroidery. And English carriage robes of short, clipped sheepskin . . . Hovey's is very proud of the fact that Maribel Vinson, figure skating champion, wired from New York for an appointment at their beauty salon to have her hair done. And she's going to make a personal appearance at Hovey's sports shop—this Friday at 2:30 and Saturday at 10:30 . . . Jay's has some amazing values in its "treasure chest" which opens tomorrow. Day time dresses all priced at $19. They are new dresses, not markdowns, and some of them are actually worth up to $50 . . . Slattery's is [illegible] all manner of metal cloth jackets and blouses in adorable styles which are now on sale at $4.45.

Aid of 'Bookies' Fined $200

FALL RIVER, Nov. 17—Despite his attorney's argument that he was simply supplying news information and was not collecting or accepting bets, Henry V. Chapdelaine, 27, was found guilty of promoting a lottery and received a two months' sentence and a $200 fine from Judge Benjamin Cook in court here today.

Chapdelaine was arrested a week ago when police raided his room in a hotel and found a ticker tape service. Chapdelaine contended that he represented the National News Service of Boston. He admitted that he furnished race information to "bookies" and prominent men.

He said he received a weekly salary of $40 and that his weekly expenses amounted to about $100.

He appealed the sentence and fine and was released on bail of $500.

Radioland Reflections

By N. F. T.

DIVING into the thick of Thursday night things that have the spotlight each week, with the Wednesday half-way mark gone by, a dial delver this evening will emerge with much "mike" entertainment extraordinary.

Such names as Jane Cowl, Fay Wray, Alan Mowbray, Mischa Auer, Luise Rainer and Eric Blore have program places among the all-star airings that fill the schedules between 8 and 11 p. m.

Kate Smith is providing what should prove some corking Vallee variety hour competition when her 60-minute setting (WEEI) goes under way, with Jane Cowl in a radio version of "Elizabeth, the Queen," adapted from the Maxwell Anderson story and play. Cranberry Dessert Is New

By MARTHA LEE

THERE IS little doubt that stewed cranberries were served with the wild turkey at that first Thanksgiving dinner.

But the homemaker who thinks of these crimson berries as only an accompaniment to the turkey in the form of sauce is overlooking the possibilities of creating a number of interesting dishes.

Such a flavorous and colorful fruit, bursting with luscious juice was sure to find its way into the culinary scheme of things in more than one role. They go well with meats or in any number of things—pies, tarts, pastries, cakes, muffins, puddings, ices.

Here's a brand new cranberry dessert [illegible] cranberry sauce topped with a [illegible] feather [illegible]. And it may be made from the ready-to-serve cranberry sauce or the fresh berries.

CRANBERRY SOUFFLE

¼ cup butter
6 tablespoons flour
1¼ cups evaporated milk
6 tablespoons sugar
4 large, or 5 small eggs
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 cups cranberries
1 cup sugar

Make a smooth white sauce of the butter, flour and milk. Add sugar and cook until thickened. Cool and add well beaten egg yolks and lemon juice. Beat egg whites until light and fluffy. Add cream of tartar and salt and continue beating until stiff but not dry. Fold into yolk mixture. Mix cranberries [illegible] halves with the sugar. Turn into a buttered baking dish and set in a slow oven (310 deg. F.) for 10 minutes, then pour souffle mixture over berries. Continue baking in a slow oven (310 deg. F.) for [illegible] minutes. Serves 6.

Note: If you have some cranberry sauce on hand or want to use the canned variety, place a cup and a half of the sauce in the bottom of the baking pan and pour the souffle mixture over it. [illegible] method makes an equally delicious Cranberry Souffle.

CRANBERRY PORK CHOPS

4 cups cranberries, ground
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
¾ cup strained honey

Brown both sides of pork chops quickly in a hot frying pan. Sprinkle with salt. Place half the chops in the bottom of a greased baking dish or casserole. Combine remaining ingredients and spread half on the pork chops in casserole. Place remaining 3 pork chops on top and cover with remaining cranberry mixture. Cover and bake in a moderate oven of 350 deg. F. for about 1 hour. Serves 6.

CRANBERRY POT ROAST

When starting that next pot roast try pouring two cups of raw cranberries directly over the meat, adding seasonings and hot water, covering tightly and allowing the meat to simmer slowly for at least three hours. The cranberries may be strained from the liquid when the gravy is made and strewed over the meat when it is served.

HOME INSTITUTE

Fortunes Entertain Friends

YOU'RE tired of that corner you get stuck in at parties? You can make it the most popular spot in the room if you know even one way to tell fortunes.

So start with card fortunes. They're grand fun and you quickly learn how by practising on kid sister or on yourself.

Suppose you want to reveal the "Secret of the Seven Sisters." You pick a card to represent you. If you have brown hair, blue eyes you're a Queen of Hearts.

Then make a wish and shuffle twice, each time removing from the deck the cards following the 7-spots. Shuffle again, removing each seventh card. The rest of the cards you lay face up in 7 rows of 5 cards each. Put the 3 or 4 left over in a separate row.

Suppose you find a 9 of hearts or your own queen in this row. Your wish comes true. If the cards are mostly black or if the 9 of spades is present—no luck.

If an 8 of clubs turns up close to your queen, you'll have a date soon with a new romance. If an ace of diamonds glitters, an engagement ring's coming your way. A 10 of diamonds promises a tidy little legacy.

Now the open-fire season's here, don't miss your fortune in the fire. See a flower-shaped spark, you'll have good luck.

Many more ways to tell fortunes are given in our 40-page booklet LET ME TELL YOUR FORTUNE. Cards, tea leaves, numbers, dreams, hand-writing. Fun and easy.

Send 15c for our booklet, LET ME TELL YOUR FORTUNE, to Boston Evening American, Home Institute, 109 West 19th street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

I HEAR THAT—Bobby Green, the Harvard end, who has been on the injured list, will be the next Crimson football captain . . . He's a son of a socially prominent Baltimore family . . . [illegible] Commissioner Eddie M[illegible] is regarded as a likely successor to Paul Kirk as head man of the State Police if and when Commissioner Kirk gets [illegible] judgeship.

Hundreds of Harvard-Yale game tickets have been "dug" [illegible] the speculators . . . They can be had—but the prices are so [illegible] as to be discouraging . . . [illegible] comes up from the store w[illegible] different. Fifty dollars for a pair of midfield ducats was [illegible] night's quotation . . . The night clubs have raised minimum and cover charges for Saturday night on the theory that the Harvard-Yale game happens locally only once in two years, many of the celebrants are strangers—and business has been horrible this fall thus far . . . Reservation lists at the prominent spots are nearly filled already.

BOSTON BOOKINGS.

Peggy Garcia, the girl who beat the headlines for several weeks in that romantic legal tilt with R[illegible]hoff, will play the Co[illegible] Theater—singing "sophisticated" songs—beginning November 29 . . . And one of the hospitals will get a new roomer any day now if the condition of a gent who said he was an Illinois state cop doesn't improve . . . He bullied his way through a couple of hours downtown the night before last when a quiet little fellow, who doesn't like to battle, finally accepted his invitation to "step outside" . . . One punch, but a hard one, put him away and a cab driver found his teeth.

• • •

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY —

A red-hot letter reaches this desk over the signature of Patrick J. Byrne, president of the Community Club of Bunker Hill . . . Decrying the amount of space given Charlestown's alleged "Haunted Houses" (remember all that stuff about "ghost voters") Mr. Byrne wants to know what about a remedy . . . If Charlestown residents were given better housing opportunities, and if the shacks and dilapidated tenements were [illegible] Mr. Byrne thinks this would be one way of ridding the district of [illegible] voters . . . However, Mr. Byrne sees some hope for the future of Charlestown in the election of City Councillor-to-be William J. "Mother" Galvin . . . "Tuesday, Nov. 2, 1937," he ends, "can truly be termed another Mothers Day'."

Governor Hurley, by the way, complimented Police Commissioner Timilty on the work done by the Boston police in the municipal election.

If ever a picture had the right to describe itself as "elemental drama," that picture is "The Hurricane" . . . And the love-story is a beauty . . . Bostonians who experienced one of the Florida hurricanes will realize that Sam Goldwyn hasn't overdone the "big wind" in his newest "epic" . . . And one of the really funny Goldwyn stories (which failed to make his biography) is the one about Sam reading a book . . . It was an absorbing book, and Sam was singing its praises to one of his staff . . . "It's called 'The Life of Abraham Lincoln,' and what a book!" . . . His aide was polite . . . "Have you come to the place yet where Lincoln was shot?" . . . "Sssh," Goldwyn shushed him. "Don't tell me!"

The word is out already that former Governor Curley will be a candidate for Governor next Fall, but intimates discount the stories . . . They hold that he is too staunch a Democrat to throw a monkeywrench into his party's machinery . . . If the Worcester boom for Senator Parkman as Republican candidate for Governor spreads, and if the Senator decides to run, Mayor-elect Tobin would be embarrassed no end . . . Already, a camaraderie has sprung up between Governor Hurley and Boston's next mayor.

Report is that some of Mervyn Leroy's scouts visited "I'd Rather Be Right," Broadway's present stage hit to report on it for a Leroy-M-G-M movie. The show has an advance sale of $400,000 and may gross a million. Joy Hodges, who is also in Universal's "Merry Go Round of 1938," is New York's current rave in this play. This is interesting to Hollywood who used to hear Joyce sing at various local cafes.

Although "I'd Rather Be Right" is advertised as a better satire on the Roosevelt regime, those who have seen it say its humor is tempered with kindliness.

New Queen Of Beauty Scores

Valerie Parks Wins Praise in Debut At Old Howard

Most scintillating star of the Old Howard's "Jolies Bergere" stage revue this week is Valerie Parks who has just concluded a successful six month engagement at a popular Chicago night spot.

This is Miss Parks' Boston debut but her few appearances here have already established her as a [illegible] favorite.

She appears in several musical numbers which give her ample opportunity to display her talents and her beauty. Her engagement at the Old Howard is limited.

Dog as Prize For Letter

No less in the public eye than the [illegible] Mister Smith, canine star of "The Awful Truth" now at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters, is his deserted wife, Missus Smith.

H. M. Addison, division manager for Loew's theaters, is seeking a home for her and is appealing to Loew's State patrons to write him a letter of 150 words or less on their reason why they would like to own Mrs. Smith. Best letter gets her. She is temporarily located in a kennel in the lobby of Loew's State theater.

Any actor is liable to forget his lines any time anywhere in the play's progress and just as completely as the most nervous amateur. Blame it on carelessness or over-confidence. Then, again at a premiere, it can be traced to last minute revisions in the script and jitters resulting from drawn-out rehearsals.

However, unlike amateurs, the professional actor is less liable to panic when he forgets his lines. Like a soldier in battle, he is steeled for anything, thanks to the confidence built up by experience."

October Figures Have Cheerful Points

Readjustments Rapid In Many Cases, Says Haney

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

NEW YORK, Nov. 18—October figures are now fairly complete and they do not make any too pleasant reading. There are, however, some encouraging points.

On the whole, the story told is that a cyclical recession of sorts is well along and is likely to continue until the usual signs appear to show that maladjustments have been corrected.

We have missed the boat [illegible] as the possibility of any successful experiments in preventing a [illegible] are concerned.

It should be noted, however, that readjustment in many cases have been so rapid that the possibility that the slump will burn itself out quickly is suggested. There have been such times, and with the money and credit stimulants now at hand the trick might be turned again.

Steel Little Help As Barometer

Heavy Industry, Regarded as Basic Business Indicator, Studied

NEW YORK, Nov. 18—Steel activity is generally and correctly regarded as a basic indicator of trends in general business. Unusual swings in the rate of this industry's operations have never failed to be accompanied by changes in the trend of general industrial activity. Although readily accepted as an accurate barometer of business conditions the trend of steel operations has little forecasting value, says the Standard Statistics Company in a current survey.

GOING BACK

Going back to the turn of the century, it is found that major fluctuations in steel production have coincided with rather than preceded changing trends in general business. In the depressions of 1907, 1921 and 1929 steel activity began to decline, reached its low point and completed its recovery in precisely the same month as industrial production. Steel performance in the depression of 1920 was an exception to this pattern. On that occasion it lagged about four months in beginning its decline and [illegible]

The recent course of steel production has been somewhat similar to that of the 1920 depression. Industrial production began to slide in April, but the break in steel output did not come until September. It is true, however, that actual trends in steel activity during the late spring and summer were obscured by the CIO strike and its aftermath.

Because late summer steel operations were artificially supported by work against business postponed because of the strike and by backlogs carried over from the second quarter, the decline in operations since Labor Day has been [illegible]. Sharp breaks in steel [illegible] have characterized every [illegible] depression, but a 43 point [illegible] over the span of ten weeks [illegible] unprecedented. The closest parallel was in 1934 when activity dropped from [illegible] per cent of capacity in the first week of [illegible] to [illegible] per cent in the first week of September.

PREVIOUS DEPRESSIONS

In previous major depressions the course of steel activity in both the downward and upward phase of the cycle has been virtually [illegible]. The only significant exception to this occurred in early 1930 when the federal administration urged the railroads to make large commitments for rails and equipment to stem the tide of depression, with the result that the [illegible] downward trend of steel production was temporarily arrested. Otherwise past experience would indicate that general [illegible] will have reached or passed its low point when steel production reverses its present trend.

CONGRESS INDEPENDENT

Congress is taking the bit in its teeth, and while it remains to be seen just how far it will get it is obvious that its members feel the recovery burden should be shouldered by private capital. All of which is hardly disappointing to business men. They are more than willing to do the job themselves if given half a chance. The four-point program seems to have been junked in favor of relief plans to further revival. A cut in the surplus tax law provisions is almost a certainty at this time, and executive interference alone appears to be the one thing that can thwart it.

MARKET IS STALLING

Even though trade and political news have been taken well into account, the market does not seem to be in the mood to do anything definite. It almost seems as though it were stalling in an attempt to avoid a decision on an issue that has yet to come to light. Such behavior, unfortunately, could last for quite a few sessions. There is nothing that the would-be trader can do about it and it seems to this writer that the wise course is to hold to present positions until definite trends develop. The writer is still inclined toward bullishness and believes that when confidence in the market's position is re-established strong rallying tendencies will prevail.

Court Refuses Rate Hearing

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 18 (AP)—Consideration of electric rates of the Tennessee Valley authority and the 18 power companies challenging constitutionality of the authority's power program was denied today by a three-judge Federal court.

Presiding Judge Florence Allen, of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Cincinnati, said:

"It is the ruling of this court that rates of utilities and the TVA are not material to this case—this is not a rate hearing."

Utility attorneys said previously they would prove rates of the federal agency do not meet the costs of electric energy production and are "discriminatory against private utilities."

The ruling today halted an attempt to introduce a rate history of the West Tennessee Power and Light Company.

Attorneys for both sides declined to say how the ruling would affect their court plans.

Boston Brokers' Market Opinions

If volume continues to show no increase on reactions and the November lows hold, there would be considerable reason for believing that the market had thoroughly discounted current poor trade news and was forming a base for an extended recovery.—J. S. Wilson, Josephthal & Co.

In view of the indecisive character of fluctuations, traders now can be expected to follow an increase in activity in whichever direction it develops.—J. F. Malloy, Hornblower & Weeks.

The general outlook is thus beclouded with so much uncertainty that any departure from a rigid policy of capital conservation cannot be justified.—F. H. Richardson, Southgate & Co.

A new speculative impulse is needed to jar prices out of their trading rut and establish a trend. At the moment Washington gives promise of being the best source of favorable developments as business statistics continue mainly adverse.—H. D. Comer, Paine, Webber & Co.

Fluctuations having been showing a tendency to narrow for a month and might continue to do so. During that period the news has become progressively worse, but the market apparently had already taken that into account. The chances continue in favor of better prices from this area.—G. M. P. Murphy & Co.

All that can be said now is that marketwise caution remains desirable, that portfolios should be kept comparatively light and that near term action should be held to a strictly trading basis.—J. S. Bache & Co.

Shares Drop 2 Points At Worst

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—Rallying attempts were unimpressive in today's stock market and leading issues tipped backward as much as 2 points or so at the worst.

Extra declines were reduced in a few instances near the fourth hour. Volume was light throughout.

Unusual "thinness" marked the proceedings with spreads of a point or more frequent between sales of inactivities.

Wall Street had eyes and ears mainly for Washington. While the financial district was still hopeful the present special session of Congress would revise much-disputed tax laws even if it is necessary to neglect the administration's program, it was not overlooked that new taxes might be necessary.

Traders consequently, were inclined to step carefully in the making of new commitments either way. The continued downward slant of business trends in most lines also was a restraining speculative influence. The flow of extra, regular and year end dividends was mostly ignored, some being for the purpose of avoiding the undistributed profits tax.

BRAZILIAN BONDS UP

Brazilian bonds moved [illegible] word December coupons might be paid notwithstanding recent announcement service would be suspended temporarily on the country's external debts. Other bonds were uneven.

Commodities were lower, with wheat futures down sharply after Wednesday's run up.

Most foreign securities markets slipped and principal European currencies were up in terms of the dollar.

U. S. Steel, ex dividend for the first time in five years, managed a [illegible] of resistance but Bethlehem, Youngstown, Crucible and National backed away. The production outlook in this industry was far from clear.

General Motors, Chrysler, Mack Truck and Yellow Truck were under water the greater part of the time as were Goodyear, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, duPont, Amerada, Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corp., American Telephone, Western Union, [illegible] Anaconda, Kennecott, Johns-Manville, Eastman Kodak, [illegible] Allis Chalmers, Dow Chemical, Lone Star Cement, [illegible] Union Carbide, [illegible] Motors and Armstrong [illegible].

RAILS SLIGHTLY LOWER

Rails, on the whole were only slightly behind. Advances were registered for Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, American Can and Allied Chemical.

Beside the new unionization difficulties confronting General Motors, coolness toward automobile issues was attributed partly to reports from Michigan that a number of plants will cut operations to a three-day week next month.

Coppers were handicapped by estimates consumption of the red metal is now running at the rate of about 40,000 tons monthly against an average of 60,000 tons earlier this year. It was emphasized though that consumption is almost double new sales at present indicating heavy inventories rapidly are being cut down.

BUILDING MATERIALS

In the matter of building material shares observers pointed out that residential construction contracts awarded during the next two months probably will reflect sharper declines from the preceding year's levels because of the high rate of activity maintained in the corresponding 1936 periods.

Studying the problems of inventories analysts noted government figures disclosing stocks held by manufacturers and department stores for the fall of this year reflected greater gains over 1936 than were shown by 1929 holdings compared with those of 1928.

Exemplifying the dipping trade line were indications the rayon industry will substantially reduce operations as the year draws to an end. It was recalled rayon deliveries in October ran only about 50 per cent of production.

Building Awards Drop 21 Per Cent

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—Engineering construction awards for the week ended November 18 dropped 21 per cent under those for the corresponding week of 1936, Engineering News-Record reported today.

Private construction was 33 per cent down, while public awards declined 15 per cent, the publication said.

Intolerant of Defeatism Spirit

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—F. C. Crawford, president of Thompson Products, Inc., of [illegible] who still believes [illegible] American dream [illegible] the spirit of defeatism [illegible] business world.

Mr. Crawford thinks that the application of science and invention to economic problems will carry the American people upward and onward irrespective of temporary recessions. In chatting with me he said:

"We haven't seen anything yet. We haven't begun to modernize the country yet. Why half of all the industrial plants of the country are obsolete, and should be rebuilt. In a world of rapid tempo, it's not normal depreciation that is important, but obsolescence."

By obsolescence, Mr. Crawford meant the process of falling behind in the parade of progress.

WHAT SHOULD BE DONE

Instead of [illegible] with political critics, Mr. Crawford thinks that organized business [illegible] an aggressive, affirmative stand. In delineating the case for business Mr. Crawford uncompromisingly said:

"First, I think it can be demonstrated that American business had nothing to do with getting us into the depression. Political policies and wars caused the trouble.

"Secondly, I believe that American business, if set free, can lift us out of depression.

"Third, in the past, American industry brought us the highest living standards of any people in the world, and it can do so again.

"It can in the future achieve much higher popular wellbeing than was attained in the peak years of the past."

Mr. Crawford's credo includes the assertion that the raising of living standards and the making of wealth are [illegible] overhead [illegible] nothing to [illegible] the wealth. American [illegible] he added [illegible] That he said [illegible] secret [illegible] the facts.

CITES MIRACLE

As illustrative of the [illegible] cles which alert industry is capable of, Mr. Crawford cited the recent example of an accessory company which contracted with an automobile manufacturer to deliver for six cents an item hitherto costing 10 cents.

Mr. Crawford said that under the spur of necessity the supplier found a way to produce the item profitably to sell at 6 cents. He said that this is a familiar occurrence in business and runs counter to the assumption of the political and academic mind that business facts are fixed and static.

Mr. Crawford has some heterodox views about labor relationships. He believes in paying a little less than the market, so that he will have something to concede to his workers in critical situations. He thinks that problems of industrial relationships can be threshed out in meetings between the boss and his workers.

He reports that he finds his own workers extremely sympathetic to the real problems of the business. For example, the question of vacations with pay recently came up in his company. The facts were fully laid before the workers, and, according to Mr. Crawford, the men decided that the company was not quite ready yet to inaugurate the proposed new policy.

ON THE JOB

In general, Mr. Crawford tells his employes to stick with him, emphasizing that he is on the job seeking orders all the time to keep his men employed.

"Mr. Crawford in spite of prevailing statutes, does not believe in the philosophy of bargaining with employes through outside unions, which he is inclined to charge with racketeering tendencies. From the alist." But to talk to Mr. Crawford doubtless would be regarded as an unregenerated "rugged individualist." But due to talk Mr. Crawford is to come to recognize that in him the American pioneering spirit still lives.

Mr. Crawford believes that the American people are going places, and regards much of the current social thinking as mere fog on the highway of progress in raising living standards.

His company makes parts for aircraft and for automobiles.

Harvard Opens Wide The Tide Gates of Football Emotion

IT IS JUST THREE YEARS, COME SATURDAY, since a few student cynics in the Harvard yelling section hoisted painted banners after each Yale touchdown—hand-lettered sneers which read: "Help yourself, Yale" and "Who gives a dam?"

AUSTEN LAKE

At the time it was considered a pathetic attempt to appear reconciled to another in a long series of Yale lickings. There was no distinction in beating Harvard, so the rest of the student area just shrugged off the banners as a juvenile jape and went on giving mild cheers when there was something to cheer about without being vulgar. But the older breed of Harvard grads, who remembered themselves as rugged gents, glared back at these modern heretics, as though wishful to pass them down, hand over hand, and grab off some ragbag souvenirs as they were bounced down the slopes.

But nobody on the stadium rim offered to give the boys a starting kick, so they stayed there unfurling new slurs till the last white line was crossed.

Big Game Pep Meetings

TIMES HAVE CHANGED AT HARVARD. There is even a move to restore the night-before-the-game pep rally as a means of rousing advance frenzy, with the college band tooting battle hymns, the students limbering their larynxes with glory doggerel and a troop of old football codgers mounting the platform to make he-man harangues about the good old victory-era in the tone and manner of mountain preachers scolding the devil.

Harvard dispensed with these pre-game pep meetings after 1924 as being too [illegible] for intelligent dignity. Cultured persons did not shake rattles and scream nursery jingles for victories not yet won. That was the time when Porch Check was forming his [illegible]. So the Harvards decided that the night before the game was [illegible] in cheers. Cheers were for victories won by [illegible] and the time to acknowledge them was after they had occurred.

But the pep meetings are still an important phase of student life in most institutions where football is played and the varsity primitives swarm back on the eve of the big business to retell lies and distortions of college folklore. Old Ole Olson, '04 will tell how old Hank "Trainwreck" Smuckler had snapped his leg off at the ankle before making his memorable 80-yard touchdown run on the raw and bleeding stump, and how Ol! Hank never could get warmed up to his game till he broke a leg.

And presently old Hank, looking gray, shaggy and seedy, would hobble up to take his bows and in grammar that has grown careless with the years give full credit for his run to Old Ole Olson for having cleaned out the [illegible] in front row of boxes, the goal posts and the main ticket entrance with one rolling block. Then he will predict that the Gold, Ogre and Buff of old Subway U will wave triumphant over Rumpsteak Tech in tomorrow's climactic rivalry, even if the colors had dipped to Poormouth and six other assorted teams this season.

These pre-game pep meetings give the football '49ers an annual chance to dust themselves off before going home to climb back on their office stools and adjust their green celluloid eyeshades again. It gives them a glow of virtue in their souls that is very good for them and does the current college kids no harm.

The Black List Comes Back

ONE OTHER MATTER IS BEING REVIVED by Harvard for Saturday's Yale game after a lapse of nearly twenty years—the "Black list" for Harvard men who sell or transfer their ticket courtesy without H. A. A. permission. That is a device invented by the late Major Fred Moore when Harvard held a football monopoly under the great P. D. Haughton, and its big concrete tureen was too small for the customer appeal.

So grandstand sleuths would mouse around the aisles looking for people who clearly did not have the cultural externals to be a Harvard man and, hence, must have gimicked their way past the portals. The "black list" went out when Harvard's football inertia set in and box office statistics began to give clear and mournful indication that the stadium facilities were more than ample for alumni demand. So Harvard began letting the public into its games with no questions asked, and even began pasting up announcements in the subways that it was doing a general football business at a reasonable scale of prices.

Still, it is doubtful that Harvard will penalize its graduates and students who might wish to make a quick dollar on their Yale tickets this week. A few of the Harvards, both young and old, have been experiencing a money pinch during the administration of their leading alumnus, President F. D. Roosevelt, and would like to refresh their feel of funds.

If Harvard blacklists those who yield to this temptation, it may be srapping the end off its own financial nose. Because next year there may be some more big bald spots in the ears of its stadium and it may be able to use the boycotted customers as fillers. The time is not ripe to thwart any customer who wants to spend a little money.

I think this gives you some idea how enthusiasm, prosperity and renewed energy under the Harlow regime has brought rebirth to Harvard football, how Harvard students are reverting to the true college type again and how the eyes of their alumni are beginning to grow a maniacal glint after 20, more or less, lacklustre years.

Yale sticks to its earlier announcement that Al Wilson, flashy halfback, would be kept out of the game by an attack of flu by starting Al Hessberg or Eddie Collins, Jr., to take his place with Capt. Frank, Dave Colwell and Charlie Ewart in the backfield.

The Yale frontier of Hoxton and [illegible] at ends, [illegible] at tackles, [illegible] and Castle at guards and [illegible] at center is the same that has played together all season.

If the rivals run true to form it won't be surprising if Yale drags and Harvard picks up the five-man line and Yale's most effective ground-gaining play is the Crimson's pet spinner.

Stranger things invariably happen when the Crimson and Blue mix on the grid.

The Terriers on the other hand must depend [illegible] for one [illegible] mates.

Although [illegible] game Terrier team which has fairly outstripped pre-season expectations throughout the season, it is hard to see it any other way than the Eagles' greater power should eventually wear down the opposition particularly in the later stages of what should be a bruising game.

Gintoff's knee looks right. He feels right. His passing has improved with his layoff from hard play. The duration of his stay in the game is problematical depending on the way his knee responds to the punishment.

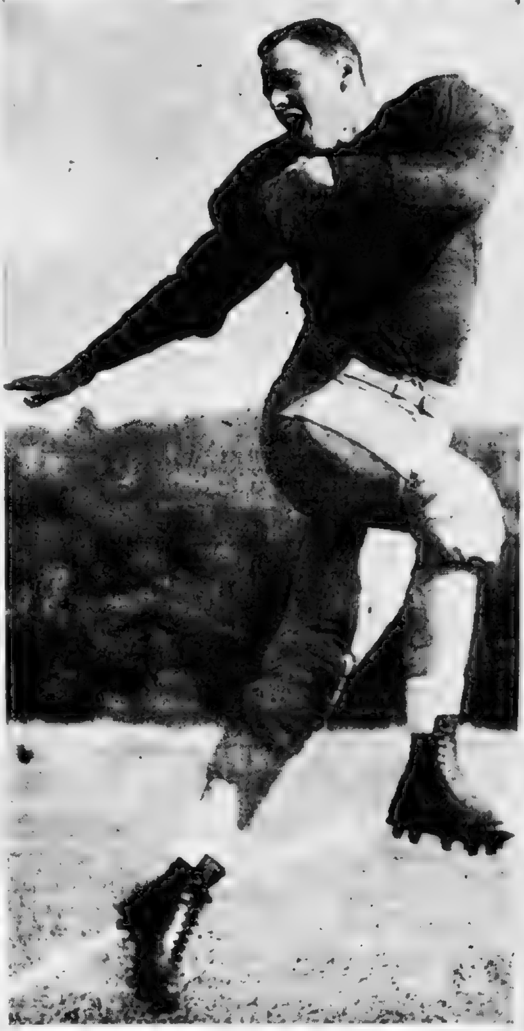
Perhaps Gintoff's dark days are over. Perhaps now in late season he'll overcome the injury jinx and blossom into the full promise expected since he ran riot as a freshman, again as a sophomore.

H. C. Brushes Off Old Scoring Plays

WORCESTER, Nov. 18 (AP)—Although undefeated this year Coach Doc Anderson pawed his files today and discovered his Holy Cross team with a class running back in Bill Osmanski and a class passer in Ronnie Cahill, had scored just five touchdowns in the last five games.

So this afternoon he was scheduled to send his boys through all those forgotten trick and scoring plays in the hope they can remember them Saturday when Carnegie Tech arrives.

Replaces Injured Yale Ace



[illegible]

Al Hessberg, Yale halfback, who will replace the injured Al Wilson in the starting Eli backfield against Harvard Saturday. Hessberg, it will be recalled, caught Captain Frank's forward pass in the fleeting seconds of the Dartmouth game, enabling Yale to tie the Big Green

Al Hessberg Best As 'Spot' Player

Frank as Great on Defense as He Is On Offense

By BILL GRIMES

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 18—Reconciled to the loss of Al Wilson, Yale is set for its biennial invasion of the Harvard Stadium.

Manager Joe Stevens has completed arrangements for the trek to the Belmont Country Club where the Elis will be quartered and the equipment trucks are scheduled to leave for Cambridge tomorrow morning.

[illegible] the West Virginian [illegible] an effective weapon.

WORD ABOUT FRANK

At this time Al Hessberg, the Albany Express, whose completion of a Clint Frank pass with 12 seconds remaining to play, paved the way for Yale to tie Dartmouth, has the call to start in Wilson's right half back berth.

However, it may come to pass that Eddie Collins, Jr., will open against Harvard and Hessberg held in reserve for an emergency.

Since he succeeded [illegible] Frank [illegible] in the spring of 1934 [illegible] his crazy [illegible] "Greasy" Neale has [illegible] remarkably effective offensives.

For three years Clint Frank has been the big gun of the Yale offense. He ranks with the best backs in football, for in three years of varsity competition he has not shown a single weakness.

Some critics are of the opinion that Frank's passing [illegible] 1935 and 1936 [illegible]

[illegible]

During [illegible] Frank [illegible] arms of Charlie Ewart, [illegible] Hoxton and [illegible] the ground.

In fact Yale's overhead game against the Big Green was a disappointment until Al Hessberg entered the game in the second period.

Hessberg can handle forward passes and he emerged from the Dartmouth game with three completions [illegible] attempts.

So much has been written and said about Frank's offensive playing that his defensive ability has been neglected. It's a treat to watch him on the defense.

He is the left tertiary but frequently makes tackles at the line of scrimmage, coming up on the outside. He is so fast and alert that few passes have been completed in his zone.

Yale will bank on Frank offensively and its five-man line defensively.

FOILED BLAIK

Yale threw the big [illegible] out of gear [illegible] It was a surprise [illegible] 2-2 defenses.

Coach Earl Blaik [illegible] Dartmouth went to New Haven [illegible] he had an offense [illegible] Yale [illegible] He failed.

Now Dick Harlow [illegible] can cause Yale [illegible] 5-3-2-1 defense.

According to [illegible] Yale's five-man line is spaced exactly as though there were seven players on the line, with the ends a yard [illegible]

MENTALLY RIGHT

[illegible] Hoxton [illegible] Charlie [illegible]

For Harvard spinners to click, [illegible] MUST be disposed of and [illegible] Colwell [illegible] to reach the open.

Football is not taken over seriously here and for that reason the Elis are [illegible] on the eve of the Harvard game.

Crompton Lost To Terriers

Boston University's starting backfield Saturday against Boston College was definitely settled today after learning that Earle Crompton would be unable to start.

Just recovered from a leg injury Crompton reported with a badly burned thumb, suffered while performing a laboratory experiment.

Pat Hanley was seriously considering benching Captain Leon Spivack and starting Crompton at the quarterback post. The injury forced him to change his plans, so that Spivack will start with Nechtem, Famiglietti and Blaszunski.

But Spivack will not call the signals. That duty has been added to Nechtem's already heavy burden.

N. C. A. A. Victor In Sport Fight With A. A. U.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP)—The National Collegiate Athletic Association today has won a victory in its fight for control of several Olympic game sport committees.

For years the Amateur Athletic Union has had the upper hand of most Olympic sport teams, and the N. C. A. A. has demanded control of sports in which its member schools furnished a high percentage of the athletes.

A compromise was adopted yesterday at the quadrennial meeting of the American Olympic Association which gave the N. C. A. A. equal representation with the A. A. U. on committees in charge of men's track and field, boxing, men's swimming, wrestling, men's gymnastics, basketball, field handball and ice hockey.

Each organization will have six representatives who will agree on a thirteenth member. The A. A. U. continues to hold majority membership on other committees on sports in which colleges do not compete.

Avery Brundage of Chicago was re-elected president. Other officers re-elected were vice-president, Dr. Joseph E. Raycroft of Princeton, N. J.; secretary, Frederick W. Rubien of New York, and treasurer, Gustavus T. Kirby of New York.

All Leading 'Pures' To Show Monday At Arena

[illegible]

That's what the fight followers are saying about the William Randolph Hearst All America amateur championships which reach their fourth and final stage in the New England [illegible] at Boston Arena next Monday night.

What these ringside critics are saying is true. The youngsters give everything they've got in these three-round limit bouts. They go in and swing from start to finish. The action is fast and furious. Little wonder knockouts come hot and heavy.

As a matter of fact there have been no fewer than 20 knockouts at any of the three previously held shows. The average for the force would be even greater.

So that those who crave their mitt spectacle along K. O. lines are never disappointed in the All-Americas.

Excitement reaches a new high at this time, on the eve almost of the New England finals which are stepping stones to the Eastern and Grand National All America championship finals.

Each of the winners of the many open and novice divisions during the tryouts automatically qualifies for the New England finals and open winners of the latter go

In the featherweight open there were Fred Mattrem, Lawrence; Joe steaming along into the easterns.

The entries are piling up heavier than for any other show.

In today's mail the blanks of many leading "pures" were received including Joe Morrissette, Fall River; Edward Spirdione, Lawrence; Joe Wazil, Lawrence; Ralph Peloquin, Berlin, N. H. and Johnny Griffin, Tewksbury in the 112 pound open.

ITCHING FOR FIGHT

CHICAGO, Nov. 18 (AP)—Joe Louis is just itching to pull on his fighting togs after a layoff of ten weeks "just to get the feel of boxing again."

The world heavyweight champion said so today, but he won't have his craving satisfied until next Monday when he starts a ten day span of gymnasium work.

Louis will not fight until next February when he expects to make a defense of his title against a challenger in New York, but he is anxious to sharpen his punching eye, after being idle since defeating Tommy Farr in their fifteen round bout Aug. 30.

The titleholder said he believed he scaled around 210 pounds at present, which is ten pounds above his normal boxing weight.

He added that he hadn't bothered to get on the scales for a couple of weeks and that he had been eating plenty of fried chicken in the meantime.

Since defeating the Welshman Louis has travelled nearly 20,000 miles appearing in forty cities and towns with his negro softball team, playing first base himself. Capacity crowds greeted him everywhere.

Louis was kept busy before the klieg lights in Hollywood while starring in a picture to be entitled "The Spirit of Youth" which portrays his life.

Making movies was all right, the Brown Bomber said, but since finishing the picture, he has craved practice with the gloves.

"I guess I ain't no Robert Taylor," Louis mumbled.

Asked how he liked acting Jack Blackburn, his trainer replied:

"We like it just swell."

Joe was asked how he felt.

Again Blackburn answered:

"We feel just swell."

Louis leaves this afternoon for Detroit to spend the week end with his mother.

The champ [illegible] said he positively would do no boxing until after Thanksgiving when he plans to stuff himself as full as a billy goat with turkey dressing and all the trimmings, his favorite dish.

"That's one day I'm going to eat my head off," Louis mumbled.

Marblehead High Gets Post-Season Offer From Texas

Game, If Scheduled, Played Late in December

Another single game is scheduled for the Bee Hive tomorrow afternoon . . . Skip Sherlock's Hyde Park eleven will try to make a comeback against Jamaica after its loss of last week to East Boston . . . the Plainers haven't chalked up a victory since the middle of October . . . and in that stretch have scored only one touchdown . . . this to tie the Charlestown entry.

Lynn Classical will get back into action Saturday although the boys were originally scheduled for a layoff ... the rain postponed game of Oct. 23 with Nashua, N. H., high will be played at Lynn . . . Pete Chesnulevich's club has been idle for two weeks with cancellation of the Lowell tilt.

Marblehead high's traveling eleven may schedule an intersectional game for the latter part of December . . . Coach Charlie McGuinness has had an offer from Port Arthur High School of Texas.

TEWKSBURY UNBEATEN

Capt. Ray Lynch is expected to be back in the Punchard High lineup for Saturday's game with Methuen ... Lynch, among the leading scorers in the state, has been out of practice all week with the grippe.

Tewksbury High School, undefeated in its seven games this season, is gunning for its big Thanksgiving Day rival, Wilmington . . . last season Wilmington won in a one-sided 24 to 0 game . . . Coach Don Dunnan hopes to reverse the count this season . . . the only blotch on an otherwise perfect Tewksbury card is a scoreless tie with Chelmsford.

Dunnan's crew is sparked by a classy triple threat, Joe Kane . . . Kane is captain, handles the kicking and passing and is a fine broken field runner . . . Bernard Marion is the big noise on the Tewksbury forward wall . . . few plays work successfully around his end . . . and he is an expert at snaring passes.

SWAMPSCOTT SET

Coach Fred Twomey expects to have his Amesbury line in tip-top shape for Saturday's game with Ipswich . . . the return to eligibility of Bob Woods and Paul Stefanski, guard and center, should help the team greatly.

Swampscott high's four straight wins—the latest over Newburyport—has assured the team of at least a tie for the Northeastern conference title . . . Swampscott has but one more game to play in the circuit . . . the Thanksgiving Day match with Marblehead . . . a win or tie here will clinch the title . . . a loss by Swampscott will mean a tie for the top rung.

The standings:

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Swampscott	4	0	1000
Marblehead	3	1	.750
Newburyport	2	2	.500
Saugus	2	2	.500
Amesbury	1	3	.250
Danvers	0	4	000

Despite its tough game with Roslindale high, there was no let up in the training schedule at South Boston . . . Coach Steve White had his entire undefeated crew working out at Columbus Stadium yesterday . . . his big game of the season, East Boston, will take place Monday . . . despite Eastie's in-and-out record, Coach White thinks this will be a hard nut to crack.

MECHANICS REJOICES

English suffered its first defeat in the Boston school ranks at the Bee Hive at the hands of Mechanic Arts . . . the total fumbles in this game probably amounted to more than have been committed at the Hive all season . . . the Mechanics club was so overjoyed the boys carried John Zanelli off the field at the end of the game after his touchdown put the Holland team in the lead . . . it was the first time since 1928 that Mechanics has beaten English . . . and the second time that Coach Dutch Holland has whipped a Blue and Blue eleven.

Forty candidates reported to Coach George Haggerty this week in preparation for Lowell's coming track season . . . among the veterans was Henry Lis, a dashman who showed a lot of promise on last season's team . . . many of the veterans, including Captain Billy Wood, are still on the grid squad and will not be able to report until the first week in December . . . the season will open in January with the Alumni offering the opposition.

What! Real H-Y Tickets?

Harvard and Yale football tickets are at a premium. All kinds of prices are being offered for pasteboards for this gridiron classic here Saturday, and when Rita Sullivan of Somerville showed these six Harvard-Yale tickets to Joe Miller of New York he almost collapsed. Miss Sullivan and Mr. Miller are the vaudeville team of Satch and Satchel. (See Ann Marsters' Girl About Town Column.)

McCoy-Lenglet Bout Steams Up Montreal | Lenglet to Have Weight Margin

By JACK CONWAY

Mr. Boston

THE DIN OF the football ballyhoo, which is sweeping from Coast to Coast and also from North to South, has not been sufficient to erase thoughts of heavyweight boxers from the minds of the publiu. A careful examination of newspapers from all parts of the United States and Canada has led me to believe that boxing is running second to football in the matter of interest.

Horse racing has lost some of its appeal as the thoroughbreds have moved South. You will not find a wild revival of enthusiasm in horse racing until Hialeah Park in Florida and Santa Anita in California open their Winter meetings.

It is just as well that it should be that way as New England race goers are a bit weary after a season of horse racing that lasted from early May until last Saturday. Even horse players need a little rest and some spare time in which to earn some new money for the hungry mutuel machines or for their favorite bookmakers.

I have been reading several of Montreal's leading daily newspapers, and find that this progressive Canadian city is more interested in the ten-round bout between Al McCoy and Andre Lenglet, which will be staged in the Forum on next Thursday night, than in any other sports event.

The McCoy-Lenglet bout, which brings together two of the foremost heavyweights in the world, is a natural as far as Montreal is concerned. McCoy, born of French parents in Maine, is the top boxing card in Montreal. Al can step into a Montreal ring against any kind of an opponent and draw $10,000. This is because he has always put up first class fights in the Canadian city.

In Montreal, McCoy is as popular as Georges Carpentier was when he was the idol of France. Al is a handsome, dashing youngster like Carpentier was when the latter first blazed his way to ring fame.

McCoy also has a punch which is one of the biggest possible assets for any boxer. Al is liable to tip over the opposition at any time with either his left or right hand. There are few heavyweights who are able to belt with either hand like McCoy.

McCoy has been training in Montreal for ten days. Manager Bill Brennan told me in a recent conversation over the long distance telephone that Al is in fine condition, and that he will try to win by a knockout. If McCoy wins, he will continue his drive for a bout with Joe Louis.

McCoy is frank in declaring he believes he would be able to defeat Louis, whom he considers a very much overrated fighter. In this respect Al agrees with such capable boxing minds as Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey.

* * *

Lenglet Comes From France

ANDRE LENGLET was born in Paris, and came to the United States a year ago with Bertys Perry. The latter formerly managed Paulino, Basque heavyweight who clashed with Max Schmeling, Primo Carnera and other prominent heavyweights.

Lenglet is six feet tall and weighs 194 pounds. He is 12 pounds heavier than McCoy. This extra poundage will be helpful to Lenglet in the warfare at close quarters.

In Montreal, Lenglet has made a wide appeal to the French population. He has gained many supporters who are of the opinion he will win from McCoy.

Lou Dettner, the promoter of the McCoy-Lenglet battle, says the keen rivalry between the followers of the two boxers will result in a gate of between $20,000 and $25,000 on Thursday night at the Forum.

Dettner has also been favored by a natural ballyhoo. The bout was originally planned for October, but was postponed when McCoy suffered an injury to one of his heels. The Montreal Boxing Commission suspended McCoy at the time and there were charges that Al ran out of the match.

Such was not the case, as McCoy hasn't any fear for any heavyweight. The belief on the part of many people that McCoy wasn't any too anxious to trade punches with Lenglet has added fire to the Montreal bout, and if the Forum isn't large enough to care for the crowd that will wish to witness the affair it will not upset Promoter Dettner.

20,000 Tickets Awarded Yale For Game

Carroll F. Getchell, business manager of the Harvard Athletic Association, released the above diagram today to show how the stadium seats for the Harvard-Yale game Saturday were allotted. After Yale had been taken care of with 20,000 seats on the east side of the field, Getchell classified the Harvard applicants into six groups and took care of them in the following order: Group 1—One seat applicants. Undergraduates of the College and members of the Engineering School who are not college graduates. Graduates of the College and Engineering School. Group 2—Service list applicants. Varsity, junior varsity and freshmen squads, managers and coaches. Group 3—Special list applicants. President of the University, governor of Massachusetts, mayors of Boston and Cambridge. Members of the athletic committee, corporation and board of overseers, former football "H" men and class of 1879 which donated the money to build the stadium. Group 4—Two-seat applicants. Undergraduates of the College and members of the Engineering School who are not college graduates. Members of the Varsity Club. Graduates and Faculty of the College and Engineering School. The allotment in this group is made by classes filled chonologically from the oldest to the youngest. Group 5—One-seat applicants. Present members and graduates of the Graduate Schools. Group 6—Two-seat applicants. Present members and graduates of the Graduate Schools.

Mattapony Best Bet at Bowie, Says Wilson

By DAVE WILSON

(Selections for fast track)

BEST BET—MATTAPONY—FOURTH RACE

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 18—On performance, Howard Bruce's Mattapony, sterling second to Over Yonder only a few days back at Pimlico, looks all the part of a blazing cinch to triumph over indifferent Maryland breds slated to oppose him in the six furlongs of the fourth spasm here tomorrow.

Mattapony shapes up not only as the day's most probable winner, but as the safest wagering hazard of the meeting to date.

FIRST—Gulf Breeze, Heraldic, La Rose

GULF BREEZE, a distant second to Soigne in last race, needs only to duplicate that sterling performance to lead home less capable rivals in the day's opener. Contention, if any, may be furnished by HERALDIC. The latter did not do at all badly in last race, being barely nosed out by Teddums. LA ROSE, although badly beaten by the top selection in last race, shapes up well in the fight for show honors.

SECOND—Deep End, Hazel Nut, Mintson

DEEP END was pitted in high Beacon Hill society at Pimlico and never had a chance to prove his true worth. Going back to top New England form, the Paragon Stable colorbearere looks like a "lock" to head platers such as he encounters in the second. HAZEL NUT is anything but a jewel of consistency, but on tip-top form she figures to prove a real tough nut to crack. MINTSON seems to have taken a new lease on life in this sector and cannot be disregarded in the fight for show honors.

THIRD—Nadir, Flying Orphan, Gold Cross

NADIR and FLYING ORPHAN figure to finish as named in the third race, but both horses are on the "also eligible" list and will probably remain in the barns. With the top pair on the sidelines, the race would seem made to order for GOLD CROSS. The latter just missed drubbing Eddie H. on opening day. MISS LEANNAH, which knocked out several heats at Rockingham Park, will move up in the event of scratches.

FOURTH—Mattapony, Unheralded, Gramercy

If MATTAPONY meets defeat it will probably be at the hands or rather flying heels of UNHERALDED. The latter was placed too highly in his most recent endeavor, but in front of that at Pimlico he finished a bangup third to Challephen. GRAMERCY, away since July, comes strongly recommended by the clockers and must be entitled to, at least, a look-in.

FIFTH—Savage Beauty, White Cockade, Scrooge.

SAVAGE BEAUTY, a bangup third to Conquer and Bootlees in Pimlico final, gets into the fifth beautifully spotted under 113 pounds. This way rigged, the W. L. Brann colorbearer should be along in time to run down faint-hearted WHITE COCKADE for major honors. The latter's only competitive essay at Pimlico was probably in the nature of a conditioner and should not be taken too seriously. The E. K. Bryson colorbearer is capable of giving any man's horse a race when right. SCROOGE for the remainder.

SIXTH—Lady Tichner, Sallandry, Light Chatter

Dropping down several rungs on the claiming ladder, LADY TICHNER, third to White Hot and Prince Sador in New England final, should never leave the result of the sixth race in doubt. SALLANDRY, too highly placed in Pimlico final and winner of previous test over same track, is exceptionally fond of the local racing strip and looks all over the main danger. LIGHT CHATTER, on top form, appears to hold a good chance of crashing the payoff.

SEVENTH—Golden Vein, Midshipman, Copper Tube

Dropping three pounds in actual weight, GOLDEN VEIN, dead-short second to Braving Danger in last race, shapes up all powerful in the mile and a furlong nightcap. MIDSHIPMAN, winner of three straight races at Rockingham Park, figures next best in what appears to be strictly a two-horse race. COPPER TUBE, if started, shapes up next best.

Supremacy Over For Irish Eleven

By MURRAY KRAMER.

Elmer Layden

It looks as though the day of undefeated seasons for Notre Dame is a thing of the past . . . this is no reflection on Elmer Layden, but is rather due to the many changes that have taken place since the days of Knute Rockne.

Under "Rock" the Fighting Irish had so many football players that they could use three teams interchangeably . . . today a dozen other colleges throughout the country have squads just as great as Notre Dame. . . . Layden is forced to use his starting team in most every game, due to the suicide schedule, and the terrific poundings received from teams like Minnesota, Pittsburgh, Army and Navy take their toll.

While speaking of Notre Dame, here is a tip for anybody who might visit the South Bend school—just call any football player you see "Joe" and you won't be far wrong in many cases, for 43 out of the first squad have Joseph for their first or second name.

Chalk up a victory for the Hearst paper in Seattle, Wash., the Seattle Post . . . the rival newspaper there, the Times, has been after the scalp of Jimmy Phelan, University of Washington coach, for some time . . . it has continually flayed the Huskies' mentor in news stories, editorials and cartoons . . . the Post refused to crucify the popular West Coast mentor and, when his team tied California, it had a great time . . . the Post suggested welcoming Phelan back home when he returned with his squad, and a crowd of 5000 braved a driving rainstorm in the late evening to pay tribute to Jimmy and his squad . . . the mayor and other dignitaries were on hand.

Speaking of great football teams, how about University of Colorado? . . . this year it is unbeaten and untied, and for years it has been the outstanding team in the Rocky Mountain Conference . . .

Ralph Foster, Oklahoma Aggies lineman, is excused every time the squad is over in the pit working on the tackling dummies . . . Foster has hay fever, and the lint on the dummies gives him severe sneezing spells . . . Another odd item is that Bob Herwig, California's All-America center, has a peculiar helmet that looks like a single blinker . . . it is used to cover a bad eye which Bob received in the opening game.

The Chicago Black Hawks in the National League are still very much interested in obtaining American athletes . . . their latest overtures have been to Johnny Marucci, Minnesota's sophomore end . . . Bernie Bierman is trying to convince Johnny to remain in school, but the cash inducement from the Black Hawks may settle the issue.

Dick Harlow

Dick Harlow is using every bit of strategy and every football trick in the book in priming his Harvard squad for the Yale game . . . Dick realizes that Yale is the favorite but that Harvard has an excellent chance to come through with an upset . . . his desire to win this year is stronger than ever before, due to the fact that the next couple of years look rather lean for the Crimson . . . the past two freshman teams have been nothing to write home about and, with the loss of several stars from this year's club, the outlook is none too rosy.

Pat Hanley will also be able to indulge in quite a bit of justifiable weeping after this season . . . he loses seven regulars from his present iron man team, and with the realization that the 1935 and 1936 teams did not win a single game, Pat is far from happy over the 1938 prospects.

$26,000 Yearling Named Temulac By Wright

(By the Associated Press)

Warren Wright, owner of the Calumet Farm, has given the name of Temulac to the high priced yearling which he purchased at the Saratoga sales last August. The colt, top price among the yearlings, cost $26,000. He is by Sir Gallahad 3d-Marching Along, the latter a daughter of Man O'War.

Frank Kearns, trainer of Wright's horses, plans to go East with the big strapping colt. While Kearns will race a string in Florida this winter, Temulac will remain at home to receive his racing education at the Calumet Farm near Lexington.

Late nominations for the $50,000 Widener Challenge Cup to be run at Hialeah Park this winter include Walter Carter's Clodian, Buckley M. Byers' Thorson and Mrs. P. Watts' Busy K.

Thorson has been one of the most consistent performers in the handicap division this year. Busy K. was late rounding into form, while Clodian has done little since failing in the Kentucky Derby.

Jockey Charlie Kurtsinger, one of the year's outstanding riders, has hung up his tack for a month. The "Flying Dutchman," pilot of War Admiral, had left for a vacation at his home in Louisville and will not return to the saddle until the opening of Tropical Park, December 20.

Earl Sande, who enjoyed a successful winter in Florida last season, will have an even stronger hand for the coming meetings at Hialeah and Tropical Parks.

In The Chief and Stagehand, he has two promising candidates for the $20,000 Flamingo stakes for 3-year-olds, while Sceneshifter is certain to be one of the favorites for the $50,000 Widener if he rounds into the form that carried him into second place back of War Admiral in the Belmont stakes last June.

Crisler Boosted In Student Press

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 18 (INS)—Fritz Crisler, Princeton football coach who has come in for considerable criticism because of the team's poor record this year, today was heartened by a boost in the editorial columns of the Daily Princetonian, Princeton University undergraduate newspaper. The editorial read in part:

"The average Princeton partisan and intelligent football writer knows that no college team can win all the time, that even the best coaches have their ups and downs, and that Fritz Crisler is the most effective coach Princeton has had for a long time.

"He may have made a number of minor mistakes, but it will take a darn sight more than one losing year to convince us that Fritz is slipping."

B. C. Ice Coach Banks on Sophs

Under the watchful eye of Coach John "Snooks" Kelley, the Boston College hockey sextet is getting in shape for its opening game with Princeton on December 4.

The Eagle puck-chasers have been working out three times a week with the Olympic Club and are rapidly nearing the pink of condition.

Led by Captain Joe Hartigan, star center iceman last year, the Eagles have a large array of talented sophomore material up from last year's yearling six. Coach Kelley hopes to whip a line into shape out of this material.

There is a possibility that Ray Coyne, Arlington junior, may win the starting billet over experienced Mario Roccio in the Eaglet net.

PINNED!

Wrestlers Ineligible For Old Age Pension

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (INS)—Mothers and fathers, attention!

Don't bring up your boy to be a wrestler.

If you do he won't be eligible for old age pensions or unemployment insurance.

The Internal Revenue Bureau has so ruled.

It held that a wrestler was not really employed by anybody, would only work for a short time and was being paid "by the job."

This, the bureau decided, doesn't bring him within the eligibility rules for old age pensions and unemployment insurance.

Phillips Rites In Gloucester Tomorrow

Was Former Member Of Boston Firm Of Architects

GLOUCESTER, Nov. 18—Funeral services for Ezra L. Phillips, well known architect, will be held tomorrow from his home, 30 Gloucester avenue. He was 67.

Phillips attended the local schools and was graduated from the old Boston Normal Art School. After five years with a firm of Boston architects he established his own business in Gloucester.

Among the buildings he designed were the Gloucester Y. M. C. A., the Bass Rock Golf Clubhouse, the Eastern Avenue School, the Savoy Hotel and several additions to the Addison Gilbert Hospital.

He was vice-president of the Gloucester Safe Deposit and Trust Company, treasurer of the Cape Ann Anchor Works and a trustee of the Addison Gilbert Hospital. He leaves his widow and a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Christopherson of Burlington, Vt.

MRS. AMY McGOVERN

Funeral services for Mrs. Amy McGovern, mother of Detective Joseph McGovern of the Boston police, were held this morning from her home, 858 Broadway, South Boston, followed by a solemn high mass of requiem in St. Brigid's Church, South Boston.

Besides the Boston detective, Mrs. McGovern leaves two other sons, Thomas, a clerk in the Hanover street postoffice, and Fred, a foreman in the city paving department.

SANFORD K. GURNEY

BROCKTON, Nov. 18—The funeral of Sanford K. Gurney, a member of the 86-year-old firm of Gurney Brothers Jewelry Company, will be held tomorrow with the Rev. Francis L. Cooper, pastor of the South Congregational Church officiating.

He was born in Brockton 82 years ago. After graduation from Brown University he entered the business in which five generations of his ancestors had preceded him.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Mabelle Gurney; two sons, Joseph C. of Brockton and Richard C. of Lakeville, Ct., and a grandson, Peter Gurney.

WILLIAM A. TOWLE

NEWBURYPORT, Nov. 18—The funeral of William A. Towle, 70, who died as the result of a fall, will be held this afternoon from his home, 64 Boardman street.

He was a retired silversmith and son of the founder of the Towle Manufacturing Company, silversmiths. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Charlotte Towle, and a son, Anthony, principal of the Bristol, Conn., high school.

RICHARD BOARDMAN

Funeral services for Richard deBlois Boardman, Boston yachtsman and architect, will be held this afternoon in the Mount Auburn Cemetery chapel. He died at Mary Alley Hospital in Marblehead.

Boardman leaves two brothers, Gerald D. and Edwin A. Boardman of Boston, and his wife, the former Shirley Mary Sheldon of Newton.

EDMOND P. TALBOT, JR.

FALL RIVER, Nov. 18—Edmond P. Talbot, Jr., 18, son of former mayor Edmond P. Talbot of this city, died today in St. Anne's Hospital here after two-months illness.

He was associated in the drug business with his father, who is also a trustee of the Eastern Massachusetts Railway Company.

The youth was educated in schools here and graduated from B. M. C. Durfee high school in 136.

He is survived by his father, his mother, Mrs. Alma M. Beaupre Talbot, two brothers, Roland E., claim adjuster for the Eastern Mass. Railway company in Lowell; and David D., and four sisters, Anita F., Madeline M., and Loretta M., and Mrs. Henrietta Marcoux.

JAY F. CARLISLE

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—Jay F. Carlisle, 69, former member of the board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange, is dead today after a 10-day illness.

Carlisle, long prominent in Wall street, bred retriever dogs as a hobby and was one of the nation's foremost exhibitors of the breed.

Attend Canadian Club Dinner

SUMNER WHEELER E. G. GOUDEY T. E. P. PRINGLE

Democracy triumphed in the election of Maurice J. Tobin as mayor of this city, Henry Parkman, Jr., had declared today.

Speaking before 200 persons at a dinner of the Canadian Club of Boston in the Hotel Kenmore last night, Parkman asserted that the naming of the young mayor-elect was a death blow to the old machine-dominated political system. He told those present:

"The elections in Boston, New York and Detroit were symptomatic of progressive thought everywhere."

Tobin, who is in Washington attending the annual meeting of the United States Mayors' Conference, was represented by William Arthur Reilly, campaign manager in the recent election. Reilly declared that Tobin was assured of a successful administration because organizations like the Canadian Club were supporting him.

Other speakers included Leslie L. Williamson, president of the club; E. P. Pringle, chairman; John K. Howard, president of the New England Museum of Natural History, and the Rev. Peter L. Batula, noted Canadian parish priest and hunter.

Warns of Crowds As Cold Breeders

This is the fourth of a series of twelve articles by Dr. Bundesen, head of Chicago's health department and distinguished authority on public health. If you are a grandmother, watch for Dr. Bundesen's article tomorrow. It will be of special interest to you.

By DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

You look over the evening or morning paper . . . you see a number of bargains. There is a fine house dress for $1.95. And a coat for $24.50—a regular $40 value.

Somehow you don't feel so well this morning; it is storming outdoors. Perhaps you feel all tired out and "achey" and you think you may be coming down with a cold. Well, there isn't a bargain you read about for which you should risk your health. Let me assure you that the only one that believes pneumonia is a bargain is the Grim Reaper.

AVOID STANDING

Of course, it is worth while and profitable to look for bargains. If you feel well and are thoroughly rested, you can go downtown and enjoy the day. For two reasons, plan to avoid the rush hours on street cars and buses.

First, you should not stand up for a long time. Second, getting into a crowded street car or bus is just taking a greater chance of getting a cold than if you go when there are not so many people around you.

When you plan your shopping trip, do not schedule more than you can do without becoming exhausted. Exhaustion, plus the infection from shoppers who have colds, spells danger.

So, if some of the things on your list are not purchased, let them go until another day. When you get home from your trip, lie down for at least fifteen minutes; it will help to renew your strength.

You have heard all sorts of reasons for doing your Christmas shopping early. No reason is more important than this: Christmas preparations alone tax the reserve energy of the woman of the home. Add to that the rush and hurry of the few days before Christmas and you may be putting too great a load on the body, when colds and "flu" are so common everywhere. The body may lose its power to resist these dangerous invaders, and a cold, influenza, or pneumonia may result.

KEEP FEET WARM

If you have to remain in one store for any length of time, take off your coat and carry it on your arm. Try to adjust yourself to the temperature around you. It goes without saying that you should be warmly clad, and that you should wear galoshes to keep your feet warm. But clothing, so tight and heavy that it causes you to carry more weight on your body and, besides, makes you too warm and "sweaty," should be avoided.

If you are on an all-day shopping trip, take time to rest whenever you can. There is always a chair or a bench you can use, if only for a few minutes. Take plenty of time for lunch. Do not eat too fast or too much. Make your shopping a happy experience, not a tiresome, exhausting one. You will save your energy and, perhaps, save yourself a siege in bed.

Plan to get a great deal of rest the day before you go on a day's shopping, and to rest the next day as much as possible. Be fit when you go on any strenuous undertaking. If you are fit, you have a better chance to ward off the cold and "flu" germs.

Watch for tomorrow's article on "If you are a Grandmother."

Parking Squad Gives Up Chalk

Mail First Warning To Offending Drivers

Boston police threw away their chalk today.

Hereafter, members of the "chalkateers" — the auto parking squad — will content themselves merely with noting down the license numbers of suspected cars.

The practice of putting a chalk mark on the car so it can be the more readily identified for overtime parking later, will be discontinued.

"Smart" motorists rub the chalkmarks off, anyway, it was explained—and anyway, the license number is enough. Hereafter, the first warning of trouble to offending motorists will be a court summons in the mail.

Police Commissioner Timilty said traffic conditions already have improved materially as a result of the drive. The "chalkateers"—without their chalk—will remain on duty "indefinitely," he said.

Figuring Close

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP)—It will take 40,000 turkeys to provide Thanksgiving dinner for the 300,000 boys in the Civilian Conservation Corps, the director's office said today.

Wharf 'Racket' Trio Flee

What police say may be the start of a new "racket" on the water front was disclosed today when three men made an unsuccessful attempt to halt the unloading of a truck from Cambridge, Md., at Commercial Wharf.

"You'll have to let our men do that, or you can't unload," Russell Messick, driver of the truck, said one of the three men told him and his helper, Orville Nourse.

Messick made some excuse, slipped away, and told Charles H. Flynn, office manager for the National Brokerage Company, to whom the truck shipment was consigned. Flynn called police.

Inspector Robert Bowes and four policemen responded in a police cruiser. At sound of the cruiser's siren the three men who had accosted Messick and Nourse fled.

Robber Victim Calls Firemen

Given Costly Ride By 3 New 'Friends'

Ernest Brogna, 27, Chambers street, West End, told Mattapan police today that three new found friends dragged him from the auto in which they were giving him a ride, robbed him of his wallet containing $10 and then beat him.

They took away his trousers and fled, leaving him shivering in the cold at the corner of Canterbury and Bourne streets, Mattapan.

Brogna turned in a fire alarm to call aid and a police car that responded with the apparatus took him to the station.

He said he met the men in a cafe and that when it closed they suggested a ride.

As soon as they reached a lonely section they stopped the car and staged the robbery.

+ Show me Thy ways, O Lord; Teach me Thy paths. Lead me in Thy truth, and teach me.—Psalm XXV., 4, 5. +

The text for today is suggested by the Rev. Walter Sturtevant, pastor of the Main Street Baptist Church, Newport, Vt. The text for tomorrow will be suggested by the Rev. Dr. Harold Major, First Baptist Church, Boston.

The Editor Says:

SENATOR PAT HARRISON, of Mississippi, as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, has declared unequivocally that Federal tax revision has become the outstanding problem with which the Congress must deal.

A number of other Senators have taken a similar position.

Inasmuch as revenue measures must originate in the House of Representatives, however, action will have to wait upon the deliberations of that body.

The Senate's power to amend will enable the tax-revision and "economy-minded" Senators to make their views felt, if the House measures should be unsatisfactory.

Much time would be saved if the House committee attacked the problem quickly and boldly, proposing to do IMMEDIATELY those things which can be done now, and leaving for the regular session the more complicated procedures.

Thus, the Capital Gains and Undivided Surplus taxes can be dealt with AT ONCE, thereby giving business—

PROMPT RELIEF.

At the same time, the House committee must realize that too little reform of a thoroughly vicious tax system will not be enough, even though it be a step in the right direction.

For example, the House sub-committee tentatively agreed to exempt all corporations having $5000 of net income, or less, from the punitive Undivided Profits tax.

This ill-considered impost undoubtedly falls with especial heaviness on small enterprises, which most need relief.

Yet it is unintelligent to continue to destroy and emaciate larger companies, which are SUBSTANTIAL EMPLOYERS OF LABOR.

This particular tax is FALLACIOUS IN CONCEPT and RUINOUS IN ADMINISTRATION.

THE REAL REMEDY

—lies in REPEAL, and not in the revision of the measure.

Likewise, the vicious Capital Gains Tax fails to accomplish its purpose, and serves primarily to impede transactions. It should be fundamentally altered.

And the total tax load should be lowered through economy in governmental spending.

The ultimate need is a comprehensive revamping of the whole Federal tax system by the regular session, to put it into harmony with the fiscal policy and requirements of the States and the municipalities.

In the final analysis, the burden of paying for the overhead of government rests on the shoulders of the self-supporting Americans.

No patent medicine tax scheme can change that.

MR. TOBIN LEARNS

—amazing facts about the distribution of Federal funds during his stay in Washington.

He finds, for instance, that Massachusetts, while ranking SIXTEENTH in per capita wealth, ranked FORTY-SECOND among the States in the percentage of relief money allotted by the New Deal.

He further discovers that the total amount of relief per capita for Massachusetts was a mere $35.16, while Montana, which pays relatively little in taxes, received $102.59 per capita and New Mexico, $94.07 per capita.

The Mayor-elect rightly maintains that the cost of living is as great in Massachusetts as it is in other States which pay less and receive vastly more. Consequently he demands a departure from the policy of inequalities and a FAIR DEAL from the New Deal.

We sincerely hope he succeeds. All Massachusetts is backing him. We are tired of paying for cake and getting only the crumbs.

WARE'S COURAGE

—deserves praise, and we do not hesitate to give it. Public spirited citizens of that town have raised a $36,000 fund to purchase the huge plant of the Otis Mills, recently closed.

Additional money, now being subscribed, will be used to prepare the factory for occupancy by various manufacturing companies, whose advent to Ware promises work and wages for hundreds of the jobless.

Manchester, N. H., adopted a similar plan when abandonment of the mile-long Amoskeag plant threatened ruin for the city. What happened everybody knows. The experiment became the nation's success story of the year.

Ware, too, can succeed, and so can other gloom-shrouded municipalities. Confidence and the determination to work together for the common good are the combination that drives out depressions.

"THE LORD GIVES"

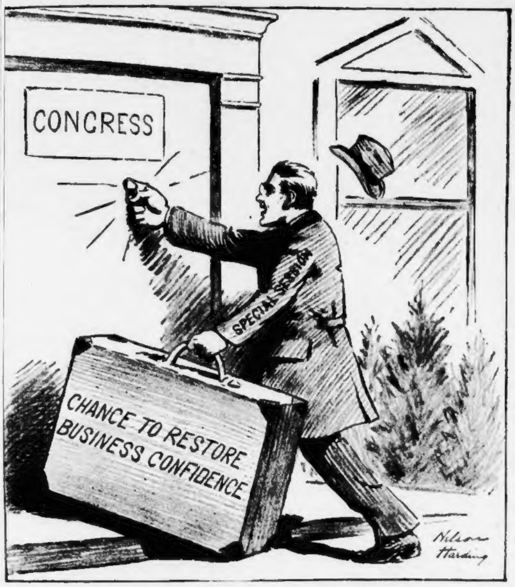
—In this way Governor Hurley expresses humble gratitude for the birth, Tuesday, of a baby daughter.

This little girl will take the place of the other little girl whom God called but five weeks ago.

We all rejoice with the Governor, Mrs. Hurley and their happy family, and, with them, we cannot but realize that God is indeed good.

Opportunity Knocks

By
Nelson Harding



Opportunity, the old adage says, knocks once at every man's door—and opportunity is certainly knocking at the door of Congress.

Unless business gets prompt relief from the repressive laws and from rapacious taxation, the country may be in for another severe depression.

New York Day by Day

By
O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.

THEODORE DREISER seems determined to become an utter recluse from the world. Never a mixer with his fellows, he has for the past ten years been slowly severing the remaining ties. Only a few established friends see him. And now and then he darts into a midnight movie.

When he bought an elaborate off-the-main-highway estate deep in the Mt. Kisco hills a few years ago, he bulwarked his increasing isolation. To a pretentious fireside he invited only a select group. His apartment at the uptown Ansonia was closed.

Now Dreiser has deserted Mt. Kisco for what is known as "a scientific monastery" near Cold Springs Harbor, L. I. He is living in a mere shack with bare floor, no pictures on the wall and not any of the modern conveniences, such as telephone and radio.

Other scientists live there for $2 a week. Dreiser has found their companionship stimulating and believes the world of science is the only one wholesome and clean. He is not alone in his about-face and return to the simplicities. Many artists and writers are burrowing back.

No one is more interesting than Dreiser from the sidelines when defending a cause. It's really an act. He is the picture of sullen rage, rocking to and fro and folding and refolding his handkerchief. Now and then he lashes out like a viper's hiss, his go-funny eye fairly glinting rage. No one I have known seems to express such bitterness toward those he thinks have exploited the weak. His early brushes with poverty still rankle, and yet many of us have had the same disillusionments without his unhappy reaction.

The paying teller in a large bank tells me the average person changes his signature several times before reaching 50, but after that it usually remains as is. Yet there always remain distinguishing lines recognizable to the expert. James J. Walker is an accomplished Jimmy the Penman. His chirography suggests a steel engraving. The most difficult to decipher is that of Noel Coward's loop the loop. The most attractive feminine handwriting is that taught and practiced by the fashionable boarding schools near Philadelphia.

Old-time telegraph operators had a swing that was graceful, and, of course, made for swift writing. Kathleen Norris has mastered a beautiful penmanship, something unusual for those to whom writing is a trade.

During a stretch of newspapering in Dayton, O., years ago, I was, for economic reasons, billeted with a donnish fellow in the dingy room of an equally dingy boarding house on the wrong end of town. Our single light was a gas jet and often I would awaken to see him bending over, writing. He always professed to be making out reports as a salesman.

One morning at daybreak there was a commanding knock at the door. I opened it for two derbied gentlemen whom I happened to know at police headquarters. They were looking for my room-mate who was sound asleep. He was a forger, with four convictions, yet only 26 years of age.

Evidently forgery is a difficult habit to shake. In the past year the same fellow was emblazoned in the New York newspapers for bouncing rubber checks around a fashionable section of Boston, where he had been quite a one.

Thingumbobs: Edgar Wallace, the mystery story writer, was extremely sensitive about a stone deafness . . . Lady Astor is a Donald Duck enthusiast . . . Nijinsky, the famous dancer, mind gone, sits day after day at the window of a Swiss sanitarium, rocking a rag doll . . . He does not even recognize his wife . . . A movement grows to make organized baseball give Babe Ruth a managerial chance or those fostering it will deny their attendance . . . Henry Mencken and George Jean Nathan have a cocktail together now and then, but with formality . . . The buck Ward Morehouse killed in an Idaho hunt hangs at "No. 21."

I have been in but three editorial rooms since I fared forth to syndicate—in St. Louis, New Orleans and Cincinnati. A newsshop to me, however, is the most glamorous of places. The stage and screen often try to capture its undercurrent of tenseness, but never succeed. Just as no reporter ever tops the thrill of achieving an eight-column banner line on first assignment, plus a word of praise from the city editor.

The Marry-Go-Round

TWO-JOB WOMAN

The girl of today has my admiration and my sympathy. She is a "two-job woman," and the dexterity and grace with which she achieves both tasks is positively amazing

In the good old days B. F. (before feminism), if a girl was pretty and well-bred, and knew how to hang onto a man's coatsleeve, and could play a little "rag-time" on the piano, she could get by and be normally popular and happy.

But, nowadays, she must work like the proverbial bee at a desk or a counter all day and look like the lovely, exotic butterfly all evening. The men expect so MUCH of her!

To begin with, she has to be an "eyeful" in order to attract any masculine attention at all. She must have personality and "glamour" and all that sort of thing in bunches. She must have a "snappy line," be groomed like a pet race-horse, and have enough clothes to stock a smart "shoppe," or she will scarcely be noticed.

Moreover, she must be able to manipulate a high-powered car and a typewriter with one hand—and a lipstick with the other. To read law, philosophy, pot-hooks, galley-proof or a card-index with one eye—and cast a come-hither look with the other. To be an efficient, snappy, hard-worker from nine to five—and a jolly little pal, an expert rhumba-dancer, and a Lorelei, from eight until midnight.

Her mother could grow old or fat with perfect nonchalance—but these are "crimes" which nobody forgives these days. So a girl must starve herself to a shadow and paint herself up like a fire-plug to beat TIME!

Oh yes, the pre-war girl had a cinch! It was infinitely easier to be a Moron than it is to be a Miracle! But the girl of today takes it all in her stride and comes through with flying colors.

Human Side of the News

By
Edwin C. Hill

ONE of the great romances of the British Empire is the story of the white Rajah of Sarawak.

In the news it gets a passing allusion in connection with the engagement of the Rajah's great-granddaughter, the beautiful "Princess Babe," to Bob Gregory, European middleweight wrestling champion, and the arrival for a visit in this country of the young lady's mother, the Ranee, or queen, of Sarawak.

The princess is Valeria Brooke, and her blue-blooded family vehemently object to the marriage. Just this little hint ought to be enough to make Hollywood send a crew of scenario writers to Borneo, where Sir Charles Vyner de Windt Brooke still rules this fantastic little kingdom, the third white Rajah, the only potentate to whom the British government has delegated sovereignty and power over life or death.

Ninety-nine years ago James Brooke, a young East Indian army officer of distinguished lineage, was bored with the barrack-room routine. Rudyard Kipling had not started swinging his baton of empire then, but the score had been written and the young British blue-blood sniffed power and dominion.

There were in those days quite a lot of small principalities lying around loose, which could be had for the taking. James Brooke sold his estate and bought a schooner. He manned it with a crew of bucko lads, all with an itching heel. They picked a spot 9000 miles away, the realm of the old Rajah Muda, in northeastern Borneo, about the size of the State of Kentucky.

Their schooner was the "Royalist," a light-footed craft, ideal for genteel buccaneering. But these lads had no piratical intentions. They nailed on their mast-head their undying resolve to "free the Malay archipelago from barbarism." They had quite an incentive and quite a lot to work on. Head-hunting was the favorite sport in Sarawak.

When they landed, they found the old Rajah engaged in a catch-as-catch-can battle with the snicker-snee tribes, in which his own illustrious top-piece was a much sought trophy.

The young British adventurers teamed up with the Rajah. They had the best weapons of the time and plenty of powder and shot. The wild Dyaks fought with blow-pipes and poisoned arrows. The Englishmen won. "Who shall guard the praetors?" is a problem of all conquest—jungle or urban—and it was a problem there. The Rajah, rather a friendly and amiable old chap, it seems, settled it by letting the Englishmen take charge.

Within two years James Brooke was firmly established as the first white Rajah of the British Empire. He built an oriental palace, architecturally suitable for this bit of suburban development, but with the interior modeled on the lines of a spacious and charming English country house. In suppressing head-hunting, he exercised tact and discretion. While he did not allow them to harvest any new crops, he let them keep their collections.

They found gold and other minerals. The empire nodded approval. Britain thoroughly approved of self-starting imperialists in that day . . . The navy assigned a ship or two to help keep things under control.

In 1904 the empire formally recognized the complete sovereignty of the Brooke dynasty, the only instance of such action in the history of the empire. In 1910 oil was discovered. The country prospers. There is no public debt. Peace and order is maintained by an army of 800 men. In pith helmets and shorts, the Englishmen calmly hold sway.

And, in the words of the old song, "Good lord, how the money rolls in!"

March of Events

By
Benjamin DeCasseres

OUR illnesses arise from our emotions, our bodies or our brain.

The mind can be affected, but is never diseased.

Confirmation of this comes from Dr. Karl A. Menninger, of the Menninger Clinic, Topeka, Kan.

He says it is a vestige of man's beliefs in witchcraft, "possessions" and demons that causes even some eminent physicians to contend that diseases arise in the mind.

Mind is an eternal, immortal, untainted WORLD-SUBSTANCE. Its organ is the brain. Mind acts through the brain precisely as electricity glows through the bulb on your desk. The bulb may wear out. Then the light glows dimmer and dimmer. But there is nothing the matter with the electricity. It is as pure and uncorrupted as the world on the first morning.

Now, our brains are electric bulbs. They contain the light of MIND. When the emotions, the body or the brain (the bulb in your skull) are powerfully moved or diseased, the light of your mind wabbles—and it may go out.

MIND is the immortal part of us. MIND IS ELECTRICITY THAT THINKS. When the Leyden jars of our bodies and our brains are worn out, MIND finds other bodies and other brains. We are nothing but mind-condensers.

Our bodies may wither at the moment of death; but the mind, like the electric fluid, is always new, radiant, young, ETERNAL.

He defended the freedom of the press in America and was killed by a mob for doing so.

Seems incredible, but that is what happened just one hundred years ago to Elijah P. Lovejoy, preacher, battling editor and abolitionist, in Alton, Ill.

Lovejoy, who started the Observer in St. Louis, was driven out of the city because he denounced slavery in its columns. He moved over to Alton. Here he wrote in his paper this ringing declaration:

> "I am an American citizen, and as long as American blood runs in these veins I shall hold myself at liberty to speak, to write, to publish whatever I please on any subject, being amenable to the laws of my country."

A mob sacked and fired the Observer building and shot Lovejoy.

That's what would happen to all American Lovejoys if the Communists or Fascists ever controlled America.

Turn back the pages of history and how many wars can you find that were fought for a great human principle? ABOUT ONE IN TWENTY.

"Wars of libration" are much rarer than wars of conquest, although the latter are all masked as "righteous wars."

Many wars for "liberty"—like the French revolution and the Russian revolution, for instance—when successful have led to greater tyrannies than those they overthrow.

The American war for independence was probably the only war that was ever fought that was not fundamentally for booty, power or to found a great tyranny.

So far as the character of the men who were identified with it, the ideals which guided the armies of Washington and the magnificence of the work accomplished afterward the American revolution may be called "THE PERFECT WAR."

If we are ever compelled to go to war again, LET OUR MOTIVES BE AS HIGH as the founders of the republic were.

An alliance with any power in the world today would mean we have bogged down to their motives, which can be defined in two words: BOOTY AND CONQUEST.

I LIKE zinnias. In case you're not a garden hound, zinnias are flowers. Lusty, coarse flowers with strong roots and a few vigorous leaves. There is nothing fancy about zinnias—nothing exotic or mysterious. But there is a sturdy simplicity that asks no odds of any other flowers—and a great, joyous outpouring of color.

No flower on earth has such an ecstasy of color. I am looking at some of them out of my cabin window as I write—a riotous tangle in a spaded bit of clearing, flaming against the moss-grown, gray rocks, the wine-dark shadows of the forest.

I look. I drink in their color. I fill myself with their fierce virility. And a rush of gladness sweeps through me.

I like the habits of zinnias, too—their outdoor personality. You cannot imagine them in swank hotel lobbies or at select bridge tables (puffy, pallid faces festering with greed) or in those gilded rat-holes where Silken Susies and their pick-me-ups get soused.

Zinnias have no place in all that. They belong in good earth, hot sunshine, clean wind. If they were people, they would live in cabins and plain, friendly homes. They would sit around plain board tables scrubbed white or covered with red-checkered cloth. They would eat fried mush, salt pork and country gravy . . . boiled beef, with home-grown roots and mashed dried peas piled about it . . . mountain trout . . . wild rabbit . . . venison.

They would sleep between rough, gray blankets with the pine branches spreading in a black net above their camp fire—and, with the dawn, see one great star.

Simply, stoutly—that is how zinnias live. That is the only life they understand. There are no social subtleties about zinnias . . . no sly, side-winking jokes . . . no imported cultures or neurotic complexes. They are what they are, and you can take them or leave them.

The people I knew as a child were like that. Miners, cowboys, stevedores, sailors, strong women . . . striding down from the mountains with their burros . . . jingling in from the vast ranges on their high, Spanish saddles, their herds bellowing before them in a smother of tawny dust.

America—it grew from courage like that. Coarse, sturdy growth, honest and uncompromising.

Seeing this virile abundance beneath my window brings it all back to me. The surging abundance of virile life that was once America . . . that once made America. The life that ran naturally, honestly . . . without imported cultures or neurotic complexes. Deep laughter and health, good food, a crackling fire and a gypsy song—once that was life in America.

Nowadays we have perfumed cakes instead of home-made yellow soap . . . caviar instead of fried salt pork and country gravy . . . conservatory orchids instead of backyard zinnias. Yet, sometimes I wonder.
